They Fish and Think.
One Battle Is Over.
200 Powerful Millions.

—By ARTHUR BRISBANE—

YOU are told that Mr. Hoover's cabinet is made up of "sportsmen."

The President fishes.

Secretary Adams, of the Navy, is a yachtsman; Stimson, secretary of state, plays tennis; Mitchell, the attorney-general, plays golf and takes motion pictures of wild life. All play, shoot or fish.

What is more important, all of President Hoover's cabinet THINK. That is what counts.

FOR John D. Rockefeller, Jr., the owners voted 5,510,313 shares of Standard Oil of Indiana. For Col. Stewart, 2,954,936 shares.

Col. Stewart will easily find another job. In any case he would not starve. His salary was $125,000 a year, and under the rules of the company he gets a pension of about $75,000 a year as long as he lives.

IT WAS not thought by those who advocated prohibition law and a constitutional amendment that, under prohibition, school children would take to whisky, which before prohibition was unknown to them.

FLYING days are coming. The National City Bank organized the Boeing Company, now called United Aircraft, with $100,000,000, and several big aircraft concerns in it, including the famous Boeing Company of Seattle.

NOW the firm of Lehman Brothers starts another $100,000,000 aircraft company.

One hundred millions can do a great deal. These powerful financial organizations can put this country first in commercial flying, regardless of what government may do in the way of national air defense.

BRITON HADDEN, editor and founder of the magazine, Time, gives everything that he had to his mother, setting a good example.

Mr. Hadden's death in his early thirties is a serious loss to efficient, useful 'ournalism. Few young men have made so great a success in so short a time. Fortunately, he leaves an admirable organization to continue his work.

ONE man at least could get $1,000,000,000 simply by writing nine letters. Underneath an agreement to sell his United States plant to a corporation the two words, Henry Ford, would produce $1,000,000,000 cash, or more.

THERE are, however, not enough billions to buy Ford out. He enjoys work and doesn't especially enjoy money.

In Europe he starts Ford companies in various countries. His British company shares, sold at $5 each, went to $24, after they were issued, and Americans bought them from the British.

HIS $6,000 shares of his Belgian company have been oversubscribed eight times.

It must give some experienced Wall Street man a heartache to think how many tons of stock Henry Ford could sell if he wanted to.

As a special kindness, call money was let yesterday for 9 per cent. ONLY 3 per cent above the usury limit.

STOCK of the Radio Corporation celebrated a sunshiny day by going up $38 a share.

Plus signs were scattered all through the stock list. What goes up must come down. At least, that's the theory, but sometimes it stays up a long time.

MEXICAN rebels captured Juarez yesterday, which may be worth while even if the place cannot be held.

In capturing another city, intelligent leaders of the revolution, it is alleged, took what money there was in the local bank.

There is a great deal of money in Juarez, and if it hasn't been hidden, race tracks and other resorts will contribute generously to the surviving revolutionists.

BAD news for the revolution is an extension of the embargo against arms shipped from the United States, and an announcement by Secretary Kellogg that revolutionists will not be allowed to buy any more flying machines in America.

WITHOUT flying machines it will not be easy to fight against the Mexican government's airplanes.

American machines could easily be "bootlegged" into Mexico at night. The difficulty would be to locate your revolutionists and collect for the machines on landing.

THE religious issue which gives determination to the revolution is emphasized in the statement: "Catholic Church services were held in Sonora for the first time since 1926."

SALLY PHIPPS

Miss Phipps, "baby movie actress," in Los Angeles Superior Court today is asking for a guardian to replace her stepfather, A. S. Beupler, whom she charges with "dissipating" her earnings. She says she is 17 and has been Beupler's sole support since 1922, when he married her mother.

18,000 LED TO ATTACK BY CALLES

Associated Press.

Former President Calles himself took the field against the rebels today at the head of one of the largest armies collected in Mexico since the Pancho Villa rebellion in 1915.

Definitely crushing the insurgent movement in the south, the government was putting its full strength in the field toward the north and a possibly decisive battle was expected in the region of Torreon.

FORCES CONCENTRATED

Federal forces estimated at 18,000 were concentrating at Irapuato, ready to move on Canitas, Zacatecas, where several thousand insurgents were gathered. To the north, at Torreon, was Gen. Escobar, commander-in-chief of the rebels.

Gen. Almazan, loyal Federal commander, reached Saltillo and has asked for artillery, presumably to bombard Torreon if necessary.

REBELS PLAN DRIVE

While the Federals were pouring northward, the revolutionists announced that a drive on Mexico City would be made immediately. Gen. Montero, insurgent representative in New York, declared that two main bodies of insurgents numbering 30,000 were moving southward.

Juarez was quiet today after its capture by the insurgents, but new fighting along the American border was expected at Nogales, Sonora.

Federal authorities in Baja, California, were believed preparing an aerial bombardment of the revolutionary stronghold.

Fighting also appeared imminent at Mazatlan, Sinaloa, where 2,500

OPENS NEW ROUTE TO TEXAS

International News Service.

MEXICO CITY, March 9.—Despite the fact he would be compelled to fly over territory torn by revolution, Col. Charles A. Lindbergh, with his wedding reported definitely set for the Easter holidays, hopped off at 7:56 o'clock this morning (8:56 Eastern standard time) for Brownsville, Tex.

Lindbergh's flight is to inaugurate an air mail and passenger service between Mexico City and the United States.

After saying farewell to his fiancee, Miss Anne Spencer Morrow, daughter of American Ambassador Dwight W. Morrow, and to members of her family, the flying colonel began overhauling his great trimotored plane at Valbuena flying field this morning and was soon in the air.

CARRIES NINE PASSENGERS

Col. Lindbergh's plane carried nine passengers, including two women, and 12 sacks of mail.

Six sacks of mail were for New York City.

Col. Lindbergh did not feel any apprehensions over making the long flight northward over a troubled land. His usual fearless confidence was in evidence. He expected to reach Brownsville some time late this afternoon, barring bad weather or mechanical trouble.

Rebel activities did not enter into his calculations at all.

Col. Lindbergh's right arm, which was recently injured in an accident while he was flying with his intended bride, Miss Morrow, had completely healed and showed no stiffness.

CASTLE SHANNON BUILDING RIPPED BY EXPLOSION

When Joseph Lubens, Jr., 22, struck a match to light the furnace today in Castle Shannon Pharmacy, a terrific explosion seriously injured him and another and demolished the sturdy brick structure. Note here how the roof and walls were blown out.

BOTH NEAR DEATH AT HOSPITAL

Two men were burned, probably fatally, in an explosion early today, which demolished the Castle Shannon Pharmacy, Castle Shannon, and caused damage estimated at $9,000.

Those injured are Joseph Lubens, Jr., 22, Sixth avenue, Castle Shannon, and Ralph Nickmeyer, 23, 2719 Library road, Overborook. Both were burned severely. They were taken to St. Joseph's Hospital, where they were said to be in critical condition, with slight chance of recovery.

LIGHTING FURNACE

The explosion occurred at 4:30 a. m. Lubens, who is employed at the drug store, went there with Nickmeyer to light the furance, he said.

When he struck a match to kindle the furnace, Luben told hospital attaches, gas which had accumulated in the basement of the store, a one-story brick structure, exploded with terrific force. One side of the building was blown out.

STUNNED, FLEE

Both, stunned by the explosion, ran from the building. Nickmeyer ran to Lubens' home a block from the store. Lubens ran in the opposite direction and was picked up unconscious on a creek bank about two blocks from the store.

The Castle Shannon volunteer fire department extinguished the fire which followed the explosion. Chief Leo T. Schenot estimated the damage at $9,000.

Shortly after midnight the fire department extinguished a blaze in the Castle Shannon plant of the General Products Company. The fire was caused by an overheated stove, and $500 damage to machinery and supplies resulted.

3 HELD AS MAN IS FOUND DYING IN SALOON

A woman and two men were held without bail today while police sought to establish whether John T. Hoffman, 42, floral decorator, of 1517 Eckert street, found dying in a North Side saloon shortly after midnight, had been murdered.

The prisoners, Mamie O'Connor, 35, of 1532 Brighton road; Philip Gieb, 60, bartender, and John Lang, owner of the saloon at 908 East street, denied in Morals Court any complicity in an attack on Hoffman, whose skull, physicians said, had been fractured.

Mamie O'Connor, who described herself as a waitress out of a job, testified she found Hoffman sprawled in the street outside the saloon and called Lang and Gieb to help him.

Hoffman died in Allegheny General Hospital 20 minutes after police had been called to the saloon.

Patrolman Joseph P. Patton told Judge A. D. Brandon he found

Art Suit Defendant Honored by Britain

NEW YORK, March 9.—(INS.)—Sir Joseph Duveen, whose position as an art expert was recently attacked in a $500,000 law suit brought by Mrs. Andree Hahn, of Kansas City, Mo., has been named a trustee of the National Gallery, London, it was learned today.

The appointment was made by Prime Minister Stanley Baldwin. It is regarded as one of the greatest honors in the art world.

Mrs. C. W. Carpenter Sues for Divorce

NEW YORK, March 9.—(INS.)—Mrs. C. Whitney Carpenter, mother-in-law of the former Consuelo Vanderbilt, has instituted divorce proceedings against her young husband, it became known here today. Consuelo Vanderbilt Smith is a sister of Mrs. Muriel Vanderbilt Church, who, three days ago, won an uncontested divorce from Frederick Cameron Church, of Boston.

Ethel Barrymore Ill, Show Doesn't Go On

NEW YORK, March 9.—(AP.)—Ethel Barrymore was ill today at her home with influenza. There was no performance last night of her play, "The Kingdom of God."

Kin May Contest Isadora Duncan Will

NEW YORK, March 9.—(AP.)—Probate of the will of the late Isadora Duncan, famous dancer who was killed in Nice, France, in an automobile accident last year, was postponed yesterday until April 19 on request of counsel for two brothers and a sister who reserved the right to file a contest any time before that date. The will, which left everything to Serge Vessenin, her late Russian husband, was filed for probate by Irma Duncan, an adopted daughter.

Murderer Shoots Way Out of Jail

POTTSVILLE, Pa., March 9.—(AP.)—Elverez Miquel, 28-year-old slayer, shot his way to freedom from the Schuylkill County Jail today. A guard, Roy Reeves, was shot in the leg. Miquel, a Cuban, was under sentence of death for killing Louise Jacks, 19, his one-time sweetheart. A stay recently had been granted and his case was to come before the State Board of Pardons soon.

DIPLOMATS CONGRATULATE POPE ON PEACE WITH ITALY

By GUGLIELMO EMANUEL,
International News Service.

VATICAN CITY, March 9.—The diplomatic representatives accredited to the Vatican formally congratulated Pope Pius XI at noon today upon the reconciliation between the church and the Italian state.

Headed by Magalsaes Azeredo, Brazilian ambassador to the Holy See and dean of the diplomatic corps, the envoys called in a body upon the Pontiff.

The Brazilian envoy expressed delight over the settlement of the 59-year-old conflict between the church and state in a manner mutually satisfactory, adding that the continued presence of diplomats at the Vatican had attested the Pope's sovereignty.

"We rejoce over seeing Italy adopt the same conception," he declared.

The envoy went on: "This tiny bit of land which the Pope deemed sufficient is virtually an immense city of souls."

KELLOGG SCANS BORDER DEATHS

WASHINGTON, March 9.—(INS.)—The United States will ask indemnity from the Mexican government for the deaths of two Americans at El Paso, Tex., resulting from stray bullets fired across the border during the battle of Juarez yesterday, if the facts warrant, Secretary Kellogg announced today.

He said it was too early to discuss just what action would be taken, as the State Department had not yet received a report of the circumstances surrounding the killings. Proper representations would be made, however, after the facts were known.

The Mexican government is "improving its position very much and, despite the loss of Juarez, it is better than it was," Kellogg said.

Kellogg to Head Law Firm When Relieved

ST. PAUL, March 9.—(AP.)—Secretary of State Frank B. Kellogg will become the senior member of the law firm of Kellogg, Morgan, Chase, Carter and Headley as soon as he is relieved of his official duties in Washington, George W. Morgan, a member of the firm, announced yesterday.

Crook Unpunished, Germany Bars Film

BERLIN, March 9.—(AP.)—The fact that the "crook hero" of the German version of the Paramount film, "Ladies of the Mob," does not suffer a merited fate, is understood to be the reason for the barring of the film by the German censor.

AIRCRAFT SHOW OPEN TONIGHT

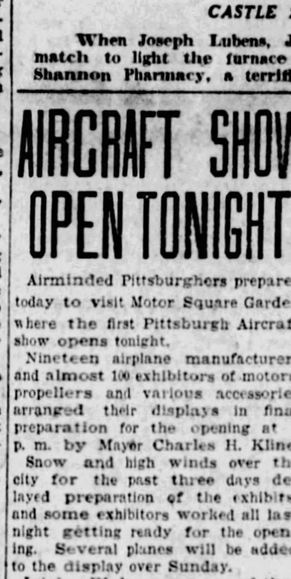
Airminded Pittsburghers prepared today to visit Motor Square Garden where the first Pittsburgh Aircraft show opens tonight.

Nineteen airplane manufacturers and almost 100 exhibitors of motors, propellers and various accessories arranged their displays in final preparation for the opening at 8 p. m. by Mayor Charles H. Kline.

Snow and high winds over the city for the past three days delayed preparation of the exhibits, and some exhibitors worked all last night getting ready for the opening. Several planes will be added to the display over Sunday.

Leigh Wade, army round-the-world flier, now chief test pilot for Consolidated Aircraft Corporation, makers of the P-T-1, government training type planes, was expected at Bettis Field late today. He is flying the giant 22-passenger Burnelli plane on which recently he completed tests in New Jersey. It will not be dissassembled for the aircraft show, but will be used here to give Pittsburghers flights over the city as guests of the P. W. Chapman Company, owners.

Divorced



FAY LANPHIER

The romance of Miss Lanphier, "Miss America" of 1927, is ended today in the Reno divorce courts, which granted an interlocutory decree from Sidney M. Spiegel, Jr., wealthy Chicagoan.

Wales Nearly 35; Said He'd Wed At That Age

LONDON, March 9.—(AP.)—The perpetual question of when the Prince of Wales will marry receives a fresh airing in the Daily Sketch today.

The paper recalls that the prince has told friends he will marry when he is 35 and his thirty-fifth birthday is June 23. The court gossips are now indulging in some speculation.

They point to the fact, the paper says, that Marlborough House, which has been prepared for the prince's residence, is not a bachelor home, that it is now ready for occupation, and that the "consort's suite" in it has been refitted and decorated.

Pittsburgh Bride Sails to See Races

NEW YORK, March 9.—(AP.)—The liner Berengaria sailed early today with more than 600 first-class passengers, many of whom were planning to attend the grand national steeplechase at Aintree, England, March 22. Included were Mrs. Payne Whitney; Howard Bruce, owner of Billy Barton; Stephen Sanford, owner of Mt. Aetna and Bright's Boy, and A. C. Schwartz, owner of Darcq. Mr. Schwartz was accompanied by his bride, the former Miss Virginia Craigie McKay, of Pittsburgh, whom he married Tuesday.

Elsie Janis Seriously Ill in Paris With Flu

PARIS, March 9.—(INS.)—Elsie Janis, the American actress who was known as the "Sweetheart of the A. E. F." during the World War, was in a serious condition today from influenza.

The influenza has spread to the left lung, the appendix and intestines of the actress, it was learned.

5 BOYS HURT IN CHURCH FIRE

The Mother of Sorrows Catholic Church in the Italian colony of Norwood, Stowe Township, was destroyed by fire last night with loss estimated at $50,000.

Five youths who attempted to save statuary and church equipment were injured, when the roof caved in upon them. They were given medical attention and sent home.

The Rev. Carmen Cillo, pastor, said the church was built in 1906, at a cost of $90,000. He estimated the damage at $50,000.

The injured youths were Lawrence Mollica, 20, of 91 Harlem street, opposite the church, who discovered the fire; Robert Barone, 20, of 714 Eleventh street, West Park; Fred Demasi, 22, of 107 Harlem street and Dominic Lutz, of 95 Harlem street.

Stewart, Ousted, Silent on Future

CHICAGO, March 9.—(AP.)—Quiet reigned in the Standard Oil Company today after weeks of warfare between John D. Rockefeller, Jr., and Colonel Robert W. Stewart that resulted in the latter losing his position as chairman of the board. Stewart left the city for several weeks' vacation with no announcement as to his destination or plans for the future. He spent the first part of the day with his son, Robert G. Stewart, president of the Pan-American Petroleum Transport Company, controlled by the Standard of Indiana.

Zep Stowaway Quits Stage, Wants to Fly

ST. LOUIS, March 9.—(AP.)—Clarence Terhune, the youthful Graf Zeppelin stowaway, is through with the stage and is seriously considering becoming an airplane pilot. Terhune, who has just completed his last theater contract, said he doesn't like stage work and would rather take up flying.

LEAGUE EASES WAY FOR U. S.

GENEVA, March 9.—(AP.)—The Council of the League of Nations today unanimously adopted the resolution of Sir Austen Chamberlain tending to facilitate adhesion of the United States to the World Court.

The resolution requested the committee of jurists considering revision of the World Court of justice statutes to consider the present situation as regards accession of the United States to the court.

It requested the committee to make suggestions to facilitate accession or adhesion on conditions satisfactory to all interests concerned.

New Waldorf-Astoria Hotel to Be Erected

NEW YORK, March 9.—(AP.)—A new Waldorf-Astoria Hotel is to rise on Park avenue with the name of the famous one on Fifth avenue, which is to be torn down for an office building.

MALONE-FOR-MAYOR CARDS OUT; "NOT MINE," JIM SAYS

Councilman James F. Malone's campaign for Mayor was opened today—but not by him, he said.

Malone was rather indignant today when informed that campaign cards announcing him as a candidate to succeed Mayor Charles H. Kline were in the mails.

"I didn't do it," the Council president assured, "and none of my friends did it. It's somebody who's trying to do a little harm.

"The same thing happened seven months ago. I have no idea who's behind it. I wish to emphasize that neither I nor my friends have anything to do with it."

TYPICAL GIRL QUEST AIDED BY ESSAY

Is the typical Pittsburgh Girl the Typical American Girl? Here in our own city, perhaps across the street, in our office or our club, is the girl who represents and typifies all America's glorious young womanhood.

The Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph is out to find the typical Pittsburgh Girl and after it has found her, send her to New York City with the belief that in competing with 47 other contestants she will win the honors of being proclaimed the Typical American Girl.

Who she is we do not know. But we do believe she's here. Someone will send to the Quest Editor of the Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph her picture and information such as is requested in the rules printed on this page.

LETTER AIDS IN QUEST

To help you in your quest a letter written by Beatrice Smith, of St. Louis, Mo., winner of Smart Set Magazine's Typical American Girl essay contest, is printed below.

"Your quest for The Typical American Girl will not be hard nor long. She is just around the corner; but you will have to hurry to catch up with her. As you know, she is unhampered by short skirt Dancing, sports, jazz and business have contributed to her speed.

"She is surely associated with business. It is the backbone of this country It fosters ambition, energy, progress, independence, co-operation, a broad and practical view of men and money. Yet, it does not unsex or unbalance her.

"Until athletes, students, home and society girls take up business they are not one with her, for she is a composite of the qualities of all these types to a pleasing degree.

EDUCATED, COOKS, SEWS

"Reared in a country that gives women more liberty than they enjoy elsewhere, brought up where sport is a prominent pastime, where education is free, she cannot help but manifest these qualities. She usually is a high school graduate.

"She likes good food—not much, but often. She has a hobby, whether it be cards, art, music, or anything different from her usual routine.

"She is not unmoral. She has a creed. She believes in God, her neighbor, his and her rights; marriage for love on a fifty-fifty basis; motherhood; hygiene; a single standard for both men and women; restraint in wooing; moderation in drinking and smoking, whether she indulges or does not. If she does, it is usually to be congenial.

"A synopsis of her personal appearance is given almost lastly, because it is, to her credit, the least of her. Be that as it may, by these signs ye shall know her: That person, good looking, but not a magazine or movie type; appearing young; about five feet two to seven, slender, with good lines and good carriage; not swarthy; well groomed and shod, wearing silk hose; using cosmetics; smart, healthy, wholesome and companionable, is the shell of the girl you seek.

"She prefers Americans. She has many admirers but one steady boy friend. Fortunately for the young men, there is enough of Mary Doe to go around."

READERS URGED TO AID

Write to the Typical American Girl Quest Editor of the Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph, giving your ideas of the Typical Pittsburgh Girl or, better yet, choose among your acquaintances the young woman you believe is a Typical Pittsburgh Girl, and send her photograph and biographical record to the Quest Editor of this newspaper.

The girl selected by the Sun-Telegraph as the winner in this region will be sent to New York under proper chaperonage as the guest of Smart Set Magazine for one glorious week in one of the finest hotels in the greatest city in the world. From the group of 17 regional winners the committee of nationally-known men and women will select one who best epitomizes the qualities of the Typical American Girl—and this new princess will receive Smart Set's award of $5,000 and the unusual distinction of being hailed by America and the world as the Typical American Girl. The winner and five others will have their portraits painted by Leo Mielziner Hoff, the famous artist.

ESCAPE INJURY IN BOMBING

MRS. MABEL COAST MRS. DAVIDSON, JR. MRS. DAVIDSON, SR.

These people, members of the family of Police Chief William Davidson, Sr., Beaver Falls, escaped injury when their home was dynamited. The chief has been an active liquor-raider. An 18-foot retaining wall is believed to have saved them.

FAMILY OF 11, FATHER DEAD IN TRUCK FIRE, DESTITUTE

Sixteen dollars a week, the wages of Catherine McLaughlin, 18, eldest of the 10 children is the family's current income.

OTHERS WANT WORK

Irene, 16, may find work and Mrs. McLaughlin may be able to go out and work herself leav" the smaller children in care of Charlotte, 14 and William 13, Then conditions will be better.

The rent problem will not worry them for the time being as the family own the drab little house in which they live, but it soon will need costly repairs, there will be an assessment for a sewer across the property and about $40 in taxes to pay.

BITTER STRUGGLE AHEAD

Mrs. McLaughlin's only comfort as she surveys her financial problem is the fact that a $1,000 insurance policy carried by her husband will defray his funeral expenses and pay current obligations, but from now on she realizes there is a struggle ahead for the bare necessities of life.

An interested public has shown its concern in letters received by the Sun-Telegraph suggesting an organized movement to aid Mrs. McLaughlin and her family.

MOTHERS' AID FUND TIED

The Mothers' Assistance Fund Board of Trustees of Allegheny County has taken up the case and has assigned it for immediate investigation, but that organization's hands are tied, so far as extending immediate aid is concerned, its officials report.

"No matter how deserving Mrs. McLaughlin's case may be we are obliged to tell her and her friends of the long waiting list before the board," explained Mrs. Marcus Spiro, chairman of the mothers' assistance fund trustees.

"On account of insufficient state appropriations we have nearly 350 families eligible to receive aid who are on the waiting list. We hope that the Legislature will increase our funds and in that event we shall be able to assist all these deserving mothers in their efforts to maintain their homes."

So Mrs. McLaughlin and her brood of 10 may have to fight it out alone.

GAS TAX COUP FACES FISHER

HARRISBURG, March 9.—(AP.)—A master plan of strategy to attempt to place responsibility for an increase in the gasoline tax squarely on the shoulders of Gov. Fisher has been adopted by the group leading the opposition against a tax raise, it was learned today.

The plan involves passage in its present form of the Talbot bill which retains the three-cent tax and places the collection on the distributors rather than retailers, compelling enactment of a second bill to carry out the administrative "suggestion" for additional funds from this source. Should both bills pass finally, the governor would be faced with the problem of vetoing one or the other, or signing both. In the latter case, the measure signed last would make inoperative any inconsistent portion of the other.

From authoritative sources comes information that the administration's proposal to increase the rate will be placed before the Legislature as an amendment to a bill dealing with gasoline tax, rather than by a separate measure.

Woman Quits Society For Store Clerk Job

NEW YORK, March 9.—(INS.)—Mrs. Amanda Drake Cecil, a social registerite, and wife of a wealthy advertising agent, has quit the leisure of a society matron for a $25-a-week job in a department store, it was learned today. Mrs. Cecil has two children in school.

BOMBING CLUES TRACED

BEAVER FALLS, March 9.—S. M. Clark, chairman of the police committee of city council, has assumed personal charge of the investigation into the bombing outrage perpetrated early yesterday at the home of Police Chief William Davidson, 3011 College avenue. A careful check of all bootleggers arrested by order of Chief Davidson during the past several months will be made. Several men arrested in these raids are now under indictment. No direct threats against the chief, either in person, or by letter, have been received.

Workman today began repairs on the Davidson home, the front porch of which was wrecked when a dynamite bomb exploded. The blast shattered windows throughout the neighborhood. Students from Geneva College, half a block away, poured out of dormitories.

Chicago Gang Killing Before Grand Jury

CHICAGO, March 9.—(AP.)—A grand jury started hearing testimony of the state's principal witnesses in the Valentine's Day gang massacre yesterday "so that it will be available in the event of any mishap."

Assistant State's Attorney Walker Butler intimated that the state feared attempts would be made on the lives of its witnesses.

Magistrate A. D. Brandon turned the prisoners over to the homicide squad for further investigation. He also held Lang for court on a charge of selling whisky after Gleb had testified that he sold drinks in the bar. Lang admitted his correct name was Lesitz and that he had adopted the new name three years ago.

Hoffman's mother, Mrs. Mary Hoffman, 65, a widow, who lived with him, told police her son had not been home since Monday night When his clothing was examined at the hospital there was still $10 in his pockets.

Hoffman was single. He served in France with an American hospital unit.

House Made Famous By Lindy Visit Burns

COATESVILLE, Pa., March 9.—(AP.)—Fire yesterday damaged the farm house at Romansville, near here, where Charles A. Lindbergh remained over night when forced down by fog several months ago while on a flight from New York to Washington. Charles Elkington, owner of the property, was absent when the fire started in a defective chimney. His sister, Miss Edith Elkington, escaped.

Firemen from Downington, this city, and Modena, battled the flames but were handicaped by lack of water.

MIAMI RESORTS HIT AS RAIDERS HUNT SLAYER

CORAL GABLES, Fla., March 9.—(INS.)—Sheriff M. P. Lehman today was concentrating his search for Eddie Wilson, accused of slaying Thomas "Fatty" Walsh, former Rothstein bodyguard, in greater Miami. He believes that the suspected man is in hiding here and, in an effort to locate him, he is raiding every gambling den in the metropolitan area.

Wilson is alleged to have shot and killed Walsh in an argument in Wilson's elaborately-furnished suite on the fourteenth floor of the Miami Biltmore Hotel here early Wednesday, It is believed that Walsh "knew too much" about the unsolved Rothstein murder in New York, and that he was killed to prevent his talking.

HOLD WOUNDED MAN

Arthur L. Clark, said to have been employed in the gambling venture alleged to have been operated by Wilson and Walsh here, who was wounded in the shooting, was still in the hospital ward of the Dade County jail here today. He is being held as a material witness by the local police and, in addition, requests have been received from New York and Philadelphia police for his detention. He is alleged to have "won" $11,000 in New York through a confidence game, Sheriff Lehman said.

SHOW GIRL PROTESTS

JACKSONVILLE, Fla., March 9.—(AP.)—Inez Norton, show girl and beneficiary under Arnold Rothstein's will, voiced a protest here against mention of her name in connection with the Walsh slaying in Miami.

"I knew none of the persons involved and it is ridiculous to mention my name in connection with the story," she said.

Miss Norton said she would go to New York March 15, "for business reasons." She declared she expected to get about $1,500,000 from the Rothstein estate.

Tri-Motored Plane Takes Hangar Here

Pittsburgh's first tri-motored airplane, a Ford, will land at Bettis Field at noon Wednesday. It will be powered with three Wright J-6 motors, the 300-horsepower successor to the famed "Whirlwind."

Al Litzenberger, former Mayer Field, Bridgeville, pilot, will be at the controls of the new plane, owned by Pennsylvania Air Lines, Inc. It will operate for sightseeing flights and cross-country service from Bettis Field. W. C. Smith is president of the company, Fred Zurcher, vice president and general manager.

McKees Rocks Man Dead, Gun in Hand

Seated in front of dresser with a revolver clutched in his hand, Anton Kusedich, 42, pool room proprietor, of 315 Olivia street, McKees Rocks, was found dead in his room today. He had fired one shot into his temple while looking in the mirror, according to police, who, summoned by his son, Marco, 18, broke down the locked door. Kusedich had been in ill health for several months, police reported to the coroner.

Weather Conditions.

There was a remarkably rapid change in pressure distribution during the last 24 hours. The Plains states disturbance is now off the North Atlantic coast, and the Northwest high is centered over Minnesota and Iowa, with a marked increase in pressure. The highest barometer reported is 30.62 inches at Sioux City, Charles City and Moorhead. The high covers most of the interior of the country this morning and due to the rapid increase in pressure caused a sudden chargee to colder from the Rocky Mountains to the Appalachians. Freezing weather extends as far south as Oklahoma and zero and below over Minnesota, Manitoba and Ontario.

River Conditions.

There was a substantial fall in the rivers throughout the district. Stage at Pittsburgh is 17.8 feet; Dam No. 2, 10.1; Dam No. 6, 18.7; Dam No. 9, 20.2, and Dam No. 12, 20.9. At Pittsburgh the stage will be about 14.0 feet Sunday morning.

TWO AMERICANS KILLED

Two Americans were killed in yesterday's battle at Juarez, one a 2-year-old girl in El Paso and the second a man found dead in Juarez.

Fighting between the opposing forces ended late yesterday when American authorities interposed because of the danger to Americans in El Paso.

About 300 federals and their families were interned at Fort Bliss under the terms of the truce.

U. S. TO SHIP ARMS

The State Department at Washington has approved a request of the Mexican government for surplus war material and will probably supply such material out of stores now held by the War Department.

The American government also approved a request by the Mexican government to import privately built airplanes from the United States. Along with this went an embargo on unauthorized shipments of planes into Mexico.

Capt. Dewar Retired on British Pension

LONDON, March 9.—(AP.)—The Admiralty has awarded a "good service" pension of $750 per annum beginning March 1 to Capt. Kenneth C. B. Dewar, formerly commander of H. M. S. Royal Oak, who figured in the court martial at Gibralter last April. He was dismissed from his command for "conduct subversive of discipline," but was appointed to the command of H. M. S. Tiger in September. Two other officers, Rear Admiral Bernard St. G. Collard and Commander H. M. Daniel were involved in the court martial which resulted from a dispute over jazz music and the conduct of Daniel at a dance on Board the Royal Oak while the ship was stationed at Malta.

Washington to Open Bond Bids Monday

WASHINGTON, Pa., March 9.—Bids for road improvement bonds totalling $175,000, bearing four and one-half per cent, will be opened here Monday by Washington county commissioners. This issue is being floated in carrying out a program of issuing a certain amount each year to advance the county system and meet the allocations by the state.

and there has been no fighting in that region.

Col. Lindbergh intends to fly back to Mexico City in order to "blaze the trail both ways."

Col. Lindbergh came here about a fortnight ago to visit his fiancee, Miss Morrow, whom he had not seen since her father, the ambassador, announced the nuptial engagemet earlier in the year.

The minister who will officiate at the marriage ceremony already has been chosen, it was said, but his name has not been divulged.

Greentree Borough Bond Issue Certified

Quarter Sessions Court has certified the bond issue increasing the indebtedness of Greentree borough by $55,000. The voters recently approved the issue with a majority of 126 votes.

Twenty-five thousand dollars is to be used to purchase ground for the new borough buildings; $13,000 for a new sewerage system; $3,000 for the widening of Manilla avenue, and the remainder for other street improvements.

U. S. to Advertise To 'Sell' Volstead Idea to People

WASHINGTON, March 9.—(AP.)—The Federal government is planning to enter the field of advertising in an effort to sell the idea of law enforcement to the American people.

Believing that law enforcement can be stimulated through the widespread use of posters, Commissioner Doran, of the Prohibition Bureau, announced a plan to disseminate throughout the country illustrations picturing the evils of the liquor traffic and benefits from prohibition. The campaign will be financed through the $50,000 made available to the bureau for educational purposes in the deficiency bill enacted at the last Congress.

Specimens of posters have been submitted by Commissioner Doran to an educational committee of the national conference of organizations supporting the Eighteenth Amendment, which will report its recommendations to him.

GROUPS GIVE SUPPORT TO DRIVE

President T. P. Gaylord, of the Chamber of Commerce, has started a move for an expression of the organization's entire membership on the question of the downward revision of taxes on earned incomes.

A few minutes after the matter was brought to the attention of the Chamber of Commerce, by Frank L. Duggan, manager of the Consolidated Ice Company, Secretary A. V. Snell, at the direction of President Gaylord, placed the communication before the executive committee. The report may be acted upon at the next meeting.

"I am glad to see the subject brought before the Chamber of Commerce," said President Gaylord. "I have not looked into the merits of the proposal, but am certain that any movement for the reduction of taxes will be popular. Just now it seems to be the trend of the times."

In his letter to the Chamber of Commerce, Mr. Duggan said:

MR. DUGGAN'S LETTER

"It seems opportune at this time to call to the attention of the Chamber of Commerce of Pittsburgh, the country-wide movement for a revision downward, of taxes on earned incomes.

"Some of the most prominent people of the country have given their indorsement to this movement. May I ask that you be kind enough to call this to the attention of the proper authorities of the Chamber, at your earliest convenience in order that we may get an expression from our entire membership."

The committe on taxation, Lloyd W. Smith, chairman, will report to the directors of the chamber and on their affirmation, the recommendations on the downward revision of taxes on earned incomes will be placed before the entire membership at a regular meeting.

BUSINESS WOMEN ACT

The Business and Professional Women's Club, of Pittsburgh, composed of more than 500 of the leading women in professional and business life, in this district, on Thursday night voted an unequivocal indorsement of lower taxes on earned incomes.

The Amen Corner, that unique organization of business men, statesmen and good fellows, meeting in the William Penn Hotel, has thrown its influence behind the Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph's campaign for lower taxes on earned incomes.

D. A. Harris, president of the "corner," announced today:

"There are no backsliders in this organization and, speaking for every member, I can say that we are 100 per cent for lower taxes on the incomes of the men who have to work hard for all that comes in. Fred Obley, our secretary, has opened up Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph petitions and every Amener who comes in will have the privilege of swatting the income tax on wage earners."

MANY SIGN PETITIONS

Every mail yesterday and early today brought many petitions to the office of the Sun-Telegraph. These came from individuals who have no organization to speak for them.

Many came from offices of business firms where the owners, managers and entire personnel signed the petitions, indicating that persons in all walks of life are interested in the movement.

Others came from young women who started the circulation of the petitions in their offices and found ready signers, filling many forms clipped from the Sun-Telegraph. These volunteer workers in the cause who sent their photographs to the Sun-Telegraph will see their pictures published.

Babies' Savings Grow in Award For Thrift

Sun-Telegraph Encourages Savings Bank Depositors

To stimulate interest in the practice of thrift, the Sun-Telegraph will deposit $50 to the credit of the first of the bank books in the following list, and $10 to the credit of each of the others. If you hold one of these bank books, bring it to the office of the Sun-Telegraph, Gazette Square, and present it to Robert N. Laughlin, cashier.

THIS ONE WILL RECEIVE $50:

Name of Bank.		Book No.
Union Savings Bank	School Account	109,887

THESE WILL RECEIVE $10 EACH:

Name of Bank.		Book No.
Third National Bank	Marine Account	2,829
Potter Title and Trust Company		8,966
Citizens Trust Company of Bellevue		EA-322
Monongahela National Bank		8,415
Farmers Deposit National Bank		134,519

The books designated must be presented before noon Saturday, March 16—a week from today.

Any bank in Greater Pittsburgh having savings or thrift accounts may have its pass book numbers included in these thrift gift lists by a request from a bank official to the Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph Thrift Department.

Watch the Sunday Sun-Telegraph for more information of interest to savings bank depositors.

AMONG the children who have received checks from the Sun-Telegraph as a reward for thrift is Francis Philip Delehanty, son of Mr. and Mrs. Francis J. Delehanty, of 226 Bigham street, Mt. Washington. Francis will be 4 years old on March 21. He has had a savings bank account in the Hazelwood Savings and Trust Company since he was 9 months old. His bank book, No. 18,667, was among those to whose credit sums of money have been deposited by the Sun-Telegraph to stimulate interest in thrift. Francis received $10.

Another baby whose bank account has been swelled by the amount of $10 through receipt of a Sun-Telegraph thrift reward is Henry James Drafts, Jr., 3, of 12 Hamilton place, North Side. Henry holds bank book No. 3,859 in the American State Bank and Trust Company. He has a toy bank in which he deposits pennies and nickels, instead of spending them for candy. In this way he had accumulated $5.98. The $10 Sun-Telegraph gift is his largest deposit so far.

Joseph Sieger, of 183 Joseph street, Mt. Oliver, has received $5 as holder of bank book No. 11,345 in the St. Clair Savings and Trust Company.

Robert and Viola Allen, of 2243 Bedford avenue, joint holders of book No. 8221 in the Duquesne National Bank, have had their account enriched by $5.

Mrs. Cora R. Ingham, of 917 Bellefonte street, holder of passbook No. 14,859 of the Pittsburgh Trust Company, has received a deposit of $10.

PAINTER MIXES ART WITH HIS DRYGOODS

DRYGOODS SHOP HIS STUDIO

Benjamin Teplitz, of 557 Larimer avenue, who came to this country from Russia when 15 years old, probably never dreamed that some day more than 1,000,000 people would admire the first portrait he has ever painted. The fact is that on Sunday, March 17, more than 1,000,000 readers of the Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph will see a beautiful color reproduction of his creation—a portrait of the late Brig. Gen. Lloyd M. Brett in the color gravure section of their favorite newspaper.

Teplitz is not a professional artist. Although art is his "first love," the exigencies of life have made it necessary for him to gain a livelihood for himself and his family in a more lucrative occupation. That is why he became a drygoods merchant and is now conducting a store. He attends to his business in the store like any other merchant, but when there are no customers, he hies himself to a corner where he courts his art with easel, brush and palette. It was in his store-studio that he painted the portrait of the much-admired commander of the One Hundred and Sixtieth Infantry, Eightieth Division in France.

Gen. Brett never posed for the artist, whose masterful brush created a surprisingly perfect likeness from a small photograph. The portrait shows the general wearing his new style, low-collar uniform with the silver brigadier general's star on the shoulders. It was painted for William J. Fleming, leader in the councils of the Eightieth Division Veterans Association. Fleming was one of the Pittsburghers through whose influence the war-time rank was restored to Gen. Brett. The painting is expected to find a permanent place in some division memorial, yet to be designated.

Teplitz is now painting a portrait of another prominent Pittsburgher, whose name he declined to disclose, because it will be presented to him on his birthday. Teplitz also paints landscapes and frequently packs up easel and paint box to paint the glories of nature in field and woods.

ROXIE LONG'S WIFE JAILED

Judge James B. Drew sentenced Mrs. Virginia Long, and her brother, Clarence Riston, 1707 Cliff street, wife and brother-in-law, respectively, of Roxie Long, to 30 days to jail following their conviction on charges of assault and battery and pointing firearms.

Vernon Price, of the Vernon Price Company, 3353 Gerber avenue, testified the woman and her brother attacked him and one of his drivers, Roy Devine, when they went to Long's store to collect for groceries delivered there.

Roxie Long, who won the name of "Elusive Roxie" some years ago when he jumped bail and escaped to France, was released from jail recently and re-married his wife at a church ceremony.

KEEP NATIONAL DEFENSES SOLID, ARMY CHIEF WARNS

This nation, like any business concern, should be prepared to meet emergencies and national defense should not be neglected, Gen. Charles P. Summerall, chief of staff of the Army, told the Pittsburgh post of the Society of American Military Engineers at its annual dinner last night in the Fort Pitt Hotel.

The suddenness with which the World War began was cited by Summerall as evidence that no nation can afford to believe that present peace means peace everlasting.

The post elected these officers: President, Maj. E. L. Messler; vice president, Capt. E. V. Price, and secretary-treasurer, Hugh J. Casey.

DRY CRUSADERS ARREST MAYOR

LAS VEGAS, Nev. March 9.—(AP.)—The mayor, police commissioner and more than 20 proprietors of "soft drink" places here were under arrest today charged with violating the Federal prohibition law.

Federal prohibition agents led by United States Marshal J. D. Fulmer, of Carson City, arrived yesterday, making the arrests on secret indictments returned at Carson City, the night before. Mayor J. C. Hesse and Police Commissioner Roy Neagle, escaped jail by posting bails of $5,000 each. They and their alleged conspirators were ordered to appear in Carson City for arraignment March 18.

Neither the mayor nor the police commissioner would comment. Reports were current that two Federal agents had posed here as real estate men and had obtained the evidence.

TAPLIN READY TO CUT RATES

CLEVELAND, March 9.—Frank E. Taplin, financier, today was sharpening his cutlass for a go at that Gordian knot of commerce—the lake cargo coal rate case.

Taplin's plan contemplates a reduction by the Pittsburgh and West Virginia Railroad, which Taplin controls, of 55 cents a ton on coal for lake ports, subject to approval by the Interstate Commerce Commission.

OTHERS MAY FOLLOW

Taplin's assurance was tempered by anxiety over the outcome for his road if other northern roads should follow suit.

In that event, Taplin feared, the big coal companies would give their business to other roads. This he asserted, might leave the Pittsburgh and West Virginia with a volume of business insufficient to show profit at the contemplated low hauling rate.

REJECTED BY OTHERS

His proposal for a 55-cent reduction was first made Wednesday at a meeting in New York of railroad men concerned in the lake cargo situation. It was promptly rejected.

Denying that he holds actual control of the Wheeling and Lake Erie Railroad, Taplin ventured the opinion that it would not reduce its lake port coal rates unless all other northern roads did.

SILENT ON NEW ROAD

On his plans for building a trunk line from lake ports to Baltimore by consolidating the Pittsburgh and West Virginia, the Wheeling and Lake Erie and the Western Maryland, Taplin was reticent.

He denied that his plans had been affected by the transfer to the Van Sweringen brothers of the Baltimore and Ohio's holdings in the Wheeling and Lake Erie.

Moss Side Boulevard Name Puzzles Court

Petitions for the grading, widening and improving of the Moss Side boulevard, Patton and North Versailles Townships, and the Allegheny River boulevard, Penn Township, were approved by the grand jury and presented to Judge James B. Drew in Quarter Sessions Court. When he received the Moss Side boulevard petition, Judge Drew expressed wonder at the name and said "the county commissioners need some one to suggest a few good names to them." The purchase of ground for the removal of the county morgue building, was also approved.

450 Gallons of Rum On Truck, Owner Held

DOVER, O., March 9.—Philip Petro, Dover grocer, arrested by Sheriff Wooster, of Cadiz, when he reported the disappearance of his truck to Dover police, is to be arraigned for ownership of the truck which contained 450 gallons of liquor which was seized by Sheriff Wooster and deputies three miles east of Cadiz. The truck, disabled, was being towed by a farmer. The driver escaped.

Poker-Slayer Guilty In Murder of Wife

MEMPHIS, Tenn., March 9.—(AP.)—Charles S. Taylor, who last December killed his wife with a poker because she "nagged" him, and placed her body in a trunk, where it remained for eight days, was found guilty of murder in the first degree by a jury late yesterday. The verdict automatically carries the death penalty.

Hoover Ancestors Traced to 1740 In Germany

BADEN-BADEN, Germany, March 9.—(AP.)—It was announced here yesterday that the descent of President Herbert Hoover has been traced in direct line to Andreas Huber, who was born here but emigrated to Maryland in 1740. The investigation was made by the American Heraldic Society.

Salvation Army's War Chief Retires

SAN FRANCISCO, March 9.—(AP.)—Col. William S. Barker, Salvation Army officer who initiated, organized and put through the Salvation Army program in the World War, retired here last night after 36 years of unbroken service. At the farewell extended him as retiring chief secretary of the western territory, Commissioner Adam Gifford announced to a crowd which filled the auditorium that the work of Col. Barker in France brought the Army successfully through its war relief program with a clean record.

More Rum Murder Warrants Issued

PEORIA, Ill., March 9.—(AP.)—Investigation of the score of poison liquor deaths in the Peoria district last week-end yesterday brought about the issuance of two more murder warrants implicating an eleventh person in the distribution of poison alcohol. The new warrants named Herman Wohlferth and Maurice Mansfield, a wholesale liquor distributor, who previously had been named in other murder warrants.

Wohlferth was said to have admitted selling the liquor blamed for the death of Chauncey Robbins, and named Mansfield as the man who supplied him. An analysis of Mansfield liquor revealed it contained some 95 per cent proof wood alcohol, agents said.

Ex-Countess Sued In Death of Girl

BALTIMORE, March 9.—(AP.)—Mrs. Eleanor Medill Patterson Schlesinger, the former Countess Gizycka, and her chauffeur, Charles Fraizier, were sued for $25,000 today by Mr. and Mrs. G. W. Leroy, parents of Florence Leroy, 7, who was killed when struck by Mrs. Schlesinger's automobile here on Wednesday.

Mrs. Schlesinger, a prominent member of Washington society, is the author of "Glass Houses," a novel of life in the capital.

Western Union Chief Sent to Philadelphia

P. M. Fulton, superintendent of the Pittsburgh district for the Western Union Telegraph Company for three years, has been promoted to a similar position in the Philadelphia territory. Mr. Fulton is succeeded by G. T. Harris, transferred from the superintendency at Rochester, N. Y.

Court House Liquor Vanishes; Inquiry On

WILLIAMSPORT, Pa., March 9.—(AP)—A special grand jury inspection of the Lycoming County court house vault may result in a recommendation to Judge Harvey W. Whitehead that a thorough investigation of the mysterious disappearance of more than 300 bottles of whisky be made at once. The liquor has been reported as missing since last October when a new lock was placed on the vault. Since October, more than 200 bottles are said to have been removed.

Wife Drinks Poison After Domestic Row

WASHINGTON, Pa., March 9.—Despondent because of marital troubles which resulted recently in her husband, Melvin Lytle, aged 28, being brought into court and ordered to support his family, Mrs. Alberta Lytle, aged 23, of Gastonville, attempted to commit suicide by swallowing poison. She was removed to the Memorial Hospital, Monongahela, and, it is believed, will recover. The Lytles have two children.

Professor Turns On Gas, Kills Self

MINNEAPOLIS, Minn., March 9.—(AP.)—Chauncey J. V. Pettibone, 44, instructor at the College of Medicine, University of Minnesota, and a recognized authority on physiological chemistry, committed suicide today by inhaling gas. Ill health was believed to have prompted the act.

Bus Line to Run Sleeping Coaches

NEW YORK, March 9.—(AP)—Sleeping motor coaches for long-distance bus travelers are to be placed in operation between Cleveland and Buffalo on a Chicago-New York route. The coaches will contain 12 berths to accommodate 18 persons, dressing rooms and other conveniences of "Pullman" travel. The engines are of 125 horsepower.

WAR DEBT BANK PLAN FAVORED

PARIS, March 9.—(AP.)—The project of a trustee bank finds great favor with the reparations experts. Few objections have been raised and they are of a minor character.

Fear expressed in some quarters of possible predominance of such a financial super-power is not even regarded seriously in competent circles.

Among the many questions of detail yet to be worked out and to be discussed Monday is who is to supply the capital, which may run as high as 500,000,000 marks (about $130,000,00).

To this capital would be added the 200,000,000 marks now in the hands of the agent general for reparations. The theory is that a bank with resources equivalent to $180,000,000 would be able to discount Germany's export bills and make a substantial profit for the German state. But if creditor and neutral countries are to supply the capital they naturally will expect to share the benefits in its use.

Barn Blast Inquiry Dropped; Toll Now 6

SCRIBNER, Neb., March 9.—(AP.)—In the face of a mounting death roll, Dodge County officials have virtually dropped their investigation into Thursday night's dynamite blast which has cost the lives of six men and left nearly 50 other persons injured. County Attorney E. L. Mahlin announced that no inquest would be held.

"I see no criminal responsibility," said Mahlin after gathering facts concerning the explosion of 500 pounds of dynamite in a blazing barn at the home of County Commissioner Carl Hollander.

27 Chinese Study To Be Army Fliers

DETROIT, Mich., March 9.—(INS.)—In the hope that they will be officers in the aviation corps of the Chinese Nationalist Army, 27 Chinese residents today began a course in aeronautics at the United Airways School of Aviation. The class is conducted by Moy Do Yick, who said he was a pilot in the Nationalist Army in China during the civil war there in 1925. The class is composed chiefly of students in the automobile schools who earn their living as waiters in tea gardens and Chinese restaurants.

BOROUGH FIGHT HONORS EVEN

Honors, if any, were even today in Glenfield's councilmanic battle of fists and words.

James N. Muse, borough fireman, was held for court by Justice of the Peace Arthur Davis, of Emsworth, last night on a charge of assault and battery brought by Councilman Clem L. Schofield. On Tuesday night Justice of the Peace Margaret McGan, of Sewickley, held Schofield on a similar charge brought by Muse.

Train Hits Trolley, 20 Hurt

SYRACUSE, N. Y., March 9.—(AP.)—More than 20 persons were injured, five seriously, when a freight train crashed into a crowded trolley car last night at the West Shore Railroad crossing at James and State streets.

LIBRARY BOOK-LENDERS HAVE TEA ROOM AT LAST

Pittsburgh's busiest women, the book-lenders of Carnegie library, at last have a tea room and rest room. There, for 10 minutes each afternoon, they may drop their task of handing out 1,800 books or answering the thousands of questions submitted daily.

The tea room is maintained by the librarians' own contributions, a nominal charge of 10 cents daily for each. In addition they have outfitted and decorated the rest room.

Besides giving out 1,800 books daily, the library workers spend many hours digging into dark and musty tomes to answer questions that puzzle the city's instructors and scholars.

HOLLYWOOD, March 9.

CAME a day, with plenty of balm and totsy with spring. And so to M. G. M. Through the gate and headed in the general direction of the lunch room where a Lon Chaney sandwich is tomato and bacon on whole wheat bread.

Strolling toward ye scribe, with head bowed and eyes engrossed in a script was none other than Marion Davies. She looked up suddenly.

Marion Davies.

We exchanged stares. The moment pulsed with dramatic possibilities. Had not Miss Davies and yours-of-the-sixth inst. indulged in paragraphical pyrotechnics, via the enclosure of this colyum?

Suddenly Marion's eyes lighted. She smiled. Then chortled and held out her hand.

"Er—Yes."

"You received my letters?" We were now en route to her bungalow.

"Certainly. Your replies were elegant."

"And if we talked truce over a cup of coffee?"

"We'd be wasting time. For Heaven's sake, didn't you know it was all a kid?"

"Did you?" grinning.

"Sure, you midget idiot."

We shook hands. And that was that.

MARION, incidentally, has started work on her initial M. G. M. yclept "Mariana," direction Robert Z. Leonard, with Oscar Shaw the hero. The entire first reel will be in French. Marion Parlez-vous' this language like a native. In the remainder of the flicker she will speak broken English.

Hollywood's expression for a leading man who's acting the part at a social gathering: "HE'S LIVING UP TO HIS FAN MAIL!"

Betty Bronson approves of the furless coat for semi-sport and street wear. The latest addition to her wardrobe is an all-enveloping coat of reversible blue woolen material, interwoven with gold thread. The cuffs, pocket incurstations, and scarf are made of the wrong side of the material, which is not only darker in tone but high-lighted with the metal threads.

MOVIE LOVE :-: BIRTHDAY PARTY :-: A NEWCOMER

Rod La Rocque helps Billie Dove put the romance in the Elinor Glyn drama, "The Man and the Moment," now in the filming.

OUR DAILY SHORT STORY

THE KNOCKOUT

By MELVILLE CLAYTON COLEMAN

IT WAS the last game of the season. The Circle Five were trying to win the amateur basketball championship of the Metropolitan District from the Tigers, who had held it for the past five years.

Tom O'Leary, the young star of the Circle Five, was racing about the court like one possessed. A dozen times the Tigers took the lead only to have the score tied soon after by his brilliant shooting.

The truth of the matter was that Tommy was hardly aware of the fact that he was on a basketball court. Babe was there, sitting near the front. His Babe, with her new fellow—a prize fighter. Every time Tom looked at the sleek youth sitting alongside of Babe, he saw red. He felt like smashing things with his fists. He played like a maniac, venting his fury on his opponents.

The score was tied with two minutes to go. Frenziedly Tommy caged a last-minute basket, winning the game and the championship for the Circle Five.

Trotting back to the dressing room with his teammates, a foot suddenly shot out from the shouting mob that lined the path, tripping him up. As Tommy crawled on his hands and knees, he caught a glimpse of sleekly pomaded hair and a tight-fitting dark suit disappearing into the crowd. Some hard loser who had bet his money on the Tigers venting his fury on Tommy, the principal cause of his loss.

Tommy leaped up from the floor, whirled the fellow around, and crashed his fist into his jaw, laying him out flat on his back. Then he proceeded to the dressing room. Tommy felt better now. If Babe liked prize fighters, he would have to be one. This was the last time he would play basketball.

The following afternoon with hope in his heart, Tommy went up to Jack Martin's gymnasium. He would ask Jack to teach him how to fight, and then he would show Babe how good her new boy friend was when stacked up against a real fighter.

Jack Martin, an old battle-scarred ringman, sparred with Tommy for awhile and raised his hopes to the highest when he told him that his wallop had the kick of a mule.

Then Jack asked Tommy if he could take it. Tommy answered that he didn't know. Suddenly, up from nowheres, a sledge hammer seemed to come and pound Tommy's jaw. Everything grew black.

Tommy was brought back to consciousness by the contents of a bucket of water. Jack helped him to his feet. "It's no use, kid," he said, "I only tapped you, and you went out like a light. You've got a glass jaw. It's a shame too, 'cause you've got everything else. But you'll never be a fighter with that jaw."

Tommy somehow made his way home, his heavy heart weighing each step with lead.

That night Tommy sat alone in his room, once again reading the letter Babe had sent him when she began going around with the prizefighter:

"Dear Tommy:—

"I'm sorry, but it's all off between us. We had some good times together but I've met a real fellow now. He's a prizefighter. Some day he'll be the champion and will be able to buy the one he marries everything she wants.

"He says he'll beat you up if you come near me any more, so you had better not try to see me again. This is goodby. Wishing you lots of luck, I am,

"Your old totsy,

"BABE."

Tommy's shoulders sagged and his head fell forward on his arms. It had been two weeks of torture since he had received that letter. Two weeks of terrible loneliness without Babe. And now, without the soothing balm of hope, he was worse off than he had been before. What could he, an 18-year-old boy, do against a seasoned ringman? His head felt as though it would burst.

From the depths of despair Tommy was summoned back up into the world of reality by the ringing of the telephone. Still in a daze he picked up the receiver and breathed a listless "Hello?"

"That you, Tommy?" came a shrill feminine voice, trembling with eagerness.

Tommy's heart leaped and his whole being suddenly sprang to life. "Babe, Babe, gee, but it's great to hear your voice, kid," he cried.

"Then, you aren't mad at me?"

"No. Why?"

"Oh, you know why. Gee, Tommy(but you did some great shooting last night."

"Do you think so?"

"I'll say so. I'll bet you join the Celtics some day, and make a lot of money."

"Yeah, I suppose so." What good would money be without having Babe to spend it on?

"Say, Tommy, there's a wow of a picture over at the Arcade tonight. I'd like to go."

Tommy's heart leaped with joy and then sank and sank when he remembered the prize fighter's warning. It would be wonderful to go out with Babe again, but it would be terrible if the prize fighter carried out his threat and gave him a licking in front of Babe. He knew Babe. She would never look at him again. "What about yer prize fighter fellow? Won't he say anything?" he asked, his heart in his mouth.

For a moment Tommy sat there absolutely dumbfounded. Then he started up as he suddenly realized the meaning of what he heard. It had been the prize fighter whom he had knocked out the night before! "I'll be right over," cried Tommy as he hung up the receiver. Then in a fever of motion he picked up his cap and sped out of the door.

Escaped Morganza Youth Hunted Here

Police today were asked to search for Andrew Skupiem, 15, of Winber, who escaped from the Pennsylvaina Training School for Boys at Morganza last night. City detectives learned he had been seen in McKees Rocks early today.

NEW DRAMAS ON STAGE, SCREEN

Helen Hayes comes to the Alvin Monday in "Coquette," a drama of life in a small Virginia town. This production adds another interesting role to the many Miss Hayes has portrayed, including ones in "Clarence," "Bab," "Penrod," "Dear Brutus," "To the Ladies" and "What Every Woman Knows."

Horace Liveright will present "Dracula," heralded as a thrilling, chilling, mystery vampire play, next week in the Nixon. Past mystery thrillers are bedtime stories as compared with "Dracula," it is claimed.

"Skidding," a comedy of American life, will be next week's stage attraction in the Pitt. There will be matinees Thursday and Saturday.

Nan Halperin, who starred in "Little Jessie James" and many other musical comedies, will share headline honors with Kenneth Harlan, former movie star, in the two-a-day Keith-Albee-Orpheum vaudeville program which opens in the Davis Monday.

The screen attraction in the Penn next week will be "The Canary Murder Case," a talking picture. The cast includes William Powell, James Hall, Louise Brooks and Jean Arthur. "Cooling Off," featuring Teddy Joyce, will be on the stage.

Milton Burro, known as the miniature Eddie Cantor, and the Wilson Sisters will be featured with Al Moore's U. S. Navy Jazz Band on the Stanley stage next week. Colleen Moore in "Why Be Good? will be the screen feature.

Annette Kellerman, in an exhibition called "The Mermaid in the Crystal Bowl," will be the stage feature in the Sheridan Square the first half of next week. The screen feature will be George Jessel in "Lucky Boy," a song and talk comedy.

COMEDIAN FEATURED

The stage vaudeville in the Harris the first half of next week will be headed by Harry L. Cooper and his four funmakers in a skit, "Miles of Smiles." George Jessel in his talking and singing picture, "Lucky Boy," will be on the screen.

"Peaches," shimmy dancer, and Joe Van, featured comic, will be seen in the cast of "Laffin' Thru," a Mutuel Burlesque production, which opens in the Academy with a midnight show Sunday night.

Lia Tora, Brazilian beauty contest winner, has a role in "Making the Grade," next week's synchronized screen feature in Loew's Aldine. Edmund Lowe and Lois Moran are in the stellar roles. The story is by George Ade, American humorist.

BILLS OPEN TODAY

"Seven Footprints to Satan" opens a week's engagement on Enright screen today. Dick Powell, master of ceremonies, conducts a new stage show.

George Stone, who appears with Dolores Costello and Conrad Nagel in "The Redeeming Sin," opening in the Regent today played as his first screen part the role of "the rat" in "Seventh Heaven."

Third Travel Talk At Mt. Zion Church

"Our Sufficient Saviour" is the subject selected by the Rev. David E. Maxwell, pastor of Mt. Zion Lutheran Church, South Evaline street, for his Sunday morning sermon. Vesper service will be held at 8 o'clock in the evening, at which a third travel talk in a series will be given by the Rev. W. Roy Goff. This talk will be illustrated by slides and motion pictures.

Strauss Program By Heinroth Tonight

Tonight in Carnegie Music Hall, instead of the usual recital program, Dr. Heinroth will deliver the fourth of a series of six lectures, the subject being: "Strauss; Richard the Second." The following compositions will be used to illustrate the lecture: Serenade in E Flat, Traumerei, Dance of the Seven Veils from "Salome," and Symphonic Poem "Death and Transfiguration," all by Strauss. The organ recital program at 4 o'clock Sunday afternoon will include the overture to "Raymond," Thomas; Andante from Violin Concerto, Mendelssohn; Allegro Vivace, from Fifth Symphony, Widor; Solitude on the Mountain, Ole Bull; Piece Heroique, Franck; "Mock Morris," Grainger, and Toccata in E Major, Bartlett.

PATRICIA PITT'S SPRIGHTLY COMMENT ON PITTSBURGH'S SOCIETY HAPPENINGS

Pittsburghers Active in Charity Affairs in Southland

"PARTYING" doesn't occupy the minds of the winter visitors in Florida to the extent that they forget others who are less fortunate than themselves, it seems. Perhaps you remember that for several years one of the department stores in West Palm Beach has arranged to contribute 10 per cent of its sales for one day to the Girl Scouts of the county, and this is always sponsored by a group of women from the winter colony. Last Wednesday was the day chosen this year for the benefit, and I understand that the Girl Scouts are planning to use the proceeds to rebuild their camp, which was destroyed by the hurricane. The Pittsburghers on the list of sponsors were Mrs. Maitland Alexander and Mrs. James Francis Burke, and among other well-known names were those of Mme. Louise Homer and Mrs. Florenz Ziegfeld.

There are so many social affairs down in Palm Beach just now that they are almost beyond recounting, and as I said before, many of the larger ones have a charitable basis. For instance, a great number of our local folks will be guests at a circus to be held tomorrow night on the spacious grounds of the Edward F. Hutton home, "Mar-A-Lago." And on Tuesday night, the Huttons will turn over the use of their home and the circus for a benefit performance. The Animal Rescue League will be the beneficiary, I understand, this organization being one which takes care of the stray dogs and cats left on the island when the winter visitors leave.

The annual costume ball held on Thursday night at the Everglades Club was a glamorous affair, from all reports that drift up from the South. Different eras in the world's history inspired the various costumes, although there were a few that were purely ludicrous. Edmund O'Brien, of New York, acted as master of ceremonies for the ball, which was attended by more than 500 members of the colony.

* * *

ST. PETERSBURG has been luring a number of Pittsburghers this season, it seems. They are still arriving there for more or less short visits, and among the latest to get there are Mrs. Harry S. Nicholson and Miss Hattie E. Wainwright. They are stopping at the Soreno Hotel, I believe.

* * *

FROM not quite so far South comes word of an engagement in which I know you will be interested. This is the announcement made by Mrs. Lawrence Barr, of this city, who is at her winter home, "Silva Nidus," at Pinehurst, of the betrothal of her daughter, Mrs. Jeanne Harriet Gray, to Brant Murry Saunders, of Montreal, Canada. So far as I know, there have been no definite wedding plans made.

* * *

RETURNING from the South are Mr. and Mrs. Richard Gundry Jennings and their family, of Irwin drive, Edgeworth. They have been in Miami Beach all winter and are arriving home early next week. The Walter Erwin Johnsons also have come north after a six weeks' stay in the South, and are spending a few days with Mrs. Johnson's mother, Mrs. Alfred B. Barlow, of Beaver road, Sewickley, before returning to their Minneapolis home.

* * *

I HEAR that the Junior League is joining with the Woman's Guild of the Shadyside Presbyterian Church in arranging a short series of Lenten talks to be given by the pastor of the church, the Rev. Dr. Hugh Thomson Kerr, at the home of Mrs. James H. Reed on the remaining three Tuesdays of March. The first will be given next Tuesday morning at 11 o'clock, the subject to be "Young People and Their Homes." On March 19, Dr. Kerr will discuss "Faith and the World of Fact," and for the final talk on March 26 he will speak on "After Death, What?"

* * *

MISS HAZEL M. GIEL, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William Giel, of the East End, has chosen April 17 as the date for her marriage to John J. Brennan, of Newport, R. I., and Pittsburgh. Miss Pauline E. Giel will be her sister's maid of honor and Harry Vaughan, of Newport, is to be best man.

* * *

"THE VARSITY COACH" is the title of the comedy to be presented next Thursday and Friday nights by the Senior Christian Endeavor Society of the Mt. Washington Presbyterian Church in the church gymnasium. This is an annual affair with the society, and the cast includes Miss Martha Partridge, Miss Beatrice Smith, Miss Martha Frazier, Miss Eleanor Kaufman, Miss Geneva Rice, Miss Imogene Rose, Rodney Snodgrass, Fred Wible, Ronald Austin, Kenneth Jackson and Lloyd Dague.

* * *

MISS MABEL G. WEIR, of South Braddock avenue, who is at the Hollywood Beach Hotel, Hollywood, Fla., has as her guest Miss Mary Fennerty, of Beechwood boulevard, who has been visiting in Miami, Fla.

* * *

MRS. EDITH M. CALDWELL, of Roselawn terrace, is visiting Judge and Mrs. E. C. McDougle, of Richmond, Ky.

* * *

* * *

NORTH SIDE CHAPTER No. 32, O. E. S., will hold a card party next Thursday afternoon in Oppenheim-Collins' auditorium. Mrs. Maud Shephard is general chairman.

* * *

A BRIDGE, "500" and euchre party will be held next Friday afternoon in Oppenheim-Collins' auditorium by Dorcas Chapter No. 491, O. E. S. Mrs. Margaret Dickson is in charge.

Amusing Talk Given By Leiber to Women

SO GREAT was the number of requests for places at the special luncheon given yesterday by the drama department of the Congress of Clubs, that many had to be turned away. Fritz Leiber, Shakespearean actor, and his wife, Miss Virginia Bronson, were the guests of honor. Mrs. Leiber spoke but a word or two upon being introduced by Mrs. Chester F. Johnston, drama chairman, but Mr. Leiber gave a most pleasing and amusing talk on Shakespeare, in which he included some sound advce to the play producing group of the department.

He pointed out that Shakespeare never forget "our cheapest and commonest sense" sight, and that all his plays can be understood through the eye alone, so plainly is each story told in its action. He advised approaching Shakespeare from an entertainment angle alone where children are concerned.

The musical tea which the American home department gave yesterday as a benefit for its "adopted" family was also well attended. The program, as presented by Mrs. S. H. Fuller, included soprano solos by Miss Esther B. Edmundson; readings by Miss Blanche H. Harlan; violin solos by Ralph G. White, accompanied by Mrs. B. H. Kensey and contralto numbers by Mrs. Jane Long Hervery, with Mrs. J. A. Esler as accompanist.

* * *

SOME changes have been made in the plans for the Wednesday Club of Pittsburgh. Guest day next week also will be the occasion of the club's annual luncheon. It will be held in the Morrowfield Hotel, and the program will consist of violin solos by Miss Janet Turner, and a talk on the season's plays by Elmer Kenyon, president of the Pittsburgh Center of the Drama League.

* * *

HUSBANDS of members will be guests of the Swissvale Woman's Club Monday night in the American Legion room, Carnegie Library. Mrs. A. W. Bass is in charge of the program, which will include numbers by a male quartet directed by C. W. Holmes; solos by Mrs. D. T. Price, readings by Mrs. L. N. Smith and an illustrated lecture on "Out of the Way Places in Pennsylvania," by Dr. Sidney K. Eastwood.

* * *

MRS. LUCY BIDDLE LEWIS, of Landsdowne, state president of the Women's International League For Peace, will preside at the state conference to be held March 19 in the Congress of Clubs. The national board of the league will convene in the Congress clubhouse March 20 and 21 with Miss Emily Balch, national president, in the chair.

* * *

COURT DUQUESNE, No. 659, Catholic Daughters of America, will have a rummage sale in East Liberty Friday and Saturday of next week. Mrs. B. J. Hannegan, grand regent, will be in charge.

* * *

OWING to illness among the members the program will be dispensed with at Wednesday's meeting of the New Era Club and a bridge party will follow the business session.

* * *

A BENEFIT bridge tea will be held on March 30 in McCreery's by the Pittsburgh Chapter of the Maryland College Club. Hostess will include Miss Agnes Pyle, the president; Mrs. Albert Supplee, Mrs. Winslow F. Sampson, Mrs. Robert Gunn and Mrs. E. W. Barberger.

Among Spring Brides

MRS. JAMES S. SEIBEL

ALVERNA HERSCHELL

These are among the spring brides. Mrs. Seibel was Miss Gertrude M. McCullough, daughter of I. Lindsey McCullough, Broad street, Washington, Pa., before her marriage to Mr. Seibel, a Pittsburgher. Miss Herschell is the daughter of Mrs. Hannah Herschell, East Beau street, Washington, and has chosen April 20 as the date for her marriage to Glenn Reed Thompson, Washington.

APRIL 15 NAMED "FOSTER DAY"

HARRISBURG, Pa., March 9.—Gov. Fisher yesterday indorsed the movement to raise funds for the erection of a memorial in Pittsburgh honoring Stephen C. Foster.

"Personally, and as governor, I approve the undertaking to memorialize Pennsylvania's greatest song writer, and commend the movement to all our citizens for their support and co-operation," he said.

"Monday, April 15, is designated as Stephen Collins Foster Memorial Day, and will introduce a 10-day campaign for the support of the memorial which it is proposed to erect as a tribute to his genius."

Sloan Committee Boosts Foster Fund

The Sarah B. Sloan Scholarship Committee has contributed to the Stephen C. Foster memorial building fund, it was announced at a meeting of the memorial committee yesterday. Arrangements were made for the Tuesday Musical Club to participate in the public appeal which is to be conducted next month.

Dr. Wishart to Talk On Zest in Religion

The Rev. Dr. W. I. Wishart, pastor of the Eighth United Presbyterian Church, Perrysville avenue at Burgess street, will preach Sunday morning at 10:30 o'clock on "Immortal Hope and the Present Task." "Religion With Constant Zest" is Mr. Wishart's theme for the evening service.

Sacred Heart Men To Worship in Body

On Sunday, at the 8:45 mass, the 1,392 men of the Sacred Heart Parish will receive Easter communion in a body. The entire middle aisle of the church will be reserved exclusively for men. An accurate record of the attendance will be kept and will be published as an honor roll.

"Respectable Sins," Mr. Wible's Theme

The Rev. C. B. Wible, pastor of the Presbyterian Church of Mt. Washington, will preach Sunday morning at 11 o'clock on "Where There Is No Vision." "Respectable Sins" is the theme for Mr. Wible's evening sermon.

AMERICAN TEMPERANCE PLAN URGED BY CROWELL

"America must have an American plan to solve its liquor problem and the best means of finding such a solution is through concentration of the thinking men and women of this country upon the competition for which William Randolph Hearst has offered his $25,000 Temperance Prize."

This was the expression yesterday of Benedict Crowell, of Cleveland, assistant secretary of war under President Wilson, and in charge of munitions during the World War. Maj. Crowell is one of many prominent Americans devoting much time to the study of the liquor problem. He went on to say:

"The Hearst plan is the best thus far advanced looking toward the light. It will bring out the needed American ideas as to what should be done and how. Foreign experiments with the liquor question are interesting, but many prove not to be applicable to our people and our needs.

"Canada prospers under government sales; Sweden leases the liquor monopoly to a syndicate, which takes a profit of 7 per cent and Finland—the only other country in the world supposed to be 'dry'—has bootleggers on the same style as ours."

Maj. Crowell denied that the election of Hoover was an indorsement of prohibition. Prohibition was a direct issue, he noted, in only two states—Massachusetts and Montana—and in both the "wets" won by a substantial majority.

7 Rules for $25,000 Temperance Contest

The purpose of the contest is to obtain a practicable plan, as a substitute for prohibition, which will secure better actual temperance conditions, which will be more easily possible of enforcement by state and Federal authorities, which will offer less encouragement to crime and tend less to debauch the public service, and which will not so outrage and violate the fundamental rights and personal liberties of American citizens.

The rules and conditions of the contest are simple and are as follows:

1—Every person is entitled to enter the contest, but no one person may submit more than one plan.

2—The practicable plan proposed as a substitute for prohibition must be set forth in an article containing not more than 1,000 words.

3—This contest will close April 30, 1929, and no plan which has not been mailed and postmarked on or before that date will be considered.

4—The articles submitted in the contest will be judged by a committee of eminent Americans, the personnel of the committee to be announced at a later date.

5—The full prize of $25,000 will be awarded to the contestant submitting the best plan as a practical temperance substitute for prohibition.

6—If other plans not awarded the first prize shall still be considered worthy of some compensation by the committee, a second prize of $5,000 and other prizes of $1,000 each may be awarded.

7—Articles submitting a plan to be considered in this contest may be sent to the temperance contest committee, care of the editor of any one of the following Hearst newspapers: Albany Times-Union, Atlanta Georgian, Baltimore News, Boston Evening American, Chicago Herald and Examiner, Detroit Times, Los Angeles Examiner, New York American, Omaha Bee-News, Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph, Rochester Journal, San Antonio Light, San Francisco Examiner, Syracuse Journal, Seattle Post-Intelligencer, Washington Herald, Wisconsin News (Milwaukee).

Felicia Joins Wild Midnight Bathing Frolic With Youthful Friends

WHAT HAS GONE BEFORE

Dick Stuyvesant and Felicia Brett, both in Reno for divorce, meet and fall in love with each other. With Dick at the hotel is a bachelor friend, John Berkeley, usually called J. B. Felicia, with her 6-year-old son, is visiting the Hodges, old friends from the East, now permanent residents of Reno. Her husband, Alexander Brett, comes to Reno and on her refusal to return to him, threatens to take little Alex away from her. He hires detectives to watch Felicia and has two gunmen kidnap the boy. The boy is rescued by an odd character known as the Desert Rat and restored to Dick and J. B., who are out looking for him with a member of the state police. From the report of his private detective, Brett learns that the Rat was once a prosperous broker, Stephen Pierce. Brett recognizes the name and laughs exultantly. With the failure of the kidnaping attempt and no more visits from Brett, Felicia believes that her husband has abandoned his opposition. Dick notices a change in her, an interest in Reno festivities, that makes him anxious. He has to go away on a business trip, but wishes that he did not have to leave her. Restless in Dick's absence, Felicia accepts an invitation from young Peg Hodge to drive with her and two college boys. Her escort, Billy Blair, is openly admiring. When he offers her his flask, she hesitates, then takes it and drinks. Under the influence of the liquor and a spirit of devil-may-care, she permits Billy to kiss her.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY.

CHAPTER XVIII.

SOME 18 miles south of Reno, silhouetted against the night sky, stood a darkened granite house, emblem of the days when gold poured from the Virginia City mines and the hot springs close by were fashionable for bathing.

In a dark clump of shrubbery, Felicia slipped off her last garment and stood, for a moment, like a little statuette in the starlight.

Peg, pulling on her own suit, laughed at her. "For a plugged nickel, Felicia, I'd take your clothes and run! Then what would you do! September morn on an August night!"

"Felicia!" Billy Blair's voice, impatient, dangerously near.

"Wait!" Felicia called out, in panic. "Peg, where did you put it? Peg Hodge—" She was on the verge of tears.

"Billy, y'oughta see your girl friend!" Peg shouted. "The poor child can't find her bathing suit! She—"

On the other side of the bushes his voice sounded: "I'll help look for it, I—"

"Billy, if you move another inch, I'm going home!" cried Felicia. "Peg, if you don't give me my suit—" She sneezed, and Billy's laughter rang out: "Go home? Yes you will—wearing a smile, I suppose!"

"Here y'are." Laughing, Peg handed Felicia the suit, a diminutive scrap of blue jersey, and Felicia pulled it on as the boy appeared around the bushes.

"Oh, you found it!" he said.

"You bet I found it!" Felicia made a face at him. "And if these springs are as warm as you all say they are, lead me to 'em. I'm shivering."

Figures darted about over the short grass, only vaguely outlined in the discreetly dim light of bobbing Japanese lanterns suspended from trees. Youthful laughter hung in the air.

Men and women from the divorce colony wandered here, sometimes, but it was an especial rendezvous for the younger set, the university crowd. Across the grass, someone had started a phonopragh—"Can't help lovin' that man of miun. . . ."

Billy slipped his arm about Felicia's slim waist and, barefooted, they danced across the lawn.

"Felicia!" He had stopped abruptly, not releasing her, and his voice trembled a little. "I think you're awful wonderful!" The sophisticated young man of the flask vanished before a blundering boy, confused by his own emotion.

"Why, Billy!" She moved lightly away from him. "Thank you." She danced on tiptoes down toward the pool, murmuring a snatch of song.

This was the youth of which she had been cheated, the gaiety which marriage with Brett had denied her!

"Oo-o-h!" With a little sigh of ecstasy she slipped into the tepid water. "Oh, this is heavenly!" She splashed about lazily, still humming to herself. "It's like bathing in warm milk!"

Finally she moved to the edge of the sand and lay on her side, cheek resting upon one wet, bare arm, with the warm water protecting her body from the cool air as though it had been a blanket. Billy Blair moved up beside her, his worshipful eyes on her face.

"You look like a mermaid, Felicia!"

"I feel like one!" She moved her hand lazily in the water, sending little ripples toward him. "What are you—a merman or a shipwrecked sailor?"

"Whatever you want me to be," he told her, and meant it.

Her laughter was low. Billy was frankly crazy about her—and what fun, to have a man watch you with his eyes on fire!

"You're the loveliest thing I ever saw!" he told her intensely.

She smiled. It was impossible to be serious. The night was enchanted—great black are above their heads, glittering with stars. . . .

"'And that inverted Bowl they call the Sky . . . whereunder crawling, cooped, we live and die . . .'" she quoted softly.

Beneath the water, his hand grasped hers. "'Yesterday this day's madness did prepare . . . tomorrow's silence, triumph, or despair. Drink! for you know not whence you came, nor why. Drink! for you know not why you go, nor where!'" He was silent as he finished the quotation. "We've been studying that this week. Old Omar—d'you think he was right, Felicia?"

"I wonder?" She pondered lazily upon the philosophy of one Omar Khayyam.

"The boy certainly enjoyed his liquor," Billy commented. "'Drink! for you know not—' How about a little drink, Felicia?"

She shrugged, and warm water rippled deliciously about her shoulders. "I suppose we'll be just plain parboiled if we don't get out of this water soon!" Lazily she kicked her white feet. "Oh, well!" She rose, like a modern Venus, from the waves—a twentieth century Venus in a one-piece bathing suit. "I'll run back and get dressed."

There was no sign of Peg, and in the shelter of the bushes Felicia dried herself leisurely. Dick would be back tomorrow—or next day. Dick! It seemed as though he had been gone a year. So many things had happened; she had changed so. What had made her change? She paused, drawing on a sheer silk stocking, and tried to think.

She loved Dick, didn't she? Of course she did! And yet. . . .

"Ready, Felicia?" It was Billy.

"Almost." Shivering, she dropped her dress over her crumpled hair, wriggling into it. Her hairpins were scattered and she had no mirror. Oh, well, what was the difference?

She emerged from the shadows, her light-brown hair tumbled about her shoulders.

"I think I have a sweater in the car," she said. "You know, it's cold!"

Billy held out the flask. "Much warmer'n any sweater ever made," he assured her, and Felicia drank.

"Let's run!" Felicia suggested. "Get our circulation up!"

Hand in hand they tore across the grass, heading for the woods that made mysterious shadows behind the old mansion. As they passed by a window, they heard a girl's voice from within, murmuring, laughing softly. Clean smell of pines, needles brittle beneath their feet. . . .

Beneath a tree, a boy and a girl were locked in one another's arms. Felicia looked away, embarrassed at having intruded, inwardly disturbed by the absorption of the two.

"Honestly, Peg, dear . . ." Joe's voice, pleading.

Felicia stopped short. This wood was no place to walk; there were as many lovers as there were trees. Maintaining an even balance, her embarrassment and her excitement heightened.

"Let's go back to the beach," she said, a little breathlessly.

He followed wherever she led. Back on the white sand, they sat down, and when he took her in his arms, she did not resist—not even when he lay back and drew her down beside him. The night throbbed with love—love and youth and starlight. Recklessly she returned his kisses; she could not think; she did not want to think!

Merely Margy, An Awfully Sweet Girl

Story by Lloyd Mayer

By John Held, Jr.

JONES, THIS YOUNG MAN MR. WEALTHINGTON IS THE FIRST MAN THAT I HAVEN'T BEEN ABLE TO MAKE FALL FOR ME. I'VE GIVEN HIM EVERYTHING BUT THE KITCHEN STOVE AND STILL HE REMAINS MARGY-PROOF!
I'LL MAKE HIM CLICK IF IT'S THE LAST THING I DO, I AM GOING TO TRY FLATTERY. I HAVEN'T SEEN A MAN YET THAT WOULDN'T FLOP FOR IT! IM PRETTY CERTAIN HE DOESN'T CARE FOR ANY OTHER GIRL!
I'LL GET HIM TO TEACH ME ALL SORTS OF SPORTS. AND WHAT'S MORE I'LL LET HIM WIN. I'LL SHOW HIM THAT HE'S A BIG STRONG MAN AND THAT I AM JUST POOR LITTLE ME!
I THINK HIS LACK OF INTEREST IN ME IS AN INSULT TO MODERN GIRLHOOD. BUT WE WON'T ADMIT DEFEAT YET, EH, JONES?
YEOUP!

"My dear, I was ALL-of-a-DOOdah about this fascinating BASil WEALTHington at this point because I'd NEVer in my life met a goofer who was so inDIF'rent, sort of, to my GIRLish BLANDishments and whatnot, because I mean so far as PROVing anything exCIting he was PRACticably the LAST cry of the HELPless when it came to making a roMANtic situation of it, do you know what I mean? HONestly, my dear, I COULDn't have been more THORoughly dePRESSED and all, because I was conVINCED he nurtured a SEcret infatuAtion for me, but how could a girl with an unUSual amount of self-respect such as I've ALways disPLAYED, DO anything about a situation of that kind, my dear? I mean I CERtainly wasn't going to pursue the oaf and let him think I was MADly in LOVE with him at this point because that would have SIMply ruined EV'rything as well as conveying the imPRESH that I CRAVED him, which wasn't the POINT because while he inTRIGUED me and all, he was ACtually no GOOSEflesh to me, my dear, only it made me simply LIVid his preTENDing he could ignORE me as if I was just a SILLY little SHIMmy-fluffer without a BRAIN in my HEAD, do you know what I mean? Well, ANYways, my dear, the PUP and I had a treMENdous CONfab and we BOTH decided the thing for me to DO at this point was to FLATter Basil or something—can you BEAR it, my dear?"

Father Sees the Light; Business Salvation of Polly and Mother

WHAT HAS GONE BEFORE

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY.

CHAPTER VI.

KEITH had loved love and would have braved almost anything on earth for it, but suddenly he saw himself and his passion as they must appear in the eyes of his wife. He could see how the fact that his wife was fat and stupid and homely would only make his betrayal of her the more cruel and the more heinous.

He knew that if she had any genius it was for hatred and ruthlessness. She was one of the deadliest gossips and the most merciless punishers of misbehavior in town. What wouldn't she do to Mrs. Carter, and to him, if her suspicions were confirmed?

He was crushed with terror, and he found himself so resourceless that Polly hazarded a suggestion.

"You couldn't send her away, could you, before she breaks loose?"

"No, I couldn't. The doctors have been advising her for years to go to some cure here or abroad. You see, her extreme fleshiness and drowsiness are not really due to gluttany or laziness. She's not well. But I've never been able to persuade her to go away."

"Have you thought of going away with her?"

"Well, I—I've been very busy." That sounded better than confessing how he had dreaded the thought of such a journey. Polly smiled woefully:

"Looks to me as if you're going to be very busy indeed if you don't get her out of town."

"I suppose I could take her somewhere. It will be very sad to leave your mother."

"There won't be much left of mother if you stay. It makes it different, sort of, to learn that your wife has been so ill. The poor thing! I thought she was just mean for meanness's sake."

"Nobody is that, I suppose, if the truth were known. Well, I'll think it over. I'll talk to her about it."

"You'd better not put it on the ground of doing her a favor," Polly ventured. "She might be suspicious of any sudden anxiety about her health. Can't you cook up some trouble of your own? Haven't you got a liver or something?"

"I should say I have. I might get my doctor to prescribe Carlsbad. He'll prescribe anything for anybody. Europe is a long way off, but if it can cheat the newspapers of a few headlines, it will be worth it."

Polly rose to go and he towered over her, looking down at her with such dreary eyes that she stood on tiptoe and gave him the kiss she had denied him when he came in.

As she went out in the depths of gloom, she encountered her father just coming in from court with a double armload of books and a bulging briefcase. Her eyes kindled with new fire. She seized him by the elbow and went right in with him. He was exceedingly busy and told her so frankly. When she sat down he asked her how much money she needed. When she said she hadn't come for money but for something far more important, he asked her if she couldn't wait till after office hours.

"No, I can't!" she stormed. "Papa, you listen to me now, or you'll be sorry. I've been home for a week and looked things over and I think I ought to tell you that I'm advising mamma to sue you for divorce."

If papa's feet had not caught under his desk he would have done a back somersault. She straightened him up and rushed on:

"Has it never occurred to you that you are treating mother like a dog? That she's the last thing on earth you think of? That you care more for the least of your million committees than you do for her heart's blood?"

"Polly, have you gone—"

"She's nothing but a chambermaid, a landlady. You don't even pay her wages. You just pay the bills and dole out enough to keep her alive so that she can go on suffering."

With all the poltroonery of an American father before a daughter, he whimpered:

"Good Lord, Polly, have you gone mad?"

"I certainly have! And I'm going to bite you if you don't reform. And mamma's so beautiful and young! I heard a very handsome man say the other day that she was the prettiest thing in town and he was going to steal her some night when you were away at a board meeting or a banquet. Any night would do, for you're always away. You wouldn't know it if she was stolen."

"Do you realize who you're talking to, young woman?"

"I realize perfectly, old man. I'm talking to a blind deaf mute, a married man who thinks he's a bachelor—a father who's forgotten his children. My name's Polly, and I'm your youngest. You used to know me quite well in my younger days."

Her father looked into the fierce eyes of the young fury and gave up as usual.

"I think you've gone stark staring crazy, but if you'll hush, I'll do whatever you want me to do. What is it?"

"Either give Mamma divorce on the ground of desertion—"

"Desertion?" he roared. "Why, I'm home every night!"

"That's the worst kind of desertion. When a husband sails away and leaves a wife flat she has her freedom and she can look about. But when he sticks around the house all the time and simply deserts her—er—spiritually—why he's simply a pest. A woman in such a plight can't have a lover in peace because she never can be sure that her husband won't blunder in."

"I guess that doesn't worry your mother. She isn't bothered with any lovers. Huh, huh! well, hardly!"

"I suppose you mean that for a compliment, but it's the dog-ondest insult a man can offer a woman. What do you think Mamma is? A human icebox, or what?"

"Don't you dare imply that your mother could possibly—"

"And you'd better not be too sure that she couldn't possibly."

He looked her over as if she were a specimen of something.

"I was afraid that college course and these modern notions would ruin you! And they've done it."

"I know. I ought to wash behind the ears, but you'd better change your oculist."

"Will you stop your nonsense and go home and let me attend to my business?"

"You'd better go home and attend to your business. There's a lot of it right there that needs your attention. Mamma and I are a couple of clients that are going to change our lawyer if you don't look spry."

She went. But he could not keep his mind on his desk. It was hovering about his home, dallying with crazy pictures of his wife surrounded by a flock of handsome heroes paying court to her. He lied out of a most important meeting of the hospital board that night and when he went home he put on a sheepish smile and kissed his wife as gracefully as a gawky schoolboy kisses a maiden aunt to order. And he fumbled at a compliment.

For days Polly watched him trying to play the role that was thrust upon him, but he had never been a Romeo in his youngest days and he was hopeless now.

His wife began to worry about him, and she spoke to Polly about his queer behavior. She did not speak of a greater worry, the queerer behavior of Walter Keith. He did not come to see her.

Then one afternoon he called on her. Polly stood guard on the front porch so that no one should interrupt what she felt was going to be a scene of bitter difficulty for two sad people.

She imagined pretty accurately what Walter Keith was saying:

"Mary, my doctor has ordered me abroad at once. Don't worry. He says I'll be all right if I take the cure at Aix-les-Bains or one of those places. I'd almost rather die than leave you but I'm sentenced to death if I stay."

Polly could hear a little cry from her mother, quickly stifled perhaps in her lover's arms. But she knew how to be brave. She had had much practice in being brave. She had seen her father and her mother die, had buried two children, and given to the war a son whose body was a part of some bit of American soil in France. She could stand things. She had lived. She could stand things particularly well if they were to someone's else advantage.

Her smile was a trifle wan and wet with salt from her glistening lashes, but she told Walter how glad she was that he was going, how important it was that he should save himself. It was altogether her wish that he should go.

It was lucky that Polly waited on the front porch for Mrs. Keith came up the walk, waddling like a turkey overfed for Christmas. Polly told her that her mother was upstairs sewing, and made her sit on the porch, while she went to fetch her. Polly could have sent Mrs. Keith away by using a different lie but she felt that it was best for everybody if Mamma's ordeal were not too mercilessly prolonged.

As she went through the hall she picked up Keith's hat and stick where he had left them and took them to him where he stood very close to Mamma.

She whispered:

"Mrs. Keith is on the porch calling to you, Mamma, and I thought that if Mrs. Keith had to hurry back to the office, he could get out through the rosebushes to the alley. Of course, if he wants to see her, he can, but I know how busy he is."

By and by her mother appeared, rather red-eyed and sniffly, but alleging a bad cold as an excuse for her appearance. It also served as an excuse for keeping at a distance from Mrs. Keith's fervent embrace, for the poor woman was all friendship and rapture now, quaking mountainously with it. She explained that her poor dear husband had been ordered abroad for his health, and had begged her not to desert him in his hour of need. She had consented, of course, but she confided to Mamma the fact that she was really not so well herself and she was going to take the cure, too, and come back a regular sylph of slenderness. She confessed that it was going to be a regular second honeymoon. Walter was acting like a regular lover. In fact, everything was going to act regular from then on.

Polly supposed that in the long run it was best to have everything regular, but she could see that her mother was taking it rather hard. She was realizing that Walter Keith's motives were not exactly what he had described.

If he had been the complete lover that he thought he was, he would have asked her to go abroad with him to save his life. But he was taking another woman. He was wise and sane, yet in her eyes a little of a coward and a conformer. Polly felt this, too, but she supposed that only young people can afford elopements and dramatic escapades.

Her mother's life was emptier than ever now and she had no comforter but Polly, to whom she dared not even mention the cause of her torment.

Polly cast about for some escape, some diversion, and finally one day there came to her the inspiration that has given such multitudes of women wings of late.

"Mamma," she said, "we women have been a pack of idiotic sheep for ten thousand years. Men are awful pills, but we have to have them around; they have to have us around, I suppose. But we've never yet learned the one thing that's born in their thick heads. Every blamed one of them has some ambition or job outside the home if it's only sport or gambling or dissipation.

"Love is one liquor that they can take or leave alone. But we've got to go and make it the be-all and end-all of existence.

"Here you are, the finest, wisest, most fascinating woman that ever lived, and all you do is to sit around and wait for papa to come home or go away.

"I tell you no man is ever going to get me in such a mess. No man is ever going to get me at all until I have a job or a career of my own, and my own salary or wages, and my own freedom and ambition.

"We'll get married like two free souls or not at all and I'll give my husband exactly the treatment he gives me. Love will be a pleasant detail with me as much as with him. I'll have a few babies, but they don't take much time really, and it's better for babies not to baby them too much.

"We baby everybody too much. We're always making wet nurses of ourselves. It's wrong, mamma. Let's me and you start out now and get into some business of our own."

Her mother listened like a wide-eyed child, yet she sighed:

"But I've got no talent, no ability, no specialty. I don't know anything."

"Neither does anybody else. But we can learn, can't we? We could open a shop and sell something, couldn't we? We could make something if it's only biscuits or brassieres. At worst we could take in washing, mow lawns, anything so it's something.

"Papa is a noble old scout but his heart is no longer in his home. He loves us as dearly as his old slippers and his smoking jacket. He merely wants to find us where he left us when he wants us.

"Let's make up a firm—Carter & Daughter, Incorporated or Limited, or—"

"It will be mighty limited with me," her mother whispered, "but maybe there might be something I could do."

"Something?" cried Polly. "There's everything. Why isn't the world before us as much as it is before any of the men? Come on, Mamma, let's form a partnership and get busy at something—anything that has a future to it. Then we'll either be happy or too busy to notice it if we're not. Let's go into business!"

"Let's!" said her mother, and the light in her eyes, though it was dim, seemed to change from the twilight after sunset to the twilight before sunrise.

THE END.

How to Keep Well

By DR. ROYAL S. COPELAND

Abuse of the Eyes a Common Human Fault

IT is a long time since I have spoken about the eyes. How miserable one can be if the eyes get sore or the sight is impaired from any cause. Today I shall say something about these precious organs. One of my colleagues in the Senate is blind. I often look upon him with admiration. He seems so cheerful and is so devoted to his work that it is difficult to believe he is absolutely without sight. But he follows the debates and takes part in them just as if he could see. With it all he is happy.

DR. COPELAND

Sometimes I close my eyes to find how it would seem not to see. I am thankful I am not blind and I know you are, too.

Fortunately, blindness is an uncommon ailment. Very few members of society are thus afflicted.

But neglect and abuse of the eyes are just about as common as any of the human faults. It is surprising how prone we are to forget things which are really important. When you consider how necessary eyesight is and how dependent we are on it, it would seem to be a natural thing to look after the eyes. But we don't.

Eyes are subject to two chief disturbances. In the first place, these organs are exposed to wind and weather, to dust and dirt, to infections conveyed by unclean hands. In consequence, it is not uncommon to suffer the pain of a foreign body in the eyes or an inflammation of some sort.

There is a passageway leading from the inner corner of the eye to the nose. An acute or chronic catarrhal condition of the nose may extend up this canal, the tear duct, to the eye. Then there is inflammation.

Besides these inflammatory condition, eyestrain may cause congestion and discomfort in the eyes. Almost always this can be overcome by getting properly fitted glasses.

There is a popular prejudice against glasses, or "specs," as lots of folks call them. "I just won't wear glasses," is a common expression.

Why not? They are a nuisance, of course. Since I have to wear them most of the time, I can testify to this. But they are such a comfort, too. To have all that hazy uncertainty about type, the numbers in the telephone book, and the beauties of nature—to have that blurring disappear by the wearing of well-fitted lenses, is a joy, indeed.

You must not be foolish about glasses. If they are really needed, you are doing your eyes serious harm by neglecting to wear them. By all means be sensible about it.

After the age of 40 there is a gradual failure in the distinctness of near vision. It may be possible to see all distant objects, but things nearby are not clear. This is known as "presbyopia," or aging vision.

Headaches, neuralgia, inability to think clearly—these are a few of the symptoms noted by the victim himself. These uncomfortable feelings disappear when the lenses are worn.

Watch your eyes and eyesight. It pays to give early attention to any symptoms which indicate trouble with the seeing organs.

Answers to Health Queries

E. C. Q.—What can you tell me regarding neurasthenia?

Neurasthenia is difficult to relieve, because it requires so much faith and persistence. You require a thorough physical examination including the teeth, tonsils and urine. The intestinal tract must be made to function. Sleep, rest, fresh air, gentle exercise, change of scene and diversion are essential. With good sense and proper care you will feel yourself once again.

* * *

T. W. Q.—What would you advise for a pain in the breast with swelling once in a while; at other times there seems to be nothing unusual? I am 48 years of age.

A.—I would suggest a careful examination; if there is swelling and pain there must be some abnormality and it would be wise to make sure.

* * *

A. E. O. Q.—I have a friend and the slightest touch on any part of her body leaves a black and blue mark. What causes this condition?

A.—This is probably due to a circulatory disturbance.

* * *

P. B. Q.—What do you advise for stopping children from biting their fingernails?

* * *

MISS E. H. Q.—Will fallen arches cause the balls of the feet to ache?

2. Do you advise treatment for dandruff?

2. Yes.

* * *

ANXIOUS. Q.—Since the birth of my child, I have had two brown conspicuous marks on my upper lip. What would cause this condition and how can the marks be eradicated?

A.—They are very likely liver spots caused by faulty elimination. Watch your diet, drink copiously of water between meals and keep the system clear.

HER FIRST TRIUMPH

Drawn by Dorothy Flack

FROM the time she learns her A B C's and gradually finds that putting them together weaves the most fascinating tales of romance, you'll always find her with a book. How she revels in the tales of the Knights and their ladies fair; and what dreams she dreams of the Prince who is to come and carry her off. And finally she meets him and Love claims her—and then what?

No more stories of romance for her! She has found her Prince and Love and Happiness have come to her. But the time of her very first and greatest triumph is after she has read reams and reams of cook books and recipes, and experimented with things until she almost gives up in despair and burns her dainty fingers, and at last—makes a pie that fairly bristles with toothsomeness—THAT'S the greatest triumph of her life!

And when at last she puts it before him and he exclaims over its deliciousness—then she's repaid for all the tears and fears! The triumph of Love! And it's just such little things as this that it brings its great manifestations.

LOVE'S AWAKENING

A CONTINUATION OF LOVE'S EMBERS

By ADELE GARRISON

Harry's Effort to Learn Destination of Letter Is Partly Successful.

I CAUGHT my breath in exasperation at the ridiculous masculine obtuseness of Harry Underwood. I had asked him to curb the flamboyant familiar nicknames which had so annoyed Marion. But I had not meant that he should go to the other extreme of treating Lillian with formal courtesy which from him was far more absurd and noticeable than his slangy manner had been.

Lillian's face was a study. For once her poker face forsook her and she frankly stared at him, while in her eyes there was a look of hurt bewilderment. It was as if, I told myself, someone had suddenly snatched away a staff upon which she had leaned more than she dreamed.

Over her unconscious head Katherine and I exchanged exasperated glances while Dicky, standing negligently near Junior, watched Harry with an inscrutable expression on his face. Mother Graham noticed nothing, I think, unless it was to approve Mr. Underwood's improved manners—she frankly dubs him uncouth sometimes—Mary had disappeared inside the house, while Marion was so absorbed in her triumph over driving that I saw she would not alight upon the earth for some time to come.

It was but a second or two before Lillian answered her husband's inquiry. When she did, her response was equable, and couched in her usual manner.

"Oh! I'm ever so much better, thank you, Harry," she said. "But tell me about the drive. Did you have any trouble getting your license, Marion?"

"Not after they found out I really had been born," Marion said with a giggle. "Wasn't it lucky you sent for the certificate of my birth register when I entered school last fall. One of the girls tipped me off I'd better get a copy of it all notaried and everything, so I could spring it when I asked for a learner's license. Of course, I could have said I was of age, but that wouldn't have been cricket."

"I knew you wouldn't do that," her mother said fondly. "But I'm glad you had your documents along. Now sit down and tell me more about it, your trip, I mean. I'm wonderfully thrilled to think my girl did so well."

She made room on the couch beside her, and Harry Underwood caught my eye.

"Will you come out and give the once over to that devilish rear seat cushion, Lady Fair?" he asked. "I had the man go over it, but I want your O. K. on it. How about it, Mother Graham? If the lady puts her approval on the seat, will you honor me by driving with me this afternoon?"

Mother Graham bridled and smiled.

"If you're sure there's no one else who ought to go in my place," she said. "But surely there's room for all of us in that car."

"No, this ride is just for you," Mr. Underwood told her, "unless you have somebody especial you want to take with you."

Junior looked pleadingly at me, but I nodded my head toward Katherine. I did not wait to hear her decision, for Mr. Underwood was already holding the door open for me, and I went with him down the steps to the car.

I knew very well what he wanted and was glad that he made the excuse of inspecting the seat cushion to get me away from the veranda. He waited until we reached the car and pretended to be showing me the cushion while he spoke low and hurriedly.

"Mary posted a letter at Riverhead all right," he said, "but she was too sharp for me. I didn't get but a fleeting glance at one end of the envelope."

Correct Manners

By MRS. CORNELIUS BEECKMAN

The Small Wedding

DEAR MRS. BEECKMAN:

Will you kindly tell me if it is good form to wear a veil and the groom a dark blue business suit at an afternoon wedding?

2. Are tan or black oxfords proper for the groom? I've heard that black should be worn.

3. If one is having a small wedding are invitations necessary?

C. F.

NO. When the bride wears the formal bridal costume—as indicated by the bridal veil—the groom should dress according to this formality, and therefore should wear cutaway coat and dark striped trousers.

2. Black. Tan oxfords would not be informal—they would be casual!

3. Not formally engraved invitations. For a small, informal wedding, written invitations are consistent and appropriate.

Offering Your Hand

DEAR MRS. BEECKMAN:

1. A says it is improper for a young lady to offer her hand to a man acquaintance when they meet after a long absence, and also when introduced to either a lady or gentleman. B thinks it is proper.

2. When guests gather around the dinner table at a formal or informal dinner and some of them are delayed a minute or two, should those present remain standing until the absent ones have joined them, or should the ladies be seated immediately and only the gentlemen remain standing?

LILLIAN.

WHEN we meet a friend after a long absence, it is natural to shake hands, and the lady usually offers hers. Of course, if the acquaintanceship is only a casual one, the lady would not offer her hand.

For the usual introduction, when a gentleman is introduced to a lady, she does not shake hands, nor does she shake hands with another lady.

2. Usually the ladies take their seats, but the gentlemen must remain standing.

In Revolving Doors

DEAR MRS. BEECKMAN:

It surely is not etiquette to wager, but that I have; on my last question. Here they are:

1. On approaching a revolving door, should the gentleman go first to propel the door for the lady, or should he render the usual courtesy by letting her go first?

2. On a street car the gentleman alights first to assist the lady off, but should he precede her all the way from their seats to the platform?

3. Is it correct, or even permissible, to hold any boned meat, such as chops or chicken, in the fingers while eating them?

H. G. B.

IT may not be etiquette to wager, but I gloat over etiquette questions that are wagered about. I always thoroughly enjoy the many letters that begin "We have had an argument about—"

1. The gentleman allows the lady to enter first, but as she enters, he gently starts the door and its revolving career. Gently, I said, so that the door doesn't start too soon, and still so that the lady doesn't have to give it its first more difficult push.

2. Yes, thus "carving the passage" for her.

3. No! Do you win? Really it is disgusting to sit opposite a person who is struggling with a chicken bone in the fingers. And too terrible to sit opposite a person greedily and messily crunching a chop.

Entertain Him

DEAR MRS. BEECKMAN:

If a stranger presents a letter of introduction, just how should one entertain the newcomer? He is just a transient from the city for a short time and stopping at a hotel. C. S.

ONE is expected to do something in the way of entertaining. That depends on one's circumstances. Of course, a dinner invitation is always the most desired of invitations, and this should be extended, if possible. Or Sunday afternoon tea is a charming invitation, if dinner is inconvenient.

Horoscopes

Sunday, March 10

SUNDAY'S horoscope accents the things of church and state, philanthropy and metaphysical leanings and activities. Otherwise affairs may be those of the Sabbath, excepting for a sinister figure hinting of danger to person and property. Precaution and self-control are admonished.

Those whose birthday it is may have a fairly active year, with some change, but there is a figure calling for a safeguard for person and property as well as for a supervised disposition.

A child born on this day may be talented, ambitious, fond of change and should be fairly successful financially. But there is a menace of personal danger and hazards to property.

The Saints will aid if men will call.—Coleridge.

Monday, March 11

MONDAY'S astrological forecast favors those in the employment of others. It is an auspicious time for approaching superiors and those in authority for advancement, favors and increase of salary. It is also a good time for renewing contracts. Beware small losses and extravagances.

Those whose birthday it is may look for a year of advancement, promotion or recognition from superiors or those in places of authority. It is a time to push for these and to renew contracts.

A child born on this day may be well endowed with talents and characteristics for success, either in employment, in business or in literary vocations. It should attain good position and be popular with those in authority.

Baked Beef Croquettes

Chop rather fine, enough roast beef to make two cupfuls. Add to it a grated onion, pepper, salt, a little sugar, a teaspoonful of Worcestershire sauce, a beaten egg, a tablespoonful of applesauce, and a small cupful of fine crumbs. Form into small croquettes, roll in beaten egg, then in very fine crumbs to which a tablespoonful of powdered nuts have been added; place on a buttered baking dish and bake in a slow oven until a delicate brown. Make a celery cream sauce for the croquettes. Chop a cupful of celery leaves and outside pieces rather fine, and stew in a cupful of water gently for 20 minutes. Drain and add to the liquid an equal quantity of milk. Thicken with roux, season with pepper, salt and a little sugar. Dish the croquettes on a hot dish, pour over the sauce, garnish with toast sippets and parsley.

CARDS OFFER ONLY RHEM FOR BUC

SOME club officials in the major baseball leagues are not above deception or bold faking at times when they think that such a course will make them look good to their patrons and give the latter the impression that nothing is being spared to put a winning team on the field. One ancient racket is to offer publicly huge sums of money for star players whom they know in their hearts they cannot possibly obtain for any amount of cash, and another is grossly to exaggerate the prices they have paid for youngsters bought from the minors. If a rookie is purchased for $15,000 or $20,000, the fans are led to believe that the cost was close to six figures.

Flint Rhem.

Now comes the St. Louis National League club with a new line. Stories published in the Mound City newspapers say the Cardinal bosses have allowed the "information" to leak out that they tried to move heaven and earth early this winter to get Glenn Wright from the Pittsburgh club before that player was traded to Brooklyn. The fans are being told that the Redbird chiefs made four different fabulous offers for the former Pirate shortstop, planning to use him at second base, and that they failed to obtain him only because Barney Dreyfuss and Donie Bush refused to strengthen a possible pennant rival.

ACCORDING to the St. Louis yarns, the Pittsburgh management replied: "No, absolutely no. You won't get him. And the same goes for our other pennant rivals, the Giants and Cubs." Pure hokum, from start to finish. Far from being unwilling to dicker with a pennant rival, it is a well-known fact that New York was the first club with which Pittsburgh tried to make a deal for Wright. An effort was made to trade him for Travis Jackson, but Manager McGraw declined the proposition.

However, that part of the story isn't the most glaring misrepresentation. The latter is contained in the intimation that four fabulous offers were made for Wright. The truth is that St. Louis made only one offer for the shortstop, and that was of a nature to cause only a laugh. Though Billy Southworth is supposed to be manager of the Cards, it was Branch Rickey, who in one of his big-hearted moments, generously suggested an even-up trade in which he would turn over to Pittsburgh in exchange for Wright nothing more (it couldn't well be less) than Pitcher Flint Rhem. The proposal was so absurd that the Pirate management, of course, never even considered it. The value of Rhem is attested by the fact that he is now pitching for Minneapolis.

WHILE the owners of big racing stables are hunting high and low for promising young jockeys, there steps into the picture a figure seemingly bent on demonstrating that age doesn't matter on the turf. Perhaps you noticed that Mijigado, the winning horse in one of the races at the Miami track the other day, was ridden by Arthur Murray.

Arthur Murray.

Well, Murray is none other than the veteran "Red Coat." He is 54 years old, a grandfather, and easily the oldest active jockey in the world. And yet his recent victory indicates that he is far from having outlived his turf usefulness as a rider. Aside from that he is one of the most valuable men around the winter tracks in general respects, being particularly expert at the handling of unruly horses.

SPEAKING of jockeys, a correspondent expresses wonder that so little attention is paid in Pittsburgh to a "next-door neighbor." He refers to Jockey C. E. Allen, whose home is in New Kensington. Allen, who, by the way, is the jockey whom somebody dragged into the turf-baseball scandal last fall involving John McGraw and Rogers Hornsby, truly has a remarkable ecord to his credit. Last year he was the winning jockey in the Louisiana. In the Kentucky Derby he steered Jack Higgins to fourth place and was still gaining on the leaders at the finish. Last Sunday he rode the winner in the Tiajuana derby. Other jockeys have been given all sorts of publicity throughout the country, while this lad is known only where he made good and received his bumps.

SEVERAL years ago at the old Youngstown (O.) tracks, Allen was in a bad spill, suffered a fracture of the pelvis and a shoulder dislocation, which kept him out of the saddle from July 2 until the Havana meeting opened. Yet he came back for more, a year or two later suffering a broken collar bone, an injured jaw and the loss of some teeth.

Certainly no jockey can be said to have shown greater courage than the New Kensington boy. Allen is scheduled to ride in the coming rich Coffroth Handicap at Tiajuana, and if he should succeed in bringing an ordinary horse under the wire first or near the lead he ought to command a great deal more attention than he has received in the past.

UNLESS something unforeseen occurs to prevent him from playing, Charley Hyatt, Pitt's great basketball forward, tonight will set a new mark for rival floormen hereabouts and elsewhere to shoot at. The Panthers are to play their final game of the season at State College this evening, and Hyatt will be in there to break his own mark.

Charley Hyatt.

Last season Charley piled up a total of 292 points. He tied that for the present campaign by making 17 against W. & J. in Washington last Wednesday. So he needs only one point to set a new record and eight to reach the 300 mark, and the chances are good that if he is in anything like his usual shooting form he will go considerably above the latter total. He has everaged almost 15 points to the game up to date.

BUDDY OVEREND, chief of the athletic department at Carnegie Tech, represented the Plaid school at the banquet given by New York University to the Violet football team of 1928 in Gotham this week, and upon his return to Pittsburgh confirmed the reports of Al Lassman's recovery from the severe injuries suffered in the game with the Skibos at Forbes Field last fall. After spending many weeks in a hospital bed here the star lineman of N. Y. U. went to Florida for a long stay. The annual banquet was postponed until he could attend. Overend says that Lassman looks to be in fine shape, talks and acts as if he had never been injured, and, from all appearances, has completely recovered.

WILBERT ROBINSON, manager of the Dodgers, rises to offer an amendment to John A. Heydler's 10-man-ball-team idea. "If he'll make it so that the extra man may hit for the third baseman, I'll never stop yelling for it. I'd let Gilbert do the fielding and Hendrick the hitting. I guess that would be bad, hey?"

.. Discussing the National League race, Robbie remarks: "Those Cubs will be hard to beat, but the Giants, Pirates and Cardinals will give 'em a rough ride. You never can tell. The Cardinals may not be so hot this year. The Yanks gave them quite a shaking. The same kind of jolt knocked the Pirates down for a year, don't forget."

JOHNNY COONEY, Brave southpaw, who looked like a coming top-liner until his pitching arm was injured a couple of years ago, insists on being counted among the possible come-backs in 1929. He pitched only two complete games last season, but says his early workouts in camp this spring have convinced him that his old form is returning.

"I can hook them still," he said, "and though a fellow needs the

Here is how Jim Stroner, the new third base prospect of the Pirates, shapes up at the plate. He compiled a great batting record in the minors last season.

Tigers Have Chance To Halt Penn Five

PRINCETON, N. J., March 9.—(AP.)—Princeton's chances of redeeming a poor basketball season by defeating Pennsylvania in Philadelphia tonight and throwing the Quakers into a tie with Dartmouth for the Eastern Intercollegiate League title, have taken a decided slump.

It was learned that Capt. Mike Miles and Paul Carey, star forward, probably will be unable to play. Miles suffered a dislocated finger in the Columbia game Wednesday, while Carey is down with a light attack of flu.

Princeton's revamped lineup probably will be Dikovics and Lebhar, forwards; Bennett, center, and Wittmer and Bowen, guards.

ERIE FIGHTER BEATEN

BUFFALO, March 9.—(AP.)—Jack Thompson of Chicago won a decision from Heavy Andrews of Erie last night, the Chicagoan having an edge on his opponent in seven out of the 10 rounds.

In the main preliminary, also of 10 rounds, Frankie Schoell, Buffalo, won by decision from Wilson Yarbo of Chicago. Weights: Thompson 142; Andrews 143; Schoell 155; Yarbo 156.

Amateur Boxer Scores Sixth Knockout

WEST NEWTON, March 9.—Billy Watt, who has been somewhat of a sensation in amateur boxing circles since his going into the pugilistic racket only a short time ago, scored his sixth consecutive knockout when he put over a sleeper on the jaw of Johnny Mickey, Monessen, in the feature bout of an amateur show staged here last night. Watt floored Mickey three times before putting him away. Both are middleweights.

Race Circuit Plans Five Stake Events

BUTLER, Pa., March 9.—Five stake events will feature the Coal, Oil and Iron racing circuit this year when the horsemen gather at the various fairs for the three-day racing programs. Practically all towns in the circuit have agreed to give five stakes.

The stakes will compose a 220 trot and a 220 pace for purses of $800 and a 3-year-old trot, 3-year-old pace and a 2-year-old trot or pace, each for $500 purses. Entries for these events will close April 1.

REGULARS PLAY YANIGANS AGAIN

By CHARLES J. DOYLE,
Staff Correspondent.

PASO ROBLES, Cal., March 9.—One of the Pirate puzzles will be worked on today when Lee Meadows steps to the mound to test out the old salary whip. Retired at his own request on account of a lame arm last year, Meadows essays a comeback, and he is due to receive his first test in the Regular-Yanigan battle this afternoon.

Lee is tickled over the condition of his arm so far and he feels he will not have any pronounced trouble in working three rounds for the Yanigans. Needless to say his performance will be closely watched by Manager Bush.

Bush is convinced that the Pittsburgh lab staff for this season will need no explaining or excuses if Meadows is able to return to his old-time form, the slab division is apt to be very strong, but Donie thinks he will have plenty of good pitchers if things move along as they have moved since the batterymen landed here two weeks ago.

BETTER BATTING EXPECTED

The clash scheduled for this afternoon will be the second of the season, the first team having defeated the Yans, 3-to-2, in Thursday's game.

It would not be surprising if the second contest were to develop some better batting. As Manager Bush points out, the various hitters seem to be on the defensive in the opening game each year, but after they get whetted up the pitchers often feel the spleen of a heavy attack.

The Buccos will stage a short workout this morning, provided the weather is sufficiently warm. The game slated for the afternoon will be staged if conditions are at all favorable, as the contest has been heavily advertised.

The townsfolk of Paso Robles are agitated over the game scheduled with the San Francisco Seals for tomorrow. The Great Mails, known in some circles as Walter Dietary Mails, is on the card as one of the Seals' pitchers. Mails seldom fails to put a flavor into a ball game and the fans hereabouts are figuring on a picnic when the big leaguers mix with the Coast champions.

KREMER IMPROVES

Remy Kremer will get a chance to do his stuff in the game with the Seals. Kremer is a much different fellow than he was a year ago. Remy then was suffering from a severe attack of influenza. He will work at least three innings.

While the first team is trying conclusions with the sectional champs, the Bucco Yanigans, under the management of Oscar (Spin) Stanage, will be crossing bats with the Seal Seconds, at Monterey.

By JESS CARVER

The second round of the W. P. I. A. L. championship elimination tournament and the first annual state Catholic High School tourney, staged under the auspices of Duquesne University, will come to a close tonight, bringing to an end a very hectic week of basketball in Pittsburgh.

Three ball games are on the program, one in the W. P. I. A. L. and two in the Catholic tourney. Out in the Stadium Pavilion, Fifth Avenue, City League champs, and Freeport, victors in the Section I race, will fight it out for the honor of moving into the semi-finals along with Homestead, Uniontown and Bellevue. On the Bluff, Catholic High, of Altoona, and North Catholic, of Philadelphia, meet for the championship, and St. Joseph, of Williamsport and St. Gabriel, of Hazelton, play a preliminary consolation game.

HOMESTEAD WINS

Last night, in the W. P. I. A. L., Homestead had to spurt like mad in the final period to shake off the dogged Ford City team, Section VI champs. After hopping away to what looked like a very substantial lead, 11 to 3, in the first quarter, Homestead's machine began missing, and Ford City perked up, crawling up to 16 to 12 at the half and was behind by a single point, 20-19, at the finish of the third period.

Field goals by Birch, Homestead's guard ace, and by Kalupson, who replaced Capt. Oates at center when the latter was ejected on personal fouls, put the game on ice for the Steeltowners.

Birch tallied 12 points for his team and was directly responsible for the victory by his steady play. Bass, of Ford City, performed like a champ at center and counted 10 of his team's 22 points.

Another fine crowd witnessed the struggle, about 2,500 of the citizenry being on hand, most of whom were cash customers. One can't kick on that. The lineup:

Homestead—26.		Ford City—22.
Bair	F	Cook
Johnston	F	Burdette
Oates	C	Bass
Sertich	G	Wallick
Birch	G	Sheridan

Score by periods:

Homestead	11	3	4	6—26
Ford City	3	9	7	3—22

Fouls—Homestead: Bair, 0 out of 1; Johnston, 2 out of 4; Birch, 6 out of 9; Sertich, 2 out of 2; Ford City: Cook, 4 out of 5; Burdette, 0 out of 1; Bass, 4 out of 6; Sheridan, 0 out of 1.

Team fouls—Homestead, 12 out of 16; Ford City, 8 out of 13.

Barbuti's Lawyers Defend His Stand

NEW YORK, March 9.—Defending Ray Barbuti's action in refusing to name a "certain A. A. U. official" who is claimed to know that certain amateur athletes receive more than expenses, the Olympic 400-meter champion's attorneys, Garey, Crowley and Garey, last night issued a statement telling why Barbuti had declined to name the official in question at the investigation.

"If Barbuti named an official present and functioning at the registration commmittee meeting he would be in the position of accusing one of his judges," the statement read.

"Mr. Barbuti's statement was based not on his own direct knowledge, but on the statements of his comrades, and he considered an answer to the question a breach of confidence in that he would have to give up the names of these comrades in order to support the answer."

PIRATE ICEMEN MEET HAWKS

FORT ERIE, Ont., March 9.—The Pittsburgh and Chicago National League hockey clubs conclude their season series with a game here tonight. The Pirates, as a result of having annexed three wins and a tie in five starts against the Hawks, already have clinched the series edge, but two of the Steel City skaters' triumphs were scored in overtime battles, and it is expected that tonight's joust will be close and hard fought.

Manager Odie Cleghorn was accompanied by only 10 Pirates when he arrived here today, Spring McKinnon and McCurry having been left in Pittsburgh. Chicago held Toronto to a 1-1 tie Thursday night, and the Hawks are primed to get revenge for previous defeats at the hands of the Pittsburghers. The probable lineup:

PITTSBURGH.		CHICAGO.
Miller	G	Gardiner
McCaffrey	D	Taylor
Smith	D	Wentworth
Frederickson	C	Ripley
Darrach	W	McKinnon
Miles	W	Arbour

Martinsburg Club Sale Is Confirmed

PHILADELPHIA, March 9.—(AP.)—Confirmation has been received here that the Philadelphia Athletics had purchased the Martinsburg (W. Va.) club of the Blue Ridge League. Most of the Athletics' young players will receive training on the Martinsburg team. Peter Flood, of the Athletics' staff, will have charge of the major league club's interests there.

Many a husband will be returned to many a wife and child after tonight as the curtain is rung down on 1929 college basketball campaign in the tri-state district. These husbands, who have been chasing about the country since the latter part of December, will have to think up some new excuses to get out nights after this week.

Gyp Wunderlich.

There are only two games on the finals for this sector. Pitt's Golden Panthers invade State College tonight to wind up the season with Penn State and Andy Kerr's Presidents tackle West Virginia at Morgantown in a Big Four game. Both are return matches. West Virginia holds a 33-21 victory over W.-J. and Pitt owns a 49-28 triumph over State.

TITLE IN BALANCE

The championship of the district hangs in balance for the Panthers as they go into the game with the Lions. A victory means the retention of the honor for Pitt, while a defeat automatically swings the crown toward Westminster.

Chipper Charley Hyatt, tied with his 1928 scoring record of 292 points, needs only to count once in tonight's game to set up a new mark. State will be hard pressed to stop him from accomplishing this end. In fact, they'll be hard pressed to stop him from scoring a lot more.

It will be a feather in Wash-Jeff's cap if West Virginia can be beaten tonight. For that matter, it'll be worth of much cheering if the Presidents to keep within 10 points of the Mountaineers.

STARS END CAREERS

MARTIN BEATS BRISCOE

WORCESTER, Mass., March 9.—Andy Martin, flashy little Boston Italian outsmarted Jimmy Briscoe, hard-hitting Manchester, (N. H.) featherweight in a speedy 10-round bout here last night. Martin, too fast and too clever for the willing Briscoe, won six of the 10 rounds.

MANY FLOOR TOURNEYS TODAY

The basketball tournament season is on in full blast today, with competition scheduled in a number of sectors in the Pittsburgh district.

At the Stadium Pavilion tonight, the Fifth Avenue and Freeport High School fives meet in the second round of the annual W. P. I. A. L. series.

In the Duquesne University gym the finals of the state scholastic tournament, under the auspices of the Dukes, will be staged.

KISKI TOURNEY ON

A tournament for class C high schools is on the calendar at Indiana, Pa., under the direction of Indiana State Teachers' College.

The finals in the Mercer County scholastic tournament will be played at Grove City College.

Mapletown High School is the scene of the tri-county girls' tournament, and the Washington County girls' play, begun last Friday and Saturday, will be concluded on the floor of Monongahela High School.

Two Y. M. C. A. tournaments are listed, one at Washington, Pa., and the other at Butler.

RAILROADERS PLAY

The contenders for the West Virginia State scholastic championship, decided in the sectional eliminations last week-end, are resting for the finals at Buckhannon, W. Va., next Tuesday, Friday and Saturday.

Dawson Reaches Semi-Final Round

JACKSONVILLE, Fla., March 9.—(AP.)—John Dawson, Chicago, went into the semi-finals of the southeastern amateur golf tournament here by defeating N. L. Hoyt, Jr., 2 and 1, in the first round and Jack Toomer, Jacksonville, 4 and 3, in the second round.

The other semi-finalists were J. M. Ryerson, of Cooperstown, N. Y.; Al Ulmer, Jacksoville, and Roland Mackenzie, of Washington, D. C.

National Amateur Soccer Game Postponed

Manager Balsarini of Heidelberg was notified by the District Attorney's office last night that the National amateur cup game between Heidelberg and Akron Goodyear scheduled tomorrow could not be played. The game was carded for Bridgeville. Balsarini stated that some one from the East End of the Pittsburgh district had complained about the playing of the game. It will be played next Saturday instead.

BARNEY QUITS BUC CAMP

By CHARLES J. DOYLE,
Staff Correspondent.

PASO ROBLES, Cal., March 9.—Barney Dreyfuss, with Mrs. Dreyfuss and their relatives, returned to Del Monte last night after spending a few hours' visit with the Pirates. Dreyfuss is having a great time playing golf at the Del Monte links. So much so that he does not seem to be worried deeply over the action of the Waner boys.

The Waners, nevertheless, appear to represent the difference between a fine Pittsburgh team and a fair ball nine. Moreover, the two little fellows have quite an appeal throughout the circuit. It would be a loss to the National League if they were to remain out of action. Perhaps both sides will "give" a little in the strained matter, but you can feel quite confident that the skillful brothers will be back in the lineup before the bell rings.

The outfield doesn't seem natural without Paul and Lloyd around. Grantham, Comorosky and Brickell form one of the fleetest trios you could assemble on any club, yet this threesome might not be able to carry on for 154 games. There's one thing about those Waners—they seldom miss an inning of play.

Dreyfuss infers that the Oklahoma boys are being advised by some of their home friends. Perhaps so, but it seems that Paul and Lloyd have been pretty well advised ever since they started to play baseball.

The doings of Dick Bartell at third base may be significant. Bartell seems natural at the hot corner and more to the point, he is hitting the ball much harder than he did last year. A flaw in his swing was detected and he has overcome the fault with the result his drives are carrying more force and distance.

CHESS TOURNEY OPENS

Play gets under way today in the annual Western Pennsylvania championship chess tournament in the club rooms of the Westinghouse Club, Engineers' Society, Y. M. H. A., and the Pittsburgh Chess Club's.

LOCAL GOLFER IN FINAL

ST. AUGUSTINE, Fla., March 9.—Mrs. L. G. Riley, of Pittsburgh, is participating in the East Coast women's championship golf tournament for the Mrs. W. R. Kenan, Jr., Trophy over the St. Augustine links today. She is playing her concluding match against Miss Ruth Replogle, of Oklahoma City, Okla.

W. & J. Basketeers End Cage Careers

WASHINGTON, Pa., March 9.—Every man who will start tonight's game with West Virginia at Morgantown will be playing his final basketball contest for Washington and Jefferson and some of them will be engaging in the last combat as college sport competitors. Capts. Gilchrist and Robinson, Sanders and Hoskins have always rated as members of the class of 1929. McMunn, who entered the scholastic year as a junior, has made up a year's work and will have sufficient credits to graduate in June.

The Wash-Jeff basketball party left here this morning in automobile buses for Morgantown. The freshman team is scheduled to meet the Mountaineer yearlings in a preliminary game. Ten varsity and an equal number of freshmen make the trip.

HOPPE TO PLAY HERE

WILLIE HOPPE is going to play pocket billiards here Monday afternoon and evening, March 18, with Ralph Greenleaf at the Keystone Athletic Club. Although Hoppe is best known as a balkline player, he also stars at the three-rail game.

BIG BUSINESS DOMINATES BOXING

By HARRY KECK,
Sports Editor.

Big business is running boxing these days, the same as it has run baseball and other sports for years.

The time may come when we will have boxing on a chain store basis—the signs are pointing to it more and more each day.

During the past year, Boston has opened a huge Madison Square Garden of its own and Detroit has its Olympia arena with a vast seating capacity and now Chicago has its enclosed Stadium, which will seat 30,000 for boxing and will open its doors late this month with a bout featuring two world champions against each other, Tommy Loughran and Mickey Walker. It is the largest indoor arena in the world and was built at a cost of millions of dollars.

TEX RICKARD'S DREAM

It was the late Tex Rickard's dream to have a series of Madison Square Gardens planted in the more important cities around the country. The Boston Garden was the first of these, after his new Garden in New York. He planned to invade Philadelphia and once there were rumors that he would come to Pittsburgh, too.

Naturally, local capital was to be interested in these ventures, but they were to have a common hookup, whereby the syndicate would control all of the big matches. The plan may yet see fruition.

Benny Leonard, who controlled the local hockey club during the present season, sees Pittsburgh as ripe for a huge sports arena and was seriously discussing sponsoring such a project until he heard a public hall is likely here within a few years, along the lines of Cleveland's Public Hall, at which sports events are featured.

BENNY LEONARD'S VIEW

"The day has passed when it is possible to compete for big matches with arenas of limited capacity," Leonard said. "Any city that does not have a big arena must take the leftovers. This applies to other sports as well. Our largest hockey arena—Duquesne Garden—for instance, can seat only about one-fourth as many fans as those that house our rivals. This means that no matter how much interest we manage to engender in our team, we can accommodate only so many people. We must work just as hard as the other teams and can make only one-fourth as much profit for our labors. Give Pittsburgh a large sports arena and it will hold its own with any other city of its size. Until then, it must be an also-ran insofar as the big stuff is concerned."

MASON VS. BUCHANAN

Many are the fight fans around here who think James (Red) Mason gets all of the breaks in the way of landing good matches and having his fighters win close decisions. They reckon not with Jim Buchanan, of Charleroi, whose proud boast it is that none of his boxers ever has lost an important fight when pitted against one of Mason's men. He cites Willie Davies' victory over Johnny Hamm, Young Rudy's triumph against U. S. Carpentier and, recently, Rudy Ceder's defeat of Cuddy DeMarco and he will try his luck again next Friday night, when he sends Tiger Joe Randall, Negro welterweight, of Elizabeth, Pa., who has just gone under his management, against Dominick Profio, of Cecil, in the 10-round main bout in the Moose Temple, downtown.

Randall and Profio have met before. They clashed in a four-rounder at Motor Square Garden some months ago, shortly after Profio turned professional, and Randall surprised the fans by carrying the fight to Profio and making a great battle of it. Since then he has kept active in various rings, and Buchanan believes he will prove one of the most improved boxers in this section when he gets his windup chance next week.

Jack McCarthy, local welterweight, and Teddy Welch, of McKeesport, have been matched to box the eight-round main bout of a show at East Liverpool, O., March 18. Patsy Gallagher and Young Angelo will appear in the semi-final.

CHOCOLATE VS. O'DOWD

Kid Chocolate, the Cuban sensation, resumes his American campaign where he left off to visit his native Havana recently when he meets another setup in the person of Phil O'Dowd, of Columbus, in New York tonight. Andre Routis, the featherweight champion, will be at the ringside to get a line on Chocolate, against whom he will be called upon to defend his title shortly.

Promoter Jim McGirr has arranged a double windup card for his McKeesport arena next Thursday night. He will have Young Rudy against Phil Scello, and T. N. T. Gibbons against Leo Kyburski in the 10-rounders, which will be supported by two six-round battles.

Terry Lingo and Ray Newton have been rematched to box the windup at Washington, Pa., Monday, March 18. Newton holds a knockout victory over Lingo as well as over Battling Gizzy.

Sharon, Farrell Meet in Final

GROVE CITY, Pa., March 9.—Victors of the two semi-final games of the fourteenth annual schoolboy basketball tournament of Mercer County High schools played off here in the college gymnasium, Sharon and Farrell are matched for the championship game.

Sharon defeated Sharpsville in the first game last evening, 23 to 16, and Farrell in the second fray trounced Grove City, 28 to 11. The lineups:

Sharon—23.		Sharpsville—16.
Deems	F	Pryde

ALTOONA-NORTH IN FINAL

Altoona and North advanced to the final round of the Catholic tournament by scoring decisive triumphs in the semi-final round last night, and after having played second round games in the afternoon. North, held 6 to 6 at the half by St. Gabriel of Hazelton, won with a fine exhibition of basketball in the last two periods, 21 to 13.

Altoona held a five-point margin over the fast passing St. Joseph team of Williamsport in the first game of the evening, winning by 21 to 16.

Aside from the Altoona-Bethlehem game, there was little excitement in yesterday's second round contests on the Bluff. St. Joseph opened the day's schedule by toppling Sacred Heart with comparative ease. Then Altoona and Bethlehem put on their fracas, the result of which was in doubt until the final second of play. This was about the second most thrilling contest of the early rounds.

In the afternoon, St. Gabriel and North Catholic had walk-over games, the Hazelton passers lambasting Dick Shrading's Central High team, 36 to 16, maintaining at least a 12-point lead at all stages of the affair. North High took the floor for the final second round battle and kicked the daylights out of the pansy St. Michael team of Greenville, 24 to 8. St. Mike, you recall, was the club that eliminated the Duke Preps in the first round in that hectic extra-period struggle.

Conlon	F	O'Connell
Grimme	F	Lucas
Snyder	C	Prietz
Irwin	G	Mack
Bradley	G	Gorman

Altoona	7	4	0	4—15

Substitutions—Altoona: Smith; Bethlehem: Dougherty. Field goals—Altoona: Conlon 2, Grimme 2, Snyder 2, Bradley, Irwin, O'Connell, Lucas 2, Mack 2. Fouls—Altoona: Grimme, 2 out of 4; Snyder, 0 out of 1; Irwin, 0 out of 2; Bradley, 1 out of 2; Bethlehem, O'Connell, 6 out of 9; Lucas, 4 out of 4; Prietz, 0 out of 4; Gorman, 0 out of 3. Team fouls—Altoona, 4 out of 9; Bethlehem, 4 out of 12. Leading scorer—Grimme, Altoona, 10 points. Time of periods—Eight minutes. Referee—Buck Snyder. Umpire—Kennedy.

N. Catholic—34.		St. Michael—8.

ETNA ADVANCES IN KISKI VALLEY CAGE TOURNEY

VANDERGRIFT, Pa., March 9.—The first day's competition in the Kiski Valley tournament being held under the auspices of Vandergrift High School, saw the elimination of New Kensington and Har-Brack Union, teams listed among the favorites.

KEN HIGH LOSES

Ken High was defeated, 21-16, by Dayton Vocational, a team which later bowed to Leechburg in the second round.

Har-Brack's Big Green five was only defeated by Vandergrift, 34-31, in an extra-period battle after regulation time had seen the rivals deadlocked at 29-29.

Tarentum was the sensation of the tourney, trouncing Washington Township, 48-4, and eliminating Apollo in the second round, 28-19.

ETNA VICTOR

Leechburg, winner over Dayton Vocational, 36-17, will meet Tarentum in the semi-finals at 2:30 today, while Vandergrift and Etna clash at 3:30 o'clock. Tarentum and Vandergrift are popular choices to lock horns in the finale at 8:15 tonight.

Morning consolation games find Arnold meeting Har-Brack and Ken High facing Washington Township, the winner to be in the consolation final at 7:15, just before the tourney title windup. Yesterday's lineups:

GUS WINS AGAIN

SCHENECTADY, N. Y., March 9.—(AP.)—Using his famous and disputed "flying tackle" to win the second fall, Gus Sonnenberg, world wrestling champion, defeated Captain Jack Smith, of Fort Worth, Texas in two straight falls here last night.

SHADY SIDE IN FINALE

The Shady Side Academy basketball team closed its season with a 34 to 8 victory against Western Reserve Academy, of Cleveland, on the Carnegie Tech floor this afternoon.

Mitchell Gives Reigh Count Workout

NEWMARKET, England, March 9.—(AP.)—Gradually thawing weather enabled Trainer Mitchell to take out the American race horse, Reigh Count, for a striding mile gallop. Onlookers were impressed by the smooth action displayed in the workout.

The Chicago-owned racer's trainer has shifted him from H. Leader's stables to those of F. Leader, which are nearer the famous heath.

ACKERMAN FIVE MEETS CONLEYS

By JULIUS LEVIN.

Homestead is all agog tonight over the battle between the M. J. Conleys, winners of the Pittsburgh and Ohio Valley League championship, and the A. J. Ackermans, of the Homestead District League. The battle is scheduled for the Homestead Elks' Temple and, judging from the interest shown by the supporters of both teams, a large crowd will be on hand tonight.

The Conleys and Ackermans have been rivals all season, both claiming the championship of the Homestead district. Tonight's contest is expected to settle the issue.

The Conleys will take the floor a slight favorite over the Ackermans due in a large measure to their fine showing in both the P. & O. and Homstead District League. The Ackermans, however, have added considerable strength to their lineup and will be out to upset the dope tonight.

An attractive preliminary game will precede the main attraction, the Goldenson Vanities, claimants of the girls' championship of Western Pennsylvania as a result of winning 17 straight games, will meet the Munhall High School lassies. The preliminary starts at 8 o'clock.

The Pittsburgh College All-Stars, composed of Charley Hyatt, Les Cohen, Milt Cohen and Ferraro, of Pitt; Fox, of Carnegie Tech, and Lubic and Rosenberg, of Duquesne University, will meet the Young Men's Hebrew Association quintet, winner of the A. A. U. championship, on the Y. M. H. A. floor a week from next Tuesday night. The proceeds will be used to send the local amateur champions to the National Y. M. H. A. tournament to be held in Atlantic City on March 31 and April 1.

The Duquesne Lafayettes, three-time winners of the Allegheny County League championship, have next Monday available for a first-class team desiring a game in Duquesne. Call Manager Had at Duquesne 24423.

ONE RECORD FALLS IN BIG TEN MEET

IOWA CITY, Ia., March 9.—(AP)—Illinois, defending champion of the Western Conference indoor track and field honors, flashed away to a flying start in the preliminaries last night by qualifying 11 men for the final round tonight.

The Illini placed men in four of the five events in which trials were held indicating that they would repeat their triumph of last year.

STELLAR PERFORMANCES

The competition resulted in the shattering of the record for the 60-yard dash and tying the record in the 70-yard high hurdles. Judd Timm, who won fame on the gridiron at Illinois as one of Coach Bob Zuppke's halfbacks, clipped one-tenth of a second off the Big Ten indoor record by winning his heat in the 60-yard dash in 6 2-10 seconds. This performance also tied the American indoor record, established by Loren Murchison of the Illinois Athletic Club in 1923.

Three men, Crooks of Ohio State, Allison of Iowa and Haydon of Chicago, winners of three heats in the 70-yard high hurdles, equalled the meet record of 8 8-10 seconds, which was established by Frank Cuhel, Iowa's Olympic hurdler last year. The final in this event promises to be a thriller.

Iowa, runner-up to Illinois in the championship competition a year ago, and Indiana, each qualified six men, with Ohio State placing five and Michigan and Chicago four each. Wisconsin qualified three men, Northwestern and Minnesota two apiece and Purdue one.

The Hawkeyes, with the largest squad entered in the meet, promise to furnish the stiffest opposition to Illinois in the final. The meet attracted an entry of 267 athletes, one of the largest in the history of the event.

STARS FORCED OUT

A trio of athletes who won individual championships a year ago were forced out of the competition because of injuries. They were: George Baird, the Iowa quarter-miler, who holds the record for the distance; Joe Novak, of Illinois, mile champion, and Robert Cuff, another member of the Illinois crew, holder of the high jump title.

Maxie Strub Stops Stein in Eighth

Long's Sport Comment

old smoke to mix with his other stuff, I believe that I'll have that, too. My arm will be stronger this year, and I think I can take my turn on the mound again."

ANOTHER attempted come-back, and one of particular interest to Pittsburgh fans, will have its beginning at Paso Robles this afternoon in the Pirates' second practice game. Lee Meadows is to make his first start, being one of the three veteran hurlers assigned to do the pitching for the Yanigans, and his work today may determine to some extent what chance there is of his being able to get back into anything like his old stride. Meadows pitched but one complete game and a total of only 10 innings all told last year before an ailing arm sent him into voluntary retirement, but he reports that the wing feels sound and strong this spring and is hopeful that it will regain its old cunning. There may be little chance that Lee can come back to a sufficient extent to re-establish himself as a regular slab starter for the season, but it will help the Pirates a lot if he can merely recover enough of his old stuff to work an occasional game of his own and serve in finishing or relief roles at other times.

Giants to See Bull Fight Tomorrow

ATLANTA, Ga., March 9.—(AP.)—Mexican revolutions notwithstanding, the Giants of John McGraw will not allow war stories to interfere with plans. The squad is planning special whoopee tomorrow when a bull fight is staged in its honor at Nuevo Laredo, just across the border from the scene of an exhibition encounter.

The Giants will move from San Antonio down to Laredo for exhibition clashes today and tomorrow and enjoy the bull fight as a side attraction. They will play San Antonio of the Texas League both days.

McGraw is awaiting Terry and Roush, both overdue in reporting.

EAT LUNCH ON FIELD

The Chicago White Sox, training at Dallas, Tex., had a hard workout with lunch served on the field. Manager Blackburne is pleased with the condition of his squad.

Cox, Moore, Blackerby and Watwood are showing well in practice and fighting for places. Moore is working in Johnny Mostil's outfield position, the veteran being out with a bad foot.

Down in Florida, Grover Cleveland Alexander, 42-year-old star of the Cardinal pitching staff, made his 1929 debut against Connie Mack's Athletics, Old Pete worked two innings again the A's at Fort Myers and held them to a pair of hits and one run.

SOUTHWORTH PLEASED

Manager Southworth is feeling optimistic also over the showing of his rookie pitchers yesterday against the Athletics at Avon Park. Three of the youngsters held the Mackmen to three hits.

Hafey has joined the Redbirds.

Local Swimmers In National Meet

John Carik, of South High School, and William Norton, of Perry High School, are representing Pittsburgh in the national interscholastic championship swimming meet at the University of Michigan, Ann Arbor, today. Carik is one of the best fancy divers in the Tri-State district. He is a former holder of the A. M. A. senior three and 10-foot diving titles.

Carnegie Tech swimmers brought their season to a close today in a meet with the Case School natators of Cleveland.

DIENER BEATS DANIELS

BERLIN, March 9.—(AP.)—Franz Diener, German heavyweight outpointed Gypsy Daniels, of England in their 10-round bout at the Sportpalast last night. Daniels' principal claim to fame in Germany came through a one-round knockout over Max Schmeling in February, 1928, a few months before Schmeling won the German championship from Diener.

Wide Two-Mile Victor in Slow Time

NEW YORK, March 9.—(AP.)—Edvin Wide, fast-stepping Swedish schoolmaster, had little difficulty winning the special two-mile handicap run, feature of the Elks' Games at the One Hundred and Second Engineers' Armory here last night. Wide's time was 9:12, far behind Paavo Nurmi's record of 8:58 1-5.

Although the Swedish star's time failed to approach the record, he nevertheless turned in the fastest time for two miles ever recorded on the unbanked track at the Armory. He was handicapped as well by the fact that he was running without spikes.

He crossed the finish line a quarter of a lap ahead of Ove Anderson, of Finland handicapped at 75 yards. Franklin T. Osgood, of the New York A. C., given a 150-yard start, was third and John Fortier, Manhattan College, also with a 150-yard handicap, was fourth and last.

Wide ran the first mile in 4:33 4-5 and the mile and a half in 6:55 3-5.

HORNETS BLANK BLAWNOX

The Hornets blanked Blawnox, 5 goals to 0, in a semi-final round tilt of the Western Pennsylvania Amateur Hockey League series at Duquesne Garden last night, thus virtually assuring a final between the victor and Philadelphia Company.

The teams meet again in a second game of the series Monday, but Blawnox has little chance to recover, for total goals for the two contests will do the talking. The lineup:

Hornets—5.		Blawnox—0.
Frazier	G	James
Campbell	D	Brenneman
McCutcheon	D	Ferraro
T. Coulter	C	Kelly
J. Coulter	W	Bowen
Martin	W	Cohen

Referees, Lowrey and McCaffrey.

First period—Scoring: T. Coulter, 2:15. No penalties.

Second period—Scoring: T. Coulter (J. Coulter), 1:45; T. Coulter (J. Coulter), 4:18; J. Coulter (Malone), 8:20. No penalties.

Third period—Scoring: McCutcheon, 2:47. Penalties—J. Coulter, slashing; McCutcheon, tripping; Campbell, tripping; T. Coulter, hooking.

HOMANS GOLF VICTOR

PINEHURST, N. C., March 9.—(AP.)—Eugene Homans of Englewood, N. J., Princeton links star, won the Twenty-fifth annual spring tournament of the Princeton Country Club by defeating Norman H. Maxwell of Philadelphia, 6 and 4.

MEADVILLE ADVANCES

MEADVILLE, Pa., March 9.—(AP.)—Meadville high school's passers clinched the title in the Southern Division, Section Three, P. I. A. A., here last night by defeating Rocky Grove, 25-to-11.

P. & L. E. BOWS IN TITLE PLAY

CLEVELAND, March 9.—A lucky basket by Browhard in the last minute of play eliminated the P. & L. E. quintet from the Cleveland Central Y. M. C. A. basketball tournament in the first round here last night. The Indiana Harbor Belt quintet nosed out the Pittsburgh five 30 to 29.

The game was a nip and tuck encounter from start to finish. Pittsburgh led 17 to 14, at the half, but the Indiana five rallied early in the second half to take the lead.

EVENING SUN-TELEGRAPH MARKETS

Stocks Rush Up — Wall Street Quotations

RADIO SHARES LEAD MARKET UP-SWEEP

NEW YORK, March 9.—(AP.)—Stock prices moved irregularly higher at the opening of today's market. Radio (old stock), opened 4 points higher at 44⅝, a new high record, and the first sale of the new stock was a block of 25,000 shares at 91½, up 2½, and a new high. A. M. Byers jumped 5½ points on the first sale, and Electric Auto Lite, U. S. Rubber and Johns Manville opened 1 to 2 points higher. Chile Copper showed an initial loss of 2 points.

Retention of the 4½ per cent rediscount rate by the San Francisco Federal Reserve Bank was seized upon as a bull factor by speculators for the advance on the theory that no change in the 5 per cent rediscount rate of the New York Federal Reserve Bank was likely until the rates of the three contral institutions still below that level are brought into line.

Radio issues were again the feature of the market. The old stock quickly soared 18 points to 463, making a gain of 55 points in three days, and the new stock moved up 4¼ points to a new top at 93¾, on a tremendous turnover.

Brooklyn Union Gas ran up 7¾ points, Western Union 7½ to a record high at 220, Peoples Gas 5¼, and Canadian Pacific, Curtiss and Stromberg sold 2 to nearly 3 points higher. A long list of issues, including General Motors, Columbia Graphophone, American Can and Grand Stores, sold 1 or more points higher.

Early selling quickly dried up when pool operations were resumed on a broad scale in several of the leading industrials and specialties. National Cash Register opened with a block of 10,000 shares at 136½, up 5⅝, as against a low of 122½ yesterday.

COTTON MARKET

NEW YORK, March 9.—Cotton opened steady today at a decline of 1 to 11 points. Active months sold about 8 to 15 points net lower right after the call under realizing and local selling inspired by easy Liverpool cables.

These early offerings were absorbed by renewal of the recent demand and covering stimulated by the standard cloth statistics for February, which showed sales amounting to 116.3 per cent of production, a decrease of 4.2 per cent in stocks on hand and an increase of 7.2 per cent in unfilled orders for the month.

Prices steadied after the early offerings subsided, but were within 2 or 3 points of the lowest at the end of the first half hour. May selling around 21.22c.

Private cables reported heavy local Manchester and continental realizing in Liverpool, but said the trade was a good one and for cotton cloths from Egypt and the Near East.

Rooster Kills Eagle In Finish Fight In Barnyard

SARASOTA, Fla., March 9.—(AP.)—Ed Zwingli, a dairyman near here, brought to Sarasota a story of a finish fight between a six-month-old Plymouth Rock rooster and an eagle in which the former came out victorious.

He exhibited the wounded rooster in support of the tale. He and his wife heard a commotion in the barnyard, he said, and distinguishing a whirling melee of feathered bodies went to investigate just as both contestants collapsed.

The eagle, measuring six feet one inch from wing tip to wing tip, was dead. The rooster was badly hurt.

Schwab Drops Bearishness; How Not to Treat Workers.

—By B. C. FORBES

CHARLES M. SCHWAB was scared of the stock mar t a year ago, but he isn't now.

This same conversion from bearishness to bullishness has been quite common among business men—but not among bankers. Money talks. It's the money that has been made on the bull side of the market which has caused so many people to lose the alarm they formerly felt. "Nothing succeeds like success" is essentially true in the stock market.

Bankers who were bearish a year ago still are bearish. I talked with one of the biggest of our bankers some little time ago and I remarked, "You and I have both been wrong." He exploded. "You and I have not been wrong! Our attitude has been absolutely right. It's the other people's reasoning that has been absolutely wrong."

I smiled as I recalled the old wheeze about the soldier boy's mother at the parade who exclaimed, "They're all out of step but our John." No matter how correct bearish reasoning may have been, the fact remains that stocks have meanwhile gone up and up.

At that, I simply cannot force myself to change my reasoning that a great many stocks have been sent to unwarrantedly high quotations. It may be that we are living in a "new era." Certain it is that entirely new yardsticks have been employed to measure the value of stocks. Old-time conservation has been cast to the winds. When you venture to point out that a stock is selling at 20 times its earnings or more, you are told, with a superior air, "that doesn't matter. You must look ahead. Think of the company's prospects." And so the company's "prospects" are merrily capitalized. What has happened this week in the money market should have occasioned no astonishment. Rather will it be astonishing if still higher rates are not witnessed should the marking-up process be vigorously resumed in the stock market.

However, Schwab may prove to be wiser than those of us who still hold to cautious attitudes.

A VISIT to Washington this week resulted in this impression: Calvin Coolidge has won a unique place in the hearts of the American people. The demonstration accorded him appeared to be ardent and sincere. Hoover, the man, has won more respect than popularity thus far. His cabinet has evoked no enthusiasm whatsoever.

FEW matters are, after all, more important than how the millions of employed in this country feel towards those employing them. Unless the majority of workers can be reasonably satisfied that they and their kind are receiving a fair deal, upheavals become, of course, inevitable. Two letters, just received, picture the uneven conditions now existing.

John Caldwell, Lafayette, Ind., writes:

"You are doing a good work bringing before millions of readers the deplorable conditions of labor and capital. But look at this picture.

"Sober, steady, workmen willing to do a fair day's work are not discharged by the Monon Railroad Company because of their age. After 25 years of service the president gives a silver button and a letter of appreciation for loyalty and faithful service. This creates a bond of friendship between management and the men beneficial to both. After 50 years' service a gold button is given with a leave of absence with pa

"As old age creeps on the men are given light work they can do, and not thrown on the scrap heap. During all the 50 years of service their pay has not been reduced. From the president down the officials in every department are imbued with the same magnanimity of soul as the president and directors.

THIS is from one of the inimitable letters periodically issued by J. Kindleberger, head of the Kalamazoo Vegetable Parchment Company:

"This morning we dropped into the office a sizeable business organization, and noticing the absence of an old gentleman who had grown up with the business and who had for years occupied a desk in the main office, we asked the president, 'Where is our old friend, Mr. So-and-so?'

"For a fraction of time he did not reply, but finally he arose, gazed out of the window, and there were tears in his voice as he said, 'We had to .et him out. I think it was a mistake, but the directors insisted that for the good of the business we must have in his place a younger man. I hope to God,' he continued, 'that I will never be placed in that position again, because whe.. I told him I could see that it was like plunging a dagger into his heart.'

"'Business is business,' but as we swing through this young-man-in-business cycle, we wonder sometimes if the law of extremes isn't prompting us to knock out the other side of the clock as we forcibly swing the pendulum."

OUR industrial and other business giants, triumphantly swinging the world by the tail, should remember that industry exists for man, not man for industry. Or should.

ALTOONA RUMOR DENIED

CHARLEROI, Pa., March 9.—Altoona is not seeking membership in the Middle Atlantic League, and above all would not enter by taking the Cumberland franchise, it was learned from official sources and Altoona baseball powers here today. The Charleroi Mail tonight will say that "the gossip concerning Altoona's entry in the Middle Atlantic originated on street corners in Charleroi, when such towns as Washington, Steubenville, Uniontown and McKeesport also were incorrectly mentioned as possible newcomers. All of this is untrue."

Altoona would not enter the Middle Atlantic because the best baseball field there is unavailable and for reason that there are no active sponsors for a franchise in the league. All plans for Altoona's 1929 baseball season are definitely set and they emphatically do not include any plans for taking on the Cumberland franchise, owned by T. G. McGuire, "big, bad boy of the league," who threatens he will secede.

CUE STARS IN AUTO CRASH

WATERBURY, Conn., March 9.—(AP.)—David McCandless, 35, of Chicago, former national and junior billiard champion, suffered two fractures of the skull in an automobile accident here. He was taken to St. Mary's Hospital. Mrs. McCandless, his wife, also in the automobile when it overturned, was less seriously injured. Louis Police, former Connecticut pocket billiards champion and driver of the car, was arrested.

Fields, Canzoneri Win Detroit Bouts

Fields drove Van Ryan through the ropes in the second, knocked him down for a count of nine in the third and finished by dropping him with a left hook in the fifth. Elmer (Slim) McClelland, referee, picked Van Ryan from the floor, without a count, to end the fight.

Canzoneri knocked Payne to the canvas seven times, but was unable to keep him down.

STOCKHOLDERS' VOTES PROVED ESSENTIAL

By GEORGE H. SNYDER

THAT any tendency toward the disfranchisement of stockholders is a real menace and not a theoretical one, has been shown in the past week. In two cases, the stockholders of nationally known corporations have "fired" the managements.

Nearly two years ago, when William Z. Ripley and others began to point to the dangers of prevalent trends in new financing which were depriving common stockholders of their voting rights and giving control of large corporations to small groups owning management shares, the dangers they saw were looked upon as possible, but not necessarily vital.

Had the Standard Oil Company of Indiana and the Childs Company been organized with financial structures similar to those of a few companies whose stocks have been sold to the public during the last two years, the stockholders would have had no recourse. In the case of Standard Oil of Indiana, they would have had no means of removing the man whom they believed to be guilty of unethical practices. In the case of the Childs Company, there would have been no way to put in a management with policies thought to be more to the advantage of stockholders.

ALTHOUGH the leading factions in both of these sensational contests were large stockholders, none had enough stock to insure actual control. The small shareholders held the balance of power in both cases.

As a result of the large number of public warnings against stock holder disfranchisement there have been few flagrant cases recently. Fortunately, the practice of dividing the common stock into two classes, one of which the public owns without voting rights and one of which a group of bankers owns with all the voting rights, is somewhat out of favor at present. The custom of placing voting rights in the hands of committees for a long period of years, is also being used less frequently.

IN PROMOTIONS of this kind, the bankers were taking advantage of the usual public apathy towards the exercises of voting privileges at the annual meetings. Frequently it is difficult to get even enough stockholders to fill out proxies to obtain a quorum.

This merely represents a willingness on the part of stockholders to let well enough alone when the management of a company appears to be operating in an efficient manner. It has allowed stockholders' meetings here to degenerate into mere formalities except when a company's real welfare is at stake.

THE AVERAGE stockholder's meeting is a busy affair, if more than a half dozen people are present in addition to the necessary officials of the company. Perhaps, if more of the investing public realized the opportunity presented, to learn about their property, such meetings would be better attended. At annual meetings, .. is customary for the president of the company to answer any questions about the conduct of business which stockholders may ask.

It is also usual for a more complete discussion of the progress of the past year to be carried on than is available in the regular financial statements. In the cases of the few closely owned corporations which do not publish annual statements, the earnings' figures and the balance sheets are made available to the stockholders.

Alaska Flier Reaches Ship Frozen in Ice

FAIRBANKS, Alaska, March 9.—(AP.)—Noe Wien, Alaskan aviator, landed at the fur ship frozen in ice at North Cape, Siberia, six hours after taking off from Nome, radio dispatches from the vessel revealed yesterday. The trip was over ice wastes that had been traversed but once before, that by dog team. Wien was dispatched from Nome to bring a cargo of furs to the mainland after the ship was unable to move out of the ice fields.

Aluminum Co. Buys Site for Laboratory

NEW KENSINGTON, Pa., March 9.—Officials of the Aluminum Company of America made known here last night the purchase of 14 acres of the Urilda Ross estate bordering on the Freeport road as a site for the erection of one of the country's finest industrial research laboratories, the building and equipment of which will cost $500,000. About 150 persons will be employed in the building.

Mills in New Castle Plan Daylight Time

NEW CASTLE, Pa., March 9.—Representatives of the industries of the city attended a meeting of the board of education and informed that body that the industries would operate on daylight saving time this summer for a five-month period and were informing the board to allow for for adjustment of school schedules if desired.

MUSIC

Philharmonic-Symphony Society of New York

SYRIA MOSQUE

PROGRAM.

Symphony in D Major (K. 385) ..... Mozart
"Feste Romane" ("Roman Festivals") ..... Respighi
I. Circus Shows.
II. The Jubilee.
III. The October Excursions.
IV. Epiphany.
"Iberia" ..... Debussey
I. In the Streets and Byways.
II. Odors of the Night.
III. The Morning of a Fete-day.
Overture to "Tannhauser" ..... Wagner

The New York Philharmonic-Symphony Society, with Arturo Toscanini conducting, gave one of its last concerts for Pittsburgh in Syria Mosque last night. The conductor was doubtless an added attraction, for we had one of the best audiences of the entire season. There will be a matinee this afternoon.

There was a most satisfactory program. Between two long-accepted classic works came two modern festival pieces, each placed where it would be most strongly contrasted to the older music and these gala pieces strangely contrasted against one another.

Interest centered in the "Feste Romane" of Respighi, a composition still in manuscript. In closely knit sequence of brilliantly colored pictures, we pass through the Circus Maximus, through the Holy City of the Church, through a hunting festival and a New Year's jubilee. In the Circus, the music screamed the relentless power of the Caesars; the second picture was a matin; the third jingled towards a romantic serenade, the loveliest fragment of the symphony and the last depicted very faithfully all the confusing grotesqueries of a carnival night. Like all Italian composers, Respighi makes melody first. It is music for the populace, unhampered by profound musical or philosophical thought.

Debussy's "Iberia" is a child of much the same inspiration as the Respighi tone poem. And how utterly different in development. The Frenchman is a far more skillful and ingenious writer for orchestra. His colors may be pale, but his design, too, is very transparent. His pastels suffer not at all besid. the vermilion in the Italian score.

With this large orchestra, Toscanini succeeded in keeping the tone for his Mozart within legitimate bounds. His dynamic nuances and accents removed the academic aroma from the symphony, something no Teuton would have risked doing. He destroyed not a phrase thereby, only made the work a vital and joyous revival. This conductor's devotion to Wagner is well known and the "Tannhaeuser" was a well balanced, finely controlled reading.

In all of Toscanini's directing, one sees less sensationalism than is accredited to him. That he demands the utmost of his men, goes without saying, but he has the genius for the truth of detail and casting aside all pedantry, makes his music speak unblushingly to our senses.

Held Prisoner, Wife Says, Asking Divorce

UNIONTOWN, Pa., March 9.—On the grounds that she was held a prisoner by her husband who feared she would meet a man she liked better than him, Mrs. Lena Rhoderick, of Smithfield, today instituted divorce proceedings against Frederick Rhoderick. She alleged that her husband refused to permit her to go to Sunday school or church or even to visit her parents. Several times, when she went out without his permission, she says he beat her.

Robbers Miss Ring Hidden in Bouquet

UNIONTOWN, Pa., March 9.—Held up on the Washington Springs road at the Summit Hotel where she and her husband were spending their honeymoon, Mrs. C. J. Henly, of Columbus, O., saved a diamond ring by hiding it in a bouquet of flowers. This was brought out yesterday when Harry and John Varndell, mountain youths, were arraigned on a charge of highway robbery. Mr. and Mrs. Henly identified the prisoners.

Dry Agents Seize Stills, Arrest Two

Constables and prohibition agents yesterday raided a stable at 200 [illegible] street, Wilmerding, arrested Peter Grillo, and seized a 100-gallon still, they reported. In a raid at 302 Forty-fifth street, Walter Cleksak was arrested and a 50-gallon still and liquor seized, the raiders reported.

$110,000 Suit Filed Due to Auto Crash

BUTLER, Pa., March 9.—(AP.)—John Robrek and family, of Pittsburgh, yesterday filed suit for $110,000 damages against Jacob Wolfe, of Lawrence county, for injuries alleged to have been received in an automobile accident last July 1.

Injuries Prove Fatal After Three Years

SHANESVILLE, O., March 9.—Jonathan Hixson, 68, died of injuries suffered three years ago when he fell from a cherry tree.

REMEMBER WHEN—?

Today winds up the Remember When contest. The following have been awarded $1 each for these Remember Whens:

REMEMBER WHEN automobiles were not allowed in cemeteries?—William S. Herbster, 208 Grant street, Pittsburgh.

REMEMBER WHEN the incline ran from Second avenue to the Bluff?—Mrs. K. Roach, 60 Bigelow street, Pittsburgh.

Brock to Light New Aviation Beacon

The aviation beacon atop the Grant Building will be lighted officially Sunday night by William S. Brock, noted pilot, after a dinner in the William Penn Hotel to be given for pilots and aviation leaders by W. J. Strassburger, president of the Grant Building Corporation. The beacon has been lighted several times for testing. Mayor Charles H. Kline and members of Council are expected to attend the ceremonies for the lighting of the beacon, which is the most powerful of its type in the world.

Real Estate

A business property at Forest and Ravenswood avenues, Bellevue, has been sold for George W. Schaffnit to Morris Rosen for $22,000. Mr. Rosen conveyed at a valuation of $15,000 a house at 3528 Brighton road. Roessler & Mueller were the brokers in the transactions. They leased a bake shop in the Bellevue property to Stanley Barrett.

Two apartment buildings at 110-16 Parker drive, Mt. Lebanon, have been sold for Lewis R. Nedwidek to Nathan Deemer, who deeded in part payment a nine-room house on 65x120 feet at 6426 Bartlett street, an irregular lot in Bigelow boulevard near Herron avenue with a triplex dwelling and a three-story building at Isabella and Anderson streets, North Side. The Commercial Realty Company was the broker.

A property in Beechwood boulevard, Squirrel Hill, lot 39x97 feet, has been sold by Dennis Creeden to John Petrone.

A. V. Mason, of the Pittsburgh Terminal Warehouse and Transfer Company has announced lease renewals in the terminal buildings, South Side, for the following firms: Huff, Barnes & Opie, Inc.; Hirsch Brothers & Co., the R. M. Hollingshead Company and the Postal Telegraph and Cable Company.

In Ingram, the Charters Realty Company sold to E. A. Clark 100x200 feet with an 11-room house and garage in Prospect avenue.

A new lot plan known as Evergreen Acres has been laid out along Evergrdeen road in Ross Township by Robert Milligan. The plan includes 20 lots.

A. C. Lobert has sold to Joseph H. Loeffler 30x122 feet with a house in East Agnew avenue, Carrick.

Fuelless Motor Runs 3 Months, Man Says

CHARLEROI, Pa., March 9.—A youthful inventor who withholds his identity but admits Monessen as his home, claims he has not only perfected a fuelless motor, but in addition states that through his discovery of conquering the elements he could put any community under a ball of fire with from 5,000,000 to 30,000,000 volts of electricity. He says three months ago his 20-pound fuelless motor started running and has continued uninterrupted, turning over 1,000 times a minute.

Sign This Petition and Help to Cut Taxes

Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph

To the Congress of the United States:

We, the undersigned, respectfully urge that the Congress of the United States give immediate consideration to the proposition that there be a downward revision of all income taxes on all earned incomes, such as salaries or fees, or commissions for personal services. We urge this because of the many instances where wage or fee or commission earners sometimes have just a few years of good incomes and prior to and after that period have substantially less incomes. Their period of better earnings which might give the average wage earner a chance to accumulate some capital is heavily taxed and they seldom have a new opportunity for the accumulation of savings which might tend to make more useful citizens of them.

Labor in general, lawyers, doctors, architects, clerical workers, salesmen, dentists, engineers, journalists, accountants, actors, motion picture actors, singers, musicians, and all the other professional people are in the same plight in the matter of earned income, as distinguished from earnings on capital, and, since they represent a great percentage of the citizenry of the country, we beg the gravest consideration of this proposition. Each signer below hereby enrolls as a member of the Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph League for the Downward Revision of Taxes on earned incomes and will work with that newspaper toward the end stated.

Permission is hereby granted the Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph to list the signer in the proper Labor, Clerical or Professional Division of the said League for presentation of our signatures to the United States Congress for the stated purpose.

The signer is not obliged to make any kind of contribution or to do anything except to give his moral support to this movement.

NAME / ADDRESS	State Below Kind of Profession or Other Occupation

FIRST 'PITTSBURGH HOUR' ON KDKA TONIGHT AT 10

By DARRELL V. MARTIN, Radio Editor.

PITTSBURGH will begin to tell its story to the world by radio tonight.

Things that make our city famous will be related in song and story in the first of a series of 14 concerts depicting the cultural and industrial life of the greatest steel producing center in the universe.

Tonight's program, KDKA at 10:01 o'clock, is sponsored by the City of Pittsburgh. It will consist of a cleverly constructed "scenario" and a musical entertainment of the highest order.

Artists include Mme. Glen-Campbell, soprano, who returned recently from a concert tour of Scotland; the City Arms Orchestra with Victor Saudek, conductor, and the Chamber of Commerce Male Chorus, under the direction of Harvey Gaul.

It is the intention of the "Pittsburgh Hour" to reveal to the people of not only Pittsburgh itself and the United States but foreign countries as well the real Pittsburgh, with its stimulating community life and its many notable and famous institutions, art, education, religious and recreational, financial and industrial.

MARIARI TO PLAY

The $45,000 Stradivarius which Mischa Elman used in building up a career will be played by Hugo Mariani tonight at 6:30 during the dinner concert through WCAE.

The Purol Band will transform its group into a barnyard ensemble, KDKA at 8, when it plays a catchy number, "The Rooster and the Hens."

We are anxious to hear what can be done with Arthur Pryor's "Whistler and His Dog" on the pipe organ, Lew White at 8 o'clock, WCAE.

Brock and Schlee, the famous aviators, are scheduled to speak over WCAE at 8:30 at the opening of the Aircraft Show.

Of exceptional interest to every citizen should be the talks by Speaker Nicholas Longworth and Senator George H. Moses on the National Forum period, WJAS at 10 p. m. They will discuss the approaching session of Congress.

Gov. Franklin D. Roosevelt, Mayor James J. Walker of New York, and Daniel Carter Beard, National Boy Scout Commissioner, will send messages of good cheer to Commander Richard Byrd and the men of the Antarctic expedition now established at their base at Little America, inside the ice barrier at the Bay of Whales. These messages will be carried by WGY and its two inter-continental short wave stations, W2XAF and W2XAD tonight at 11 o'clock. They will be heard in the Antarctic at 4 p. m.

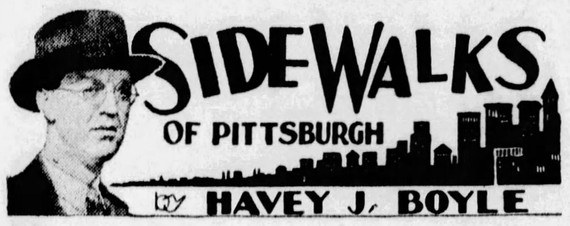
FINAL WEEK REACHED FOR ENTRIES IN FLAG CONTEST

NORTH SIDE, SOUTH HILLS And EAST END NEWS



SIDEWALKS OF PITTSBURGH

by HAVEY J. BOYLE

VILLAGE GOSSIP: Congressman Paddy Sullivan, of the Strip, is a boxing devotee. . . . Sometimes he journeys as far as McKeesport to see the boys in action. . . . His brother, Luke, a state assemblyman, is also a well-known ringsider. . . . They say that Mayor Charles Kline has a chef who prepares snacks in His Honor's office. . . . Julius Tannen, when entertained by the Variety Club, mistook an imported piano player for Luke Barnett, the local jokester. . . . A certain movie critic won a frown from a certain theatrical man because the m. c. intimated a "double" sang "Weary River" for Richard Barthelmess. . . . Since then a magazine story has come out with the same scandal, if any. . . . What's the difference who sings the song if it's sung well, is the stand of ye ed in this great matter. . . . A song shop in the village is operated by a former newsboy, who is just like that with the celebrated Irving Berlin. . . . Joe Miller is the name of the local boy who made good in the popular song realm. . . . Incidentally, "Mother Machree" still gets as big a display on the song shop stands as the newest hits. . . . Curiously, that song was written by an Irish boy although it's about a fine old Irish lady. . . . Bill Doheny is back in town after a stay in the South. . . . He contemplates a trip to the West Coast. . . . He will be remembered as the master of ceremonies when the General Grant Hotel was operating where now stands, in sharp contrast, a savings bank at Sixth avenue and Grant street. . . . John Douglas, who had the contract for the William Penn Annex, soon to be opened, proudly reports a record in the matter of casualties on that structure. . . . Not a man was killed. . . . Contractors will tell you that the normal expectancy on any large building is about five fatalities among the doughty and nervy structural iron workers. . . . The fat boy who plays the violin and leads the orchestra in the William Penn dining room used to perform at the Willows at Oakmont when Pres Anderson ran that place. . . . Theater ticket sellers on their days off loaf at other theater ticket windows. . . . There's Hayden Gentry talking shop at the Davis window.

THE Motor Square Garden in the East End boasts the only door especially made for airplanes. The first airplane show here made it necessary to cut a hole in the building to permit the monster planes' entrance and exit. At least this is what John Hernon reports.

* * *

At Kelly avenue and Peebles street in a Verona car Verona-bound Motorman Arthur Moser rang his bell signaling the horse-drawn bread wagon ahead to clear the track. There was not the desired response. Motorman Moser rang the bell again and again, for four squares. By this time Motorman Moser was beginning to say things to himself. Finally he stopped his car, ran up to the bread-wagon all set for a well-rounded speech, to discover there was no driver on the wagon. A few seconds later a startled gentleman who may be described as the sometime driver of the wagon appeared. Motorman Moser had been toying with an incipient runaway horse. Mr. Grant Rigby is the author of the piece, assisted by the Bell Telephone Company, and the Acme Lead Pencil Company.

SIDEWALKS extends compliments to the man who selected the prize-winners in the Remember When contest, and of course, to the contributors. Every day items of considerable and varied interests were selected and published in the feature that ends today. It was a job that must have taken infinite patience and a clear head. I always say give credit where credit is due.

Dead

TOMMY FLAHERTY

Tommy, 2, son of patrolman John Flaherty, 413 McKee place, is dead today and more than 1,000 patrolmen, informed of the news over the police ticker system wires, are sorry. When physicians called for blood, police responded, but the transfusion was found unnecessary.

N. SIDE SCHOOL IS URGED

Civic organizations were urged to support the movement for a new building or remodeling of Allegheny High School at a meeting of the Federation of Civic Bodies of the North Side. Each organization was asked to petition the Board of Education to this end.

Edward C. Nied was chosen president, taking the place of L. B. Seefried, who, after 12 years as head of the organization, declined to be a candidate. Other officers chosen were: First vice president, Frank J. Berner; second vice president, H. H. Steinmeyer; secretary, Adolph Mayer, Jr.; treasurer, Fred C. Klussman.

Emsworth Pastor Falls, Breaks Arm

The Rev. Theophile Meyer, rector of Sacred Heart Catholic Church, Emsworth, for 34 years, is suffering from a fractured right arm as a result of a fall. His duties are in charge of his assistant, the Rev. Joseph Rossenbach, and the Rev. F. J. Retka, superintendent of the Holy Family Orphanage.

DOG ATTACKS TWO SCHOOL PUPILS

Two school children, a boy and a girl, on their way to attend the afternoon sessions at the Schaeffer Public School, Crafton Heights, were bitten by a small dog in front of the school.

Jack Hudson, 9, 117 Fairhaven street, was bitten on the thumb on the left hand and Helen Iranek, 8, 125 Roundtop street, was bitten on the left ankle.

The girl was given first aid by Miss E. G. Carlin, principal of the school and then treated by Dr. J. S. Morgan, 17 Stratmore avenue. The boy was also treated by Dr. Morgan.

Thomas McGrew, 14 Delmont street, the owner of the dog, was notified by police of the West End Station, to keep the animal tied up for 10 days. The Animal Rescue League was notified.

THIRD IS NAMED IN MAIL THEFT

A Morris Hendel was named in Morals Court today as the third suspect sought in a $125,000 mail robbery which occurred June 28 at Toronto, Canada. He is being sought.

Harry Meyers, 36, of 5624 Darlington road, and Catherine Meyers, 27, of 204 East North avenue, arrested yesterday as suspects, were held over by Magistrate A. D. Brandon at request of detectives while they seek Hendel.

Detective Thomas Morgan testified that Meyers, alias "Dopey Davis," was in Buffalo, N. Y., Monday with Hendel. Hendel was holding a telephone conversation with a broker concerning sale of bonds, alleged to have been stolen in the mail holdup, according to Morgan, when a Buffalo detective got on the line and aroused suspicions of Hendel. Hendel and Meyers subsequently came to Pittsburgh, Morgan said, but Hendel left Wednesday night.

Meyers denied having been in Buffalo Monday. He testified he had not been out of Pittsburgh for four months. Previous to that, he testified, he worked in a gambling house in Dayton, O. The Meyers women also denied knowing anything concerning the bond robbery.

Detective Morgan later asserted that a detective was on his way to Pittsburgh with a receipt said to have been given by a broker for bonds turned over to him.

Some of the bonds are said to have been sent to Pittsburgh and disposed of here. The receipt, it is said, was intercepted in a letter mailed to Hendel at the Niagara Hotel, Buffalo, from Pittsburgh.

OLDEST CYCLIST WED 59 YEARS

CYCLISTS HERE IN 1880'S

MAN 81, FAVORS BIKE TO AUTO

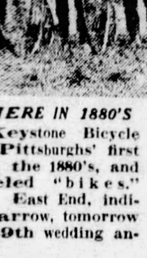
America's oldest bicycle rider has been discovered in Pittsburgh. He is Charles Beltz, of 937 North St. Clair street, who, with Mrs. Beltz, will celebrate their fifty-ninth wedding anniversary tomorrow.

Although 81, Beltz is still a bicycle enthusiast, and frequently goes out for a spin. "Give me the old 'bike' any time in preference to the fast 'gas buggy' of today," the octogenarian opined. Beltz, who looks more like 60 than past four score years, attributes his splendid health mainly to two things — the bicycle and his wife's cooking.

Beltz

ADDS TO HEALTH

"Riding a bicycle is one of the healthiest sports," he explained. "You get somewhere, alright, with the automobile, but you don't develop your body muscles with it."



Mrs. Beltz

As for his wife's cooking, he waxed eloquent. "It not only made me healthy, but is one of the most important factors for making a married man's home life a joy," he opined. "Women of today are largely to blame for so many marital shipwrecks, because you can't expect to win a man's affection and devotion with canned goods. If the girls of today only realized the truth of the saying, 'A man's love comes through his stomach' there would be fewer divorces."

CITES OWN CASE

Beltz admitted that his ideas about what makes for marital happiness may be old-fashioned, but cited his own case as proof of their validity. "Don't fight, work together, stay at home more, have consideration for one another, let the wife listen to her husband a little more, let her make the home comfortable and let both develop a sense of humor," is his advice to young married couples.

Beltz was the first man in Pittsburgh to ride a bicycle in 1879. He has been riding ever since. He was one of the organizers of the Keystone Bicycle Club—a popular sports club in the days when the high-wheel "bike" was in the heighth of fashion. With other members of the organization, he took part in many bicycle races. He was one of the winners in the Pittsburg' to Cleveland race in 1883.

Beltz married Elizabeth King in 1870 in Pittsburgh. They have six children, six grandchildren and one great-grandchild. He is a Civil War veteran and took part in the battle of Gettysburg.

CHARLES BELTZ AT 81 STILL PEDALS

STREET CHANGE DAMAGES CHURCH, CITY IS SUED

Averring that their church will have to be practically half rebuilt, as a result of the widening of Irvine avenue, the First Baptist Church, Greenfield and Irvine streets, through Trustees Walter Woods and Emerson Kennedy, have filed suit for damages in Common Pleas Court against the City of Pittsburgh.

The street was widened through ordinance approved May 16, 1923, and viewers allowed the church $1,200 damages. This is entirely inadequate, say the trustees, who, while demanding no specific amount, ask that a jury fix the amount the church has suffered. One corner of the frame church house had to be removed and, the trustees say, the entire edifice will have to be moved back onto a new foundation and much reconstruction work done.

Forced to Wash Hubby's Face, Gets Divorce

Upon the wife's testimony that her husband beat and choked her every evening when she asked him to wash the engine grime off his face and hands before eating supper, Judge Frank P. Patterson granted a decree to Mrs. Mary E. Barklam, 36, 2164 McClure avenue, from William J. Barklam, locomotive fireman, of 239 Maryland avenue, Millvale.

They had been married in 1920 and lived together, for eight years, until last October. In addition to hitting her, it was testified he upset the supper table once or twice a week.

Kiwanis Club at Wilkinsburg Meets

The regular weekly luncheon meeting of the Kiwanis Club of Wilkinsburg was held in the Penn Lincoln Hotel, President Roy Whitfield presiding. Dr. Morgan and Earl Dean, of the Homewood club, and E. W. Meyers, secretary of the Pittsburgh Equitable Meter Company, were guests. President Ed Jenkins, of the Wilkinsburg Lions Club, was present to convey the thanks of the Wilkinsburg Lions for the bouquet of flowers sent by the Kiwanians to their dinner in honor of their district governor, Dr. Haines. The speaker was the Rev. William Porkess, rector of St. Stephen's Episcopal Church, who pointed out that the power to play and the power to pray go together.

West View Firemen Elect 1929 Officers

Volunteer firemen of No. 2 Engine Company, West View, elected officers at their annual business session and banquet in their quarters, Amherst avenue, Thursday night. The following were chosen: Captain, C. W. Pannier; first lieutenant, Elmer Taylor; second lieutenant, George B. Bleming, Jr.; secretary, M. F. Santmeyer; treasurer, M. J. Taylor; directors, W. Zander, Charles Callen, Ford Rankin, E. V. Gass, C. A. McClain, W. J. Keist was toastmaster. Councilmen James H. Dunn and Walter F. Hunt praised the firemen's efficiency and the record of Ford Rankin, retiring captain.

Desertion Charged By Carnegie Wife

Mrs. Elizabeth Malhoim, 3113 West Liberty avenue, has filed suit for divorce in Common Pleas Court against Monte Maholm, 611 Lydia street, Carnegie, charging desertion. They were married December 22, 1926, and separated April 6, 1927.

Friday and Saturday of next week have been declared formal holidays in Dormont, by Burgess William S. Haddock, the occasion being the tenth anniversary of the South Hills' Post No. 156, American Legion.

Burgess Haddock, in his proclamation paid tribute to the work being done for disabled veterans, their orphans and widows and urged all residents to co-operate with the Post in its membership drive.

LAST WEEK TO ENTER CONTEST

One more week remains in which to enter the Flag Contest of the United States Flag Association, being sponsored by the Sun-Telegraph and 17 other Hearst newspapers.

Schools, Clubs, Boy and Girl Scout Troops and patriotic organizations wishing to conduct local flag contest units and who have not as yet sent in their applications to the Flag Contest Editor of the Sun-Telegraph should do so before March 15.

POPULARITY GROWS

The Flag Contest has assumed unexpected proportions, having developed into the largest, most successful and far-reaching patriotic movement among the school children of the country in history. More than 150,000 boys and girls between the ages of 14 and 18 are now competing for the wonderful awards offered the winners.

The two boys and two girls receiving the highest honors in the national competition will receive a trip around the world, with all expenses paid, spending money and wardrobe furnished.

The regional winners, the boy and girl selected by the Jury of Award announced in yesterday's Sun-Telegraph, will be sent to Washington, D. C. to receive, in addition to the Cross of Honor of the United States Flag Association, $200 in cash, to be applied to a scholarship such as they may elect.

WINNERS GET TOUR

The regional winners also will be taken on a patriotic pilgrimage through the east, visiting Gettysburg, Mount Vernon, Valley Forge, Philadelphia, New York City, Concord and other places of interest in the making of American history.

The Flag Contest consists of answering 75 questions on the American Flag and in writing a short essay on "Old Glory's Greatest Glory," that can be recited in five minutes.

Instructions, materials and questions necessary to conduct a local contest unit will be sent without charge upon application to the Flag Contest Editor, Sun-Telegraph, Pittsburgh.

Residents Plan Civic Organization

Residents of Quaker Gardens, Virginia Manor, Marlin Plan and Colonial Heights, Mt. Lebanon Township, at a meeting held in the Lincoln School, discussed the formation of a community civic organization to advance the interests of the township. The chairman was authorized to appoint a subcommittee to report with definite plans at a meeting to be held at the same place March 19.

Today's Flagism

The historical engagement of the Monitor and the Merrimac took place on March 9, 1862, this being the first naval battle in which iron-clad fighting ships participated. The fight spelled the doom of the wooden ship as a fighting unit. How the Navy—charged with protecting Old Glory on the sea—has kept pace with the changing conditions of naval warfare since that period is known to every American boy and girl.

BOARD SILENT ON DR. BOYCE

The board of trustees of the Bellevue Presbyterian church last night held a meeting to consider the reported ousting of the Rev. Dr. Isaac Boyce, and today reported that they had unanimously decided that they "had nothing to say."

B. B. Bragdon, member of the board, said that was the only decision arrived at which he, or any of the others cared to talk about. He refused to say whether the trustees had learned who comprised the "Church Welfare Committee," anonymously championing Dr. Boyce's cause.

Other officers of the church would not even admit that Dr. Boyce had lost his position, although the new tentative budget of the church makes no provision for a salary for him.

Objects to Wife's Company, Divorced

Upon the husband's testimony that his wife had left him after he questioned her about the company she was keeping, a divorce was granted in Common Pleas Court by Judge Frank P. Patterson to Lloyd I. Williams, 44, of Leetsdale, against Mrs. Bertha A. Williams, now of Ambridge. They were married 23 years ago, on May 14, 1906, and have two daughters, aged 21 and 17. Mrs. Williams was 16 when she married.

Volunteers to Hear Regimental Heads

Col. C. C. Herron, of Philadelphia, regimental commander of the Volunteers of America, and Capt. Nancy Patchell, regimental secretary, will speak today at a rally in the organization's quarters, 724 North Diamond street. Col. Herron also will speak tomorrow night. Maj. Richard Ives, local commander, and his staff will welcome Col. Herron.

Wife in Miami, Fla., Sues for Divorce

Mrs. Ann Kober, 604 North Canal street, has filed suit for divorce in Common Pleas Court against John Kober, charging that he has deserted her and is now living in Miami, Fla. They were married August 1, 1923, and the desertion took place April 10, 1925.

CHAMBER O. K.'S METRO PLAN

The Metropolitan charter was indorsed at the monthly meeting of the North Side Chamber of Commerce, Thursday night, in the Allegheny branch, Y. M. C. A.

Members of the organization urged prompt action on the charter by the Legislature, that Pittsburgh may be given credit for the increased population in the 1930 census.

A protest was voiced against the 25-cent bus fare to the charged by the Pittsburgh Moto. Coach Company on the proposed new Bellevue route. The chamber will back the fight begun by the Allied Boards of Trade before the State Public Service Commission.

Injured on Trolley, Wins $5,500 Award

Damages of $5,500 were awarded Mrs. Nellie J. Parker, 39 Soho street, in her $20,000 suit against the Pittsburgh Railways Company, by a jury in Judge George V. Moore's court. Mrs. Parker was boarding a car at Brady and Forbes streets, May 16, 1927, when the car started suddenly, throwing her on her back, which she claimed was sprained and permanently injured.

Betsy Ross Club to Honor Farmer Head

Mrs. Ella Northrup, past president of the Betsy Ross Club, will be honored by members of that organization, in her home, 2369 Brownsville road, Wednesday evening, when she and her husband, Charles Northrup, celebrate their golden anniversary.

Widow and Nephew Left $100,000 Estate

Frank S. Heisley, of 114 Biddle street, Wilkinsburg leaves his $100,000 estate in trust to his wife, Sarah Elma Heisley, and nephew, Fred W. Heisley, in his will which just filed for probate. The Union Trust Company was named administrator.

CATHERINE MEYERS

Arrested with Harry Meyers, alias "Dopey Davis," Catherine Meyers, 25, as she appeared in Central Police Station. They were to have a hearing today in Morals Court as suspects in the $125,000 mail robbery at Toronto, Canada, last June.

Five Children Are Left Mother's Estate

Five sons and daughters are the heirs to the $3,000 estate of Mrs. Margaret Hickey, of 27 Almeda street, whose will has been filed for probate. They are Lillian, who was named executrix; Eva, Catherine, Allen and Archibald Hickey.

Dormont Mothers To Hear Educator

The child study department of the Dormont Mothers' Club, under the leadership of Mrs. J. T. Johnson, will meet in the home of Mrs. H. C. McKeever, 1315 Arkansas avenue, Dormont, Tuesday evening. C. E. Glass, principal of the Dormont High School, will speak on the subject of "The Community and the High School." Miss Helen Gleis, violinist; Miss Jean Mingis, reader, and Miss Lois McKeever, soloist, will complete the program. Mrs. McKeever will be assisted by Mrs. L. E. Bubenheim and Mrs. Harry J. Trimble.

Will Rogers Says

NEW YORK, March 9.

All I know is just what I read tonight in the papers.

Mr. Coolidge took the dog out.

The cabinet had its first meeting, and Vice President Curtis introduced Mr. Hoover to the members. There is no end to that fellow Curtis' acquaintances.

Say, that Rockefeller-Stewart thing certainly ought to be a lesson to us all. Never go up against a Rockefeller when he's got an oil can in his hand.

Yours, WILL.

Obituary

Edward Rahm Funeral

Funeral services for Edward Rahm, of 6700 Brighton road, Ben Avon, scion of a pioneer Pittsburgh family, will be held at 2:30 o'clock tomorrow afternoon.

Mr. Rahm died Friday in the Allegheny General Hospital, which is on the site of the old Rahm estate. His father founded the first banking firm in Pittsburgh, that of Kramer and Rahm, which long had a banking house in Wood street. As a boy, Mr. Rahm resided in what is now the Point Breeze district of the East End and his mother gave the name of Beechwood road to what is now Beechwood boulevard. He was graduated from Yale in 1882.

He leaves his widow, Mrs. Maude McDonald Rahm; two daughters, Mrs. Charles E. Johnson, of Pittsburgh, and Mrs. Raymond D. MacCart, of Buffalo; one son, Edwin Rahm, 3rd; and nine grandchildren.

Harry S. Wolf

Harry S. Wolfe died yesterday at his home, 1915 Charles street. He was born in Tarentum and had resided on the North Side most of his life. Mr. Wolfe was a member of the official board of the Buena Vista street Methodist Episcopal Church; a charter member of the steamfitters' union, No. 499, and a member of the Manchester Council of the Sons and Daughters of Liberty. He leaves his widow, Emma A. Wolfe, and two sons, Jack M. and Charles C. Wolfe. Funeral services will be held at the Littens Funeral Home, 4047 Perrysville avenue, at 2:30 o'clock tomorrow.

Carl J. Melquist

Carl J. Melquist, 88, died Thursday at the home of his son, Robert L. Melquist, 1426 Mariboro avenue. Born in Sweden in 1840, Mr. Melquist came to this country in 1880, settling at Summit Mines, Fayette County. He moved to McKeesport in 1886 and had resided there since. He was a member of the Swedish Baptist Church, McKeesport. He leaves three sons, Robert L., John and Fred W. Melquist, and two daughters, Mrs. Ellen Bihl and Mrs. Amanda Larson. Funeral services will be held today at 3 o'clock from Taylor's chapel, 7127 Kelly street. Interment will be at Chicago.

Elmer Campbell

Elmer Campbell, 68, died at the residence of his niece, Mrs. J. B. McConaugha, East Main street, Louisville, O., on Wednesday. Mr. Campbell was a lifelong resident of Pittsburgh and was employed as assistant funeral director for F. C. Beinhauer for 28 years. He was a member of Iron City Council, Jr. O. U. A. M., and J. W. Mooth Council, Jr. O. U. A. M., of Louisville, O. He leaves one brother, Milford Campbell, of Jeannette, Pa. His wife, Margaret McCleary Campbell, died some years ago.

Frederick O. Willer

Frederick O. Willer, 52, died at his home, 129 Carrick avenue, today at 2:20 a. m., after a lingering illness. He was born on the South Side and for the last 16 years was with W. M. Laird & Co. as a shoe salesman. Mr. Willer was an active member of the German United Evangelical Church of Birmingham, Matthias Commandery 93, of the Ancient and Illustrious Order of Knights of Malta, and Welcome Council No. 134, Junior Order United American Mechanics. Mr. Willer leaves his widow and one daughter, Dorothy Willer.

enacted by the City of Pittsburgh, in Council assembled, and it is hereby ordained and enacted by the authority of the same, That Festival way, from Marchand street to the south line of Hauser way, be graded, paved and curbed.

SECTION 2. The Mayor and the Director of the Department of Public Works are hereby authorized and directed to advertise, in accordance with the Acts of Assembly of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania, and the Ordinances of the said City of Pittsburgh relating thereto and regulating the same, for proposals for the grading, paving and curbing of said street between said points; the contract or contracts therefor to be let in the manner directed by said Acts of Assembly and Ordinances; and the contract price or contract prices, if let in separate contracts, not to exceed the total sum of Six Thousand ($6,000.00) Dollars, which is the estimate of the whole cost as furnished by the Department of Public Works.

SECTION 3. The costs, damages and expenses of the same shall be assessed against and collected from properties specially benefited thereby, in accordance with the provisions of the Acts of Assembly of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania relating thereto and regulating the same, and the City's share of said work to be chargeable to and payable from Bond Fund No. 293, Street Bonds, 1928.

SECTION 4. That any Ordinance or part of Ordinance, conflicting with the provisions of this Ordinance, be and the same is hereby repealed so far as the same affects this Ordinance.

BILL NO. 4052.

AN ORDINANCE—Authorizing and directing the grading of a triangular area of the roadway and sidewalks, paving and curbing of Sebring avenue extending along the northerly 6-foot line, from the line dividing Lots Nos. 116 and 117 West Liberty Plan No. 4 to a point 35 feet eastwardly therefrom, describing said area, letting a contract therefor and providing that the costs, damages and expenses of the same be assessed against and collected from property specially benefited therefor.

SECTION 1. Be it ordained and enacted by the City of Pittsburgh, in Council assembled, and it is hereby by the authority of the same, That a triangular area of the roadway and sidewalks of Sebring avenue extending along the northerly 6-foot line thereof, from the line dividing Lots Nos. 116 and 117 West Liberty Plan No. 4 to a point 35 feet eastwardly therefrom, be graded, paved and curbed. The said area to be bounded as follows: Beginning on the southerly 6-foot line of Sebring avenue at a point opposite the line dividing Lots Nos. 116 and 117 West Liberty Plan No. 4; thence extending northwardly to the north 6-foot line of Sebring avenue at a point opposite said line dividing Lots Nos. 116 and 117 West Liberty Plan No. 4; thence eastwardly along the north 6-foot line of Sebring avenue to a point 35 feet eastwardly from the line dividing said Lots Nos. 116 and 117 West Liberty Plan No. 4; thence extending in a southwestwardly direction across the sidewalks and roadway of Sebring avenue to the point of beginning.

SECTION 2. The Mayor and the Director of the Department of Public Works are hereby authorized and directed to advertise, in accordance with the Acts of Assembly of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania, and the ordinances of the said City of Pittsburgh relating thereto and regulating the same, for proposals for the grading, paving and curbing of said street between said points; the contract or contracts therefor to be let in the manner directed by said Acts of Assembly and ordinances; and the contract price or contract prices, if let in separate contracts, not to exceed the total sum of Five Thousand ($5,000.00) Dollars, which is the estimate of the whole costs as furnished by the Department of Public Works.

SECTION 3. The costs, damages and expenses of the same shall be assessed against and collected from properties specially benefited thereby, in accordance with the provisions of the Acts of Assembly of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania relating thereto and regulating the same, and the City's share of said work to be chargeable to and payable from Bond Fund No. 293, Street Bonds, 1928.

SECTION 4. That any Ordinance or part of Ordinance, conflicting with the provisions of this Ordinance, be and the same is hereby repealed, so far as the same affects this Ordinance.

BUGS BAER Says

MR. HOOVER'S first official act as President was to give a dinner to 700 people.

Herbert still thinks he is feeding the Belgians.

"Bugs" Baer

Having done things on a magnificent yardstick, it seems that Mr. Hoover cannot throttle his hospitality down to the vanishing point.

This supper was very different from the last administration. The menu consisted of sandwiches, punch, ice cream and coffee.

We would not like to be the host to 700 people. If we ever thought that there would be a time when 700 people thought of eating at our house, we would send out some very insulting invitations.

However, Mr. Hoover is acclimated to this distressing hospitality. Having fed the world at large, he is accustomed to telling the waiter to bring in another boatload of sardines and an acre of macaroons.

If Mr. Hoover is going to feed 'em 700 at a clip, we would like to grab the hat checking privilege over at the White House.

We would imagine that the Hoover chef would think less of quality and go in more for quantity.

That chef has plenty of work ahead of him for the next four years. When preparing each dinner he first must call up Herbert and ask:

"Who is it today, Mr. President, the Army or the Navy?"

Mr. Coolidge did plenty of entertaining, but he spread it out very thin like gold leaf on the Capitol dome.

Every President has an aunt who bakes beautiful apple pies. When she can't give it away to her neighbors she sends it to the White House.

But Mr. Hoover's wholesale hospitality calls for an aunt who drives a pie wagon.

Looks as if the White House is operating on the ancient Egyptian food routine and that we are now in line for seven years of plenty.

Third and Last Joke of the Rev. Dr. Byles

In his Guide Board to Health, Peace and Competence, published in 1869, W. W. Hall tells how the Rev. Dr. Byles, of Boston, whose witty remark about his wife you read yesterday, served a neat trick upon this same good lady at another time.

"The doctor," says Mr. Hill, "had some curiosities which people occasionally called to see. One day two ladies called. Mrs. B. was in the suds, and begged her husband to shut her in a closet while he exhibited his curiosities. He did so. After exhibiting everything else he had, he said: 'Now, ladies, I have reserved my greatest curiosity to the last,' and, opening the door, he exhibited Mrs. B to the ladies."

Big Law Firm Indorses Fair Earned Income Tax

Significant indorsement of the Sun-Telegraph movement for amendment of the income tax law to provide equitable taxation of earned income is that contained in a letter from the law firm, Smith, Shaw, McClay & Seifert, to William Randolph Hearst, president of the Sun-Telegraph.

"Your movement," it states, "supporting the reduction of the tax on earned income is deserving of the fullest assistance. It is constructive. The large difference between the tax on earned income and the tax on income from invested capital is so flagrant as to show the lack of uniformity in our present income tax system."

This unsolicited commendation is especially meaningful because of the eminence of the source from which it came. Legal history of Allegheny County has a shining page for this firm, which had its beginning when Philander C. Knox and James H. Reed formed a partnership. Big honors were to come to these men. Knox was to become twice a cabinet member and United States Senator. Reed was to become a United States District Court judge and ultimately head of the firm.

The practice of this firm always has included the important work of the larger industrial interests of the district. We regard this indorsement of the campaign to give the brain worker, professional man and wage earner a square deal in the matter of tax on earned income by a concern with such a background as a great testimonial to the merit of the movement.

The tax readjustment also has been indorsed by resolution of the Pittsburgh Business and Professional Women's Club, and the matter of supporting the campaign has been taken up by the Chamber of Commerce. Petition blanks published daily in the Sun-Telegraph are being numerously signed. If you have not signed, do so now and have your friends sign as well.

The volume of public sentiment in favor of this change in taxation laws, to give earned income at least as much privilege as tax on income from property will have great weight with Congress. Do your part. It is made easy for you to express your wish to our national law-makers.

State Should Provide Aid for Drug Addicts

A matter which our Legislature should consider in its present session is that of the state making provision for the treatment of narcotic addiction. There should be a farm and hospital for the treatment of persons who become drug slaves first and victims of a most terrible malady later. Such an institution is needed in every state, in addition to, and in cooperation with, the national institutions to be established under the provisions of the national law, the passage of which was most energetically promoted by a Pittsburgh Congressman, Representative Stephen G. Porter.

This problem of drug addiction is much more serious than the general public realizes. Some idea of the scope of the evil has been indicated recently in revelations about the dope ring, with seizures of narcotics valued at millions of dollars.

Part of the fight against it should be steps to provide that a patient be made aware when a narcotic is being prescribed for him in any compound, by having the word "narcotic" in parenthesis follow the name of the drug prescribed if it be a narcotic. The law now prevents druggists from refilling prescriptions containing narcotics. It should go a step farther.

Reputable physicians and druggists should aid in this campaign. Fortunately for society the honorable doctor and the honest druggist is the one most of us come into contact with, but they know there are black sheep in every profession and that some physicians of that stripe are virtually licensed by the government to spread the horror of narcotic addiction through being able to make cash settlement in many cases for the irreparable damage they have done.

The upright physician and pharmacist has nothing to fear in making more difficult the access to narcotics.

Wise Mussolini

See America AND Europe.

Abolishing the $10 visa fee on American visitors' passports Mussolini shows intelligent friendliness. Other nations might abolish that nuisance, for the American, when he starts TRAVELING starts SPENDING, and leaves behind whatever he takes with him.

Wise Americans, seeing America first, of course, will make it a point to see Italy also. Landing in Naples, driving thence through Rome, Florence, Pisa, Milan, Genoa, along the Riviera to Cannes or Marseilles and north to Paris, you can plant in your own and your children's minds more knowledge of men and what they have done than many books could teach you.

You can take your automobile, big or little, with you on the boat very cheaply, and bring it back with your foreign custom tax refunded, and big American motor companies have their agencies all over Europe.

So travel, first from the Atlantic to the Pacific, from the Gulf to Canada and INTO AND THROUGH CANADA, then through Europe.

A Good Flier

Ferrarin, of Italy.

The National League of Aviators has declared the Italian flier, Col. Artura Ferrarin, "the best aviator in the world in 1928." Ferrarin broke the sustained flight record, since then broken all to pieces by Americans, and then he flew from Rome to Natal, in Brazil, breaking distance records.

The Italians are wonderfully good fliers, with courage unlimited. But American fliers would rule the world if this country would give them the machines.

THE BALANCE

Tales That Are Told

Hard to Find

HE was very old, but passionately attached to the Royal and Ancient game. The more he played, however, the more inaccurate became his strokes, and his play generally was worse and worse as time went on.

Finally, after missing the ball 15 times in succession on one occasion, he turned to his patient caddie and remarked:

"Dear, dear! I suppose there can't be any worse players than myself."

"Well," returned the caddie consolingly, "there may be worse players, but, of course, they don't play."

The Last Straw

KNOWING the great actor's reputation for temperament, the stage manager had decided to meet him more than half way.

He gave out that all the stage hands were to wear rubber-soled shoes and ordered them to be as noiseless in their duties as possible. No conversation was allowed.

"Listen, sir," he remarked to the actor. "You can hear that clock ticking over there."

What a Pal?

BILL and Jack had worked in the same mill for many years. One day Bill got fast in the shafting, and was whirled round and round before the engine could be stopped. He was extracted from the belting more dead than alive.

Jack, who had been a horrified witness, bent over him and cried, "Bill, lad, are yer all right? Speak to your old pal Jack. Come on, Bill, lad."

Bill slowly opened his eyes. With a wry face he looked at his pal, and replied, indignantly: "Speak to yer, eh! Why, haven't I just passed yer three times and yer never said a word?"

Worst Story I Have Heard Today

By WILL ROGERS

THEY'RE telling one on Mayor Thompson, of Chicago. Somehow, there's been a lot of words between Mayor Thompson and his enemies, but neither side ever thought of telling a joke before, so it's been kinda sad listening to the arguments up to date.

They say a Chicago man got an idea of flying from Chicago to London and back again. He was talking to Thompson about it.

"It's a fin. idea, and you can do it" says Big Bill, according to the story. "But don't inflate your tires on your landing wheel in London."

"Why not if they need air?"

"No, sir! We won't have none of them London fogs turned loose in Chicago, and who knows but you might have a blowout when you land here after the trip."

LISTEN, WORLD!

By Elsie Robinson

IT'S the old story.

He has someone else he likes better and he wants to be on his way.

"But I'll never give him a divorce," writes an indignant wife. "We have been married eight years and no other woman is going to take him from me. I'll fight for him if it takes all my life. Don't you think I am right, Miss Robinson?"

How long would I fight to keep a husband?

NOT ONE SECOND, LADY.

The minute he wished to leave me he could be on his way, with my blessing.

I would try for years to serve the man I loved.

But I wouldn't try to hold him for an instant if he really wanted to be free.

THE MAN OR WOMAN WHO WANTS TO BE FREE HAS A RIGHT TO BE FREE.

We do not own our husbands or wives.

They do, indeed. But what of it? They may make such refusal legal, but it does not make it right.

There are still laws on some of our statute books which permit a husband to beat his wife, provided the stick he used "be no larger around than his thumb." That makes such a beating legal. Does it make it right?

Our courts are only as wise and ethical as we who make them. The decisions of our judges can only be as progressive as we permit them to be. And the average voter is still far from being civilized in spots. Our laws and institutions are filled with evidence of our ignorance, superstition, greediness and spite. Our refusal to grant divorces is one of these evidences.

People should, it is true, be held responsible for the children they bring into the world. The government itself should see that a man is "held" to that responsibility. It should be impossible for a father to avoid supporting his children by stepping into another state, as he now can do.

In this department of marriage we need much wider and more stringent laws. But divorce should be freely granted to those who ask it. And the mere wish for divorce should suffice, without the introduction of evidence which, in nine times out of ten, is false and trumped up.

After all, what pleasure or profit is there in holding a husband or wife who doesn't want to be held?

And I hereby announce to any husbands I may have at present or accumulate in the future—if you want to go, boys, the air is yours. ON YOUR WAY!

EINSTEIN'S LATEST

By Garrett P. Serviss

THE Einstein theory seems to possess for many readers the fatal attraction of the "mountain of adamant" in the Arabian Nights, which drew out the nails from approaching ships and left them to fall to pieces in the offing. And many an adventurous excursionist on the seductive galleons that fly the pennant of "Einstein made easy" has found out that a mental ducking is the conclusion of the voyage.

The Einstein theory is built on mathematics and constructed of mathematics, and it exists in the mind, only as a mathematical theorem. It is not Einstein but his amplifiers and would-be clarifiers who have made his theories appear to be the inventions of a mystificator, or the seriously intended commentaries of the bedlamite on the adventures of Alice in Wonderland. I do not find him writing any such nonsense as is sometimes set out to shine in the light of his fame.

He is, of course, aware of the facilities which his speculations offer for making paradoxes that will cause novices to stare and rub their eyes, but he doesn't offer any encouragement to that sort of Barnumism. In his own attempt to give the layman some idea of what the latest form of the theory means, he resorts to none of the vain expedients of those who hand out wooden nutmegs, but honestly tries to give the reader a fundamental conception which will, at least, suggest to any rational mind the nature of the problem on which he is working.

No man can play chess who has not first learned the rules and the moves of the game. So no man who is entirely ignorant of "higher mathematics" (ignorance which is no disgrace to those who have no use for such knowledge) should expect to follow the processes by which the Einstein theory has been built up. One who had never seen a chessboard might as well try to understand the complications of the "knight's move."

In his explanation of his latest study of the effects of relativity Einstein tries to lead the reader to a comprehension of what is meant by the "field." Students of electricity and magnetism currently make use of the term "field." It means for them the space surrounding a magnet, or an electric current, in which magnetic or electric phenomenon take place. So a gravitation "field" is the space within which gravitative effects are felt. In a broad sense, space is general in a "field" wherein electric, magnetic and gravitative effects are all manifested.

The "ether theory" made it easy for everybody to understand how light could be conveyed in "waves" across space, because it represented space as filled everywhere with the ether. Similarly, it was easy to see that electricity could be conveyed by the same intangible medium. Maxwell showed that light could be simply explained as an electro-magnetic wave in the ether.

Bible Passages

God's Glory

(Psalm 138)

I WILL praise thee with my whole heart; before the gods will I sing praise unto thee.

I will worship toward thy holy temple, and praise thy name for thy lovingkindness and for thy truth: for thou hast magnified thy word above all thy name.

In the day when I cried thou answeredst me, and strengthenedst me with strength in my soul.

Though the Lord be high, yet hath he respect unto the lowly: but the proud he knoweth afar off.

Though I walk in the midst of trouble, thou wilt revive me: thou shalt stretch forth thine hand against the wrath of mine enemies, and thy right hand shall save me.

The Stuff of Dreams

THIS is the stuff of dreams
This velvet night,
Just touched with silver by the rising moon;
This is enchantment's hour to delight,

Through morn and moon this loveliness was lost,
All hidden by the sunlight's shining veils;
Now silver on the bayou's breast is tossed
And on the fisher's sails.

Now lips are kindlier and eyes more bright,
Now hopes creep near that once had gone astray.
This is the stuff of dreams, which sets aright
The discords of the day.

Ah, never was an Earth as fair as this
And never loves as sweet as these befell!
This is the stuff of dreams, let no man miss

African in the Woodpile

By Herbert Kaufman

THE heaviest snows and the longest freeze of recent years warn the Mississippi Valley to strengthen its dikes.

Within a month the Father of Waters will begin to gather his children from the headlands and drain their thawed veins into his own. The ice and drifts will melt, then seep into creek, brook, stream and tributary rivers.

A vast root-basket, that once held leagues of priceless soil in its mesh, is no more. And so an annually greater impoverishment occurs throughout the country's richest sections.

When we destroy timber tracts, and don't replace them, agriculture pays the piper and hands the bill to the consumer.

China's experience is lost on the United States. That great empire, too, was originally covered with timber. But reckless axes wiped it out.

And now thousands of miles, where farms anciently flourished, are stark barrens—while their fertile elements fill the Yellow Sea, which derives its name from the mud ceaselessly clouding its depths.

Unless we halt a like decimation, not only will choicest alluvial districts go sterile, but the lumber industry must pass.

Without replenishment, there will be no commercial timber in the United States fifty years from now.

Congress can commit no folly equal to a prohibitive tariff on lumber imports. Everything that conservation is achieving will be nullified by any legislative action, tending to compel use of our own pulp and timber tracts.

Oregon shingle mills and coast pine companies want the gates kept open to British Columbia spruce, fir and cedar, and call upon citizens everywhere for support.

American labor cannot raise the cry of pauper wages. The eight-hour day prevails across the border. The average pay, there, is bigger than our own scales.

Congressional log-rollers, promoting the measure, are working for higher prices in structural materials and against popular interest and national welfare.

But that is merely an economic and secondary phase of the situation.

If we are to keep our top soil—if we are to check the spread of floods—if we are to hold our arable acreage—if we are to pursue a successful reforestation program—these purposes can be best accomplished by drawing upon the outside until adequate stands of timber are planted and brought to maturity.

When destruction wears the bask of protection, it's time to erase party lines and vote it down.

NEW YORK DAY BY DAY

By O. O. McIntyre

NEW YORK, March 9.—New York had a visiting novelist this winter who made no effort to be a bright boy at the tea table, spurt epigrams or comment on crude American manners. He was Ernest Hemingway, who has a cherubic moon of a face and a cocoonish mustache and although a product of Chicago, lives in Paris and made his reputation there.

Accompanying him to America was George Slocum, a poet, who was a thinly disguised character in Hemingway's "The Sun Also Rises." Slocum wears a heavy black beard and while his odd manner of dress would not turn a head on Montparnasse it caused much craning of necks on New York streets.

Hemingway is one of the fabled writing geniuses in real life who cares nothing for financial rewards of his trade. Since his sudden success he has been besieged with offers from magazines and book publishers, but dodges them to slip off to Florida on fishing expeditions.

Fishing in Florida and bull fights in Spain take up much of his time, and he writes only under pressure of necessity and then feverishly. It should be encouraging to struggling unknowns that his famous prize-fight story "Fifty Grand," was turned down by three leading American editors.

All agreed it was one of those stories with little appeal in manuscript form, but in type set pulses aflutter. Hemingway has just finished a novel promised to a popular magazine at a big price, but at the last moment was touched by a sentimentality and begged off. He gave it for a very small price to a magazine that bought his first story.

Those who know say if he would strike while the iron is hot—as Michael Arlen did—he could retire with plenty in a few years. He meets the editors agreeably, but promises nothing. Not so long ago an editor dispatched an emissary to Key West where Hemingway was teasing the tarpon.

The emissary carried a sizable check for option on a short story idea the magazine desired. Hemingway refused the check, explaining he thought well of the idea and would like to write the story, but did not want to be bound. All of which is a trifling bewildering in the world of letters.

Incidentally, the sickening sea tragedy of a few months ago caused a curious reaction in a New York magazine office. The editor, after reading the details on his suburban train, reached his office in a righteous boil. He called up the advertising manager of a steamship line which had just placed a large display order.

"I have cancelled your order," he said. "We do not want to encourage murder in our columns. If travel advertising leads people up gangplanks of rotten ships we are going to discontinue it immediately." This spirit has become so pronounced several advertising medium are insisting upon clean bills of health from steamships lines.

There are at least 20 restaurants in town that refuse to let usurpers open up eating places next door to trade on their popularity. To circumvent this, the popular places open the adjoining places themselves. These are given different names, furnished differently, but food is often served from the same kitchen. One cafe on upper Broadway owns and manages the restaurants on either side of it.

Before departing for Hollywood for her try at the films, Dorothy Parker met a young poet of her acquaintance and learned he was to be in Hollywood a week or so later. "Please drop around. I'll be mighty glad to see you," she told him. But as he departed she said to a friend: "What a dull place Hollywood is going to be if I will be glad to see him."

ONCE OVERS

By J. J. Mundy

To you these men seem very ordinary.

They seem to lack the polish which society demands and of which you have made a study.

If you consider them so, it is not surprising that you wonder how certain men have advanced to their positions.

It is a matter of these men thinking on more important subjects than how to dress and how to act in polite society.

It is well to have a pleasant address, but better to have a thorough knowledge of underlying principles in the business where you hope for an important position.
